A Modern Proposal.

"It's like this, Miss Belle," said the Honorable Algy, stifling a yawn. "Our people seem to think we ought to get married, you know, and I don't like to disappoint 'em, and all that sort of thing. I'm not a clever chap, but there must be something in me, for I owe about £16,000. I'm a younger son; and the bit of money the mater left me isn't enough to pay for my cigarettes. I can't help my extravagant tastes. I inherited 'em. You've got money and can put me on my feet, eh—what? I've got enough blue blood for the two of us, and if your pater did make his money packing pork into tins it can't be helped. I'm prepared to waive that, doncherknow. You're a smart sort of girl and can behave yourself very nicely, considering everything. I don't like the way your father drops his aspirates or his eating peas with a knife, but he's quite a respectable old soul in his way, and he'll improve, I dare say; after I've shown him what's what a bit. Come, what d'ye say, Miss Belle? Is it a deal? Eh—what?"

And the Honorable Algy seemed greatly astonished when Miss Belle declined the honor of the proposal.—London Pictorial.

The Hunter and the Wind. In hunting against the wind in open forests more game is passed than many hunters would suppose. The animals see the man, note that he will pass them and hide by getting as near to the ground as possible. If they scent him after he has passed they evidently realize that the danger is over, though some, mostly the younger, inexperienced animals, then sneak off. Where game is very wild it is often in such localities as I have mentioned only possible to approach them with the wind by outdistancing the latter, because a big game animal at rest depends on its nose to save it from danger in the direction from which the wind comes and on its eyes to watch the side from which it can get no other warning.—"Track and Tracking," by Josef Bronner.

Welsh National Costume. When the French made a half hearted attempt to invade Great Britain in 1797 a landing was made at Fishguard, Wales, but the soldiers of Napoleon were frightened off by the sight of a great number of Welsh girls and women, whom they mistook at a distance for soldiers on account of their red dresses and tall black hats. That is still the national costume of the Welsh women.

The strike of the conductors and trainmen on the G. T. R., went in effect on Monday night at 9, when about 3500 men went out of the shops on the system have been closed, as a result, and the total number of men out of employment reaches up near the 10,000 mark.

The electric storm which passed over here on Saturday morning last, played havoc with the electric lights in the cement works, striking the wire, and putting them out of business. The damage however was slight, and after a quarter hour's shut-down, the plant was running as usual.

One of the best, if not the best farms in this part of the county changed hands on Saturday last when Messrs. J. & J. Hunter disposed of their 150-acre property just north of the town. The purchaser is Mr. A. Crutcheley, of Gledelg, who is to be congratulated on securing so valuable a property.

The Teeswater News says: "Re J. C. Pomeroy, one of the great old men of Methodism, will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church next Sunday." Mr. Pomeroy, pastor here fourteen or fifteen years ago, and his many friends will be glad to learn that he is still able to engage in active work.

The C. O. F. will celebrate Decoration Day on July 24th next, a memorial service at the cemetery which will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Farquharson. The Band will also be in attendance. A full attendance of the brethren is hoped for, and they are also requested to meet at the lodge room at 1.30 p.m.

A letter to the family here announces the safe arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Ramage on the old sod of Scotland, the "Land of broad heath and shaggy wood. Land of the mountain and the flood." It is over forty years since Mr. Ramage came from Scotland, and we sincerely hope he and his good wife, too, may have a most enjoyable vacation.

The town council started in before the Orangemen's celebration here to clean up the streets by cutting down the burdocks, and trimming the long grass off the edge of the walks. While at it, they did good work, but since the 12th, they seem to have slacked up, and the job now remains half done. Why their action in trying to put the town in as good a shape as possible for our recent big celebration is deserving of commendation, we would like to see them get ahead and complete their task now that the event is over. Those who live here would appreciate and benefit by it, and those who live away from here really don't care.
