ENTER ANY TIME

One of Eastern Ontario's High-Class and popular Business Schools which keeps open throughout the year. Young people may enter any time and complete their course without interruption of midsummer holidays. You may study all at bome or partly at home and finish at the college. Thirty Years' Experience. Largest Trainers in Canada. Affiliated with the Commercial Educator's Association of Canada. Write for particulars.

Walkerton Business College. S. INCH GEO. SPOTTON Principal. President.

Pumps, Curbing, Tile

ANYONE ONE NEEDING New Pumps, Pump Repairs, Cement Curbing or Culvert Tile, see . . . JNO. SCHULTZ or myself at the shop

George Whitmore

-THE-

HE SELLS CHEAP

OUR NEW PRINTS AND SHEETINGS are now in.

W. H. BEAN

Says Physical Director Chama. Y. M. C. A.

CHATHAM, N. B., July 3, 103 "Having used Father Morriscy's iment in my capacity as Physical D.: rubbing down after a hard run

Gen'l Secretary, Chatham Y M.C. Now a very prominent St. John N

The above prescription is not a "C All" or so-called patent med Morrisey prescribed it for 4 3 it cured thousands after other deter

Price, 25c. per bottle at your dea or Father Morriscy Medicine Limited, Montreal.

ARE YOU GOING WEST THIS

SPRING? If so take advantage of the remarkably low One-Way second class Colonist Rates to Vancouver, contentedly. Victoria, Nelson, Spokane, Seattle Portland, San Francisco, Los Ang- poor little, ill-used kiddie," Paul reeles. San Diego, etc., in effect marked fervently, setting him on his March 1st to April 15th, or Western Canada is your destina- shawl around him, and letting the tion, the One-way second class gate swing to. "We'll go back home." Settlers' Rates should appeal to you. Settlers' trains to Western boldness he was far from feeling, and Canada will leave Toronto 10.20 p. he shivered to find the little figure m. each Tuesday during March and run willingly beside him in fearless

April. Pacific Railway offers the finest hurried along the drive, up the flight possible equipment and fastest of steps to the entrance hall, and lifted train service. The route is one the brass knocker. of the most scenic in the world. It is the only line operating through had smitten so feebly that the sound standard and tourist sleepers, also dining cars to Winnipeg and Van- could hardly have penetrated the solid. couver, with the most modern com-Canada on transcontinental trains. the summons.

necessity of changing depots. prised at his small companion. Dining car service unsurpassed. All equipment is owned and operated by the C.P.R., affording the highest "Farley is my name; I think she will test. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy form of efficiency. If such a trip see me." any C.P.R. Agent for full partic- leaden sound, and Paul felt he was ulars.

THE SECRET OF PAUL FARLEY

- - JOHN MARCH - -

(AUTHOR OF "A CHILD OF MANY PRAYERS," ETC.).

"No," he answered, clasping the

The stubborn unbending will-power,

the strange individual force which stood him in place of nerve, suddenly

asserted itself together with a blind

"Nonsense," he returned coolly;

Without further demur she turned perfectability of the harmonious cel-

Eastern gorgeousness. In all his life he had never felt as he did now. The beauty was all so glowing, yet so still.

that it seemed as if the house slood in a desert, or must be by some spell

of misfortune, accident or crime could happen in it without the possibility

A portière of thick brocade swayed outstretched hands, her lovely, bewitching face wreathed in tender with pent-up passion. She stood be fore him in the glancing firelight, curt seying, beautiful beyond compare, a veritable bird of paradise, a lovely,

wicked, wanton thing, utterly devoid and devastated of any corresponding comliness of mind. She took the cold, nerveless hand, opened it, bowed over

"My lord, my king!" she said in and with her uprising, she burst into a happy, joyous, ringing laugh, throw-

"I knew you would come, darling,"

Her first bewildered paroxysm of love passed, she looked about her, be-

yound her idol, and there from the dark, voluminous folds of a curtain she saw

Guy's curious peeping face. The expression in her eyes told Paul she was cognizant of the child's presence, and the sudden tightening of his arms

about her might easily have been mis-

"Let me go," she said, struggling.

"without one little kiss, Rowena?"

"Go?" he asked in faint surprise,

"I can't bear it," she panted. "I

"He came with me; I found him truanting outside. I was sure he be-consequently he is dear to me. If he is going to be mine as well as yours I must know him, and learn to love

fiantly. "Your love is all mine, all

"You shall not!" she exclaimed de-

"Well, like him, then," he said, feel-kind to him. You will let me be kind

He let her go, went to the child,

look into Guy's bloodshot eyes.

