FIRE IN ELMWOOD

On Monday morning the premises of the Royal Bank of Canada at Elmwood was damaged by fire. The staff who occupy the upstairs, experienced some difficulty in getting out of the building, the downstairs of which was full of smoke. It is thought that the fire commenced in the chimney as it is around the point where the furnace pipe enters the chimney that the most damage was done. The loss, no doubt is fully covered by insurance. Those who have seen the premises since the fire, are surprised that, in the absence of fire protection, the building was not totally destroyed and more than a dozen men deserve credit for the skill and energy they displayed. While their premises are being repaired the Bank will conduct their business in the east end of G. Radolph & Son's hardware store.—Post.

Do We Sleep Too Much?

Perhaps, on account of popular opinion and personal habit, we waste much time in a jellyfish condition that could be more profitably spent in active pursuit of our ambitions. The answer, of course, depends upon the nature of our occupation. If there is much muscular effort involved, with a corresponding large amount of waste in the cells and blood, eight hours or more are probably necessary. But if our work is of a sedentary nature and mainly of the brain there is naturally a smaller quantity of accumulated waste, and less time is required for its removal. Many are the instances of great men, past and present, who have lived healthfully and worked unceasingly and strenuously on only four or five hours of sleep, or half the laborer's portion. Surely we are not to suppose that those men were or are physically different from others, but rather that by inclination or necessity they have developed a habit of sleeping intensely for a short period instead of lightly for a longer period, with resulting gain of time and efficiency.—Atlantic Monthly.

The Eternal Feminine.

From the fresco paintings of women in the Cretan palaces of the period about 2000 B.C. it is learned that the women of that time pinched in their waists, had dounced or accordion skirts, wore an elaborate coiffure on their heads, shoes with high heels and hats which might have come from a Parisian hat shop, while one woman might be described as wearing a jupe culotte.

Wanted the Best.

Uncle Raspberry walked into a drug store. "Gimme one o' dem plasters foh my back," he said. "One of the porous plasters?" "No, I don't want one o' de pores' plasters. I want one o' de bes'."—Washington Star.

VERY PROMISING.

The editor took a new reporter on trial recently. He sent him to hunt for news, and after being away all day he returned with the following, which he said was the best he could do:—"Yesterday we saw a sight which froze our blood with horror. A cabman, driving down Market Street at a rapid pace, was very near running over a nurse and two children. The heart-rending catastrophes ever recorded had not the nurse, with a dreadful forethought, left the children at home before she went out and providentially stepped into a nearby chemist's shop just before the cab passed. Then, too, the cabman, just before reaching the crossing, thought of something he had forgotten, and turning about, drove in the opposite direction. Had it not been for this wonderful concurrence of favourable circumstances, a loving father, a loving mother, and affectionate brothers and sisters would have been plunged into the deepest woe and most unutterable funeral expense. It is thus that we are even in life haunted by death." The new reporter will be retained.

OVERLOOKED.

Patron—Waiter, one item is wrong here. We didn't have three plates of soup. We only had two. Waiter—Pardon me, sir, you forgot the plate what I spilled over the lady's dress.

HE WAS IN NO HURRY.

It was one of those sleepy little towns—very sleepy little towns. A gentleman arrived and wanted a haircut. He found the barber's shop, and after shaking the barber vigorously managed to awaken him. "How long will it take you to cut my hair, barber," he asked. "Not long, sir," said the barber. And he rose, yawned, and stretched himself. Then he called upstairs to his wife: "Hey! Send the boy down to the 'Sun' office to tell the Editor I want my scissors just as soon as he's done editing the paper. There's a gent here waitin' for a haircut."

LOSING THE BOUNDARY MARK.

"Poor old Alf!" sighed Mrs. Crimp, as the form of her husband vanished down the road. "He's growing bald!" "Yes, I've noticed it," assented her neighbor. "Ever since his last illness, he's been moulting, as you might say. I hope he ain't worrying over it, Mrs. Crimp?" "Well, it do bother him a bit," she admitted. "And well it might," said her neighbor. "When my old man lost his hair, he felt the cold something terrible." "Oh, it ain't the cold that worries Alf," replied Mrs. Crimp. "It's the bother he has when he's washing himself. If he doesn't keep his hat on, poor dear, he can't tell where his face finishes!"

APPLY TO THE CASHIER.

A timid knock, a gruff "Come in!" and the tear-stained, new office-boy stood before the manager. "P-please, sir!" he blubbered. The manager looked up sharply. "P-please, sir!" he blubbered again. "Well, well, well," asked the manager, "what is it?" "P-please, sir, I upset a p-packet of envelopes," said the office-boy, dabbing his streaming eyes with his coat-sleeve, "and the c-cashier k-kicked me!" "Good gracious, my lad!" snapped the manager irritably. "You don't expect me to attend personally to every detail of business, do you?"

A SEASIDE DECISION.

Gerald: Ciss, dear, did I ever tell you the story of the dirty window? Cississ: No. Gerald: Well, I don't think I will; you would not see through it if I did.

REMOVES ICEBERG DANGER

An instrument which will be tested by the Marine Department. An invention which will minimize if not abolish altogether the risk from icebergs to steamships has been presented to the department of marine and fisheries by Professor Howard Barnes of McGill University. One of the department's vessels will be placed at the disposal of Professor Barnes for experimental purposes. The instrument is claimed by Professor Barnes to detect at a distance of several miles the presence of masses of ice. The cruise of Professor Barnes, who will be accompanied by several experts, will be in the Straits of Belle Isle, at a period when the iceberg season is in full swing. The government vessel will poke its way through the ice, and the instrument will record as in the manner of a thermometer the propinquity of the ice floes. It is also claimed that the little instrument will not only register by its fluctuations the nearness of ice, but also of land. Experiments for this purpose will also be made.

THE ITALIAN FAILING

Not Likely to Make Much of a Success of Tripoli Colony. According to Lawrence Mott, who has had many opportunities of studying the Italian character and the trend of Italian policy, the chances of Italy making a success of the Tripolitan colony experiment are quite as doubtful as the question of her success in war. Mr. Mott recalls Italy's failure in Abyssinia, and declares that unless the Italians are prepared to abandon the policy of centralization that they have been wedded to they will fall in Tripoli. To the Italian, Rome is the headquarters of everything. Every Italian looks to Rome for his instructions, and the officials who will act on their own initiative if they happen to be serving their country anywhere but in the capital are few indeed. Mr. Mott says that if the Italians had left the conduct of the military operations in Abyssinia in the hands of the generals on the spot they might have defeated Menelik. Even in the present war there is a disposition to act on advice from Rome rather than according to the exigencies of the situation as they present themselves to the generals in the field. Tripoli will not be a successful Italian colony if the Italians attempt to manage its affairs from Rome. They must first find the right man to put in charge, then turn him loose and let him handle the affairs of Tripoli. The French made the mistake of directing Algerian business from Paris, and the result was much trouble and disappointment. The French, moreover, tried the "strong arm" method with the natives, and to-day France holds Algeria by her troops, whereas in British colonies policemen are at home, and discharge much the same functions. If Italy is to succeed she must enlist the Arabs as allies, prove to them that they have as much to gain as the Italians themselves by making Tripoli a garden land, and teach them the arts of the European farmer, shepherd and vine-dresser, for these are the arts that must make Tripoli a great colony if it is to be rescued from barbarism.
