Not so bad for this corner of old Glenelg, as these four gentlemen live within a distance of two miles.

On Wednesday morning last, about nine o'clock, a light thunderstorm passed over this part, but one bolt unfortunately struck the fine bank barn of Mr. Henry Williams, and set it on fire.

Mr. Williams had just gone for a load of oats, possibly one hundred rods distant, when the crash came. He hastened to the barn, and assisted by several neighbors first on the scene, endeavored to extinguish the blaze.

However, all efforts to quench the fire proved futile and it soon became apparent the building was doomed. The energies of the workers were then directed towards removing all implements and movable articles to a place of safety.

A new set of bobsleighs a cutter and fanning mill were destroyed, besides 25 tons of hay, peas, barley, fall wheat and some oats of this year's crop, and 100 bushels of oats and 120 bushels of fall wheat.

The loss is partly covered by insurance. A gentle rain falling the time the blaze was at its height, eliminated all possibility of the fire spreading to fences and neighboring buildings.

Mr. Williams, very fortunately had about 25 acres of oats still standing in the shock at the time of the fire, which will furnish him a little feed for the coming winter.

We sympathize very deeply with our neighbor in his loss.

Why I Am A Canadian

By ARTHUR HAWKES Did it ever occur to you that there are two classes of Canadians?—those who couldn't help being Canadians and those who could.

Patriotism? Yes, sir, Patriotism is "Home Sweet Home" on a grand scale. Listen:—"Breathes there a man with soul so dead Who never to himself hath said: This is my own, my native land?"

There is a glory of the native born—the thrill that passes through your heart and down your spine when the sacramental element of your nativity makes its subtle, compelling appeal to your mind.

To us who enjoy only the blessing of adoption, who have given our native land a second place in our affections, is there even a glory for us in Canada? Can you—the native born—tell what it is? You can't, because you haven't had our experience.

We need not envy you, the native born; you need not envy us, the British-born. We are meet for one another, to conspire to make Canada as great in reputation as she is great in extent.

I know a man who has become as keen a Canadian as I have, who, with his wife, began life in Ontario on a farm. They are good people, who do good to others and who are already better off than they ever hoped to be in England.

You asked us to come. The Government has spent millions and millions of dollars in inducing British-born people to forsake friends and homes and traditions and places consecrated by sacred dust, and help to build up Canada.

They know not England who only England know. They know not Canada who only their province know. The Englishman who finds himself, say, in Southern Saskatchewan, for a year or two, and who visits the Old Country, says, "In Canada they do this and that."

It was by a fortune I never deserved, that I went through the mill of pioneering in the West between 1885 and 1891, and that, after fourteen years' absence I came back, journeyed for three months all over the country, and finally settled in Toronto; and that in six years I have travelled a hundred and forty thousand miles between Halifax and Victoria.

Of deliberate choice, then, I brought my family to Canada. They do not want to go back to the land of their birth. We do not speak of England as "home." This is our home.
