Up in the centre of the Gulf of St. Lawrence the small group of Magdalen Islands are populated by three or four of th. lineal descendants of the Arcadians under Champlain and De Monts, who were driven out of New France, Neva Scotia, by the English. Since the first settlement in 1763, states a writer in Rosary Magazine, generations of the same families have raised scanty crops in the valleys and fed sheep and cattle on the high coni cal hills which constitute a prominent feature of an insular landscape.

Year after year men have gone out on the waters of the gulf in search of the cod, markerel and lobsters on which a live bood depends. They are a simple, paritive people, these natives of the angdalens, laboring all the while under circumstances that are
