The Place to Buy Gents' Furnishings.

Regent Brand Clothing

There is absolutely no occasion for argument when you come to look at our New Spring Suits. Such perfect specimens of fine tailoring are seldom seen outside the merchant tailor shops. Such values are never known outside the store. We are positive, perfectly positive, we can fit any man and satisfy his judgment as regards style and quality. We have a good range to choose from and you know exactly what you are getting. There's a certain dressiness about all our suits that distinguish them on the street—not obtrusive, not objectionable—only stylish, only up-to-date

Fine Clothing of every sort for men and boys. This is your store if you want the best.

Sackett's Corners.

Mrs. J. McDougall has gone to visit Mrs. McDougall of Yeovil. J. will not like batch ball.

We are pleased to see Miss Mae Ernest home again looking better than we expected after her sick spell.

Mrs. W. McKinnie of Toronto and her little daughter Eva are visiting her uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sackett.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Chas. M. Queen of Borthwick, who got her arm broken some time ago, is not improving as well as we would wish to hear.

Mr. W. Sackett bought a cow from Mr. J. Hill of Borthwick. We didn't hear the price but we know she is a fine cow.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Atchison of Dromore called on Mr. Hugh Atchison at the corner on Sunday.

Mr. Robinson of Alberta is residing at present with his daughter Mrs. Sam McMurdo of this place.

We are pleased to hear that Mrs. Neil McFadden is improving. We hope she will soon be fully recovered.

The corner was favored with a call from the Rev. Mr. Kendall of Dromore. Will be pleased to see him again at any time.

Fine growing weather at present. Hope it may continue as it is much needed.

HIS STURDY WATCH.

He Keeps It In His Pocket With the Aid of a Knife.

"Some men, don't you know," said Mr. Gillkilton, "will stop on a curb, step down about a foot and break a leg, and then another man will fall off the top of a seven-story house and not even miss his clothes. And it's about the same way with watches.

"I dropped my watch the other day about six inches on to a thick plush carpet, and it cost me $10 for repairs. When I was out walking with my friend Bwilkwilly this morning he dropped his watch on the sidewalk, and it didn't so much as stop.

"It sounded when it came down like a safe falling out of a high window, and it was only a two-dollar watch, and I expected, of course, to see Bwilkwilly just kick the fragments of the sidewalk and pass on, but it seems Bwilkwilly knew the watch better. He picked up the crystal, not even cracked, from where it had down, seven feet away, and put that in his pocket, and then he looked at the watch.

"It was going all right, but somehow in the end the long hand had got bent. He straightened out that bent hand with his pocketknife so that the two pointers wouldn't catch, and then he pried off the crystal rim of the watch and put the crystal back in place, and then he snapped the rim back on the front of the watch again and dropped the watch in his pocket and started on, and as I was saying, he said, just as if nothing had happened."—Washington Post.

DESTING THE BOASTER.

A Little Problem That Floored the Lightning Calculator.

"Now gentlemen," concluded the lightning calculator, "I have demonstrated to you upon this ere blackboard the marvellous speed and accuracy insured by my great system of addition, subtraction, division and multiplication, and I trust that you are all satisfied with the results. Now, gentlemen, I have 'ere a little shillin' booklet explainin' my marvellous system in full and by a careful perusal of which I will guarantee you to become as expert a lightning calculator as myself within the period of one week, by which time I shall be out of the town. Ahem! Now, gentlemen, when you recall that I was straight away able to multiply 1,111,111,111,937 by 937,111,111,111 perhaps you will!"

"One moment, sir!" called out a shrill voice from the back of the crowd. "But will you answer me a question? I'm no scholar myself, but I was wondering the other night how old a child born in September, nineteen nought nine, would be in September, nineteen nought ten?"

The lightning calculator threw his interrogator a look of contempt.

"One year, of course, my little man," he replied sarcastically.

"Well," retorted the shrill voice, "I think if you were to go home and improve your own arithmetic you would find that child would be 17,101 years old."—London Answers.

A Matter of Smokestacks.

The smokestacks on ocean vessels of recent years have been made to slope backward more particularly to give the steamer a rakish air, the masts also being given the same slope. As to the effect on the draft, there is a slight one, as the wind pressure on the front of the stack sloping up and over the top of the stack is more apt to draw the smoke out than to cut it off, but from all we are aware of this seems to have been held of secondary consideration. The shape of the smokestacks also is changing from round to oval so as to present less surface at the front. If you compare the steamers with the sloping and straight smokestacks, in one case the former, while motionless, still appears to have life, while the rigidity of the other gives it an appearance of stiffness even while under considerable speed.—St. Nicholas.