"No, never," he said eagerly.

only bite and scratch and tear her

when I'm so," and he touched his head significantly with his red, bony fin-

"Why, what's the matter with this

"I don't know," he said, with infinite

"I wish I knew, sweetheart, then I soul," he breathed into the shining,

spun-silk curls; "poor, forsaken little

Mrs. Wycherly said, the hand on his shoulder fluttering to his neck, and judged by this standard has no

speak of it in the highest terms

"Now, Paul, I've been very patient," sadness, "'cept it's a goat that mostly little curly head?" Paul asked, smiling to him. Rowena?"

his knees.

ness to exist."

can't enjoy you with that thing in the room watchin me. How did he come fierceness that made him stagger.

she said childishly, "I knew-"

taken for a lover's warmth.

it, and kissed the palm.

smiles, her full rounded bosom heaving

made invisible to those who resi

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

have a good mind to tell James to aid. keep an eye on you for the next few | "Will you leave Master Guy here, an upward knowing glance.

up to town." "And when I come back?" "If I scent denger, you won't come little red hand closer, "I'll take him back; you will share Graham's cham- with me."

bers for a day or so. We are not go-"it would annoy the mistress; the ing to run any risks, dear boy." Paul bit his lips, flushed, turned child is never allowed in the drawing-round, and smoothed his hair in the room." cracked glass.

CHAPTER XVII. Mrs. Wycherly at Home

inexplicable feeling that he was safer Dinner over, Paul changed his boots, with than without the boy. and set out resolutely to pay his addresses to his beautiful fiancée. It "she won't object to his coming with was fine overhead, but mild and moist me-will you please lead the way?" after the rain, and the roads were muddy. A dank, autumnal smell perand Paul followed her up the white vaded the air, and the brown and yelenamelled staircase, carpeted with low foliage still shone with the day's broad crimson velvet pile, held in place by massive silver-plated rods, downpour.

He walked slowly, his eyes on the into a well-lighted, lofty, magnificent ground, loth to hasten the dreaded inapartment. He drew a deep breath, as terview. His heart beat high, his head with eyes and soul he drank in the burned, his hands and feet were as cold as clay. In his trapidation he oring, enhanced by a daring dash of noticed the commonest and most trivial objects by the wayside. The wet, red gravel heaps on the vivid green turf, the grass jewelled with raindrops, gleaming in the light of the watery meen, huge white stumps of timber blasted by lightning, black denear or passed by it, so that any form cayed trunks of trees, and when at length the grey sombre steeple of Weyberne Church came into sight, he of attracting human aid. knew he could not much longer postpone the evil moment. There was no surcease of reluctance; he looked in an unexpected quarter of the room, between the larches, and felt very much inclined to show the white feather, and walk back to Weyberne Hall. But Felix wished it; on the way home Felix had again laid stress and emphasis on this particular point; Felix had forgiven him, he was putting himself out of his way to help him. Therefore, at all hazards, at all events, at any personal cost, Felix must be obeyed.

With an unwilling, trembling, fumbling hand, he pulled the iron pin from the staple of the large, white gate, and was about to pass through when a curiously-shaped bundle near the post attracted his attention, and he stooped to examine it. The thing was hard and warm, and moved at his touch, rolled over, opened, and a little figure scrambled to his feet from a woollen shawl, and stared at him.

It was not a very small boy, but a weak and emaciated one, with big vacant, hazel eyes, and a few scant golden curls on his forehead, damp with perspiration. Forlorn and woefully altered as Paul thought he must be, still he recognized Felix's description of the little Guy Wycherly, and lifted the thin, poorly clad child in "What are you doing here, chappie?" he asked gently.

The boy gazed at him, lost in wonder at the rich, low, caressing tone. "Who are you?" Guy asked, in a hoarse, broken voice, such as Paul would never have believed a child could possess.

"I am a friend of mother's; I am going to see her; you'll come with me, won't you?"

"No," he said, with a wise look. "She'll hurt me like this." He put his hands to his skinny throat, and grabbed it spasmodically. "Ah, you mustn't do that!" Paul said, pulling at the long-nailed fingers, and he was amazed at the strength of the frail bony hands. Guy laughed a weird, tuneless laugh.

"I mustn't; but she may. She likes to. Wouldn't you like to? I'll let you, though I kick when she does." "No," he said, tenderly; "I would rather kiss you." "What's that?" he asked, puzzled. "Put your face near mine, and I'll show you," he said, shocked and astonished at the question. Guy held his face close and Paul kissed his soiled, tear-stained cheek and mouth with a warmth born of the sincerest pity. "I like that," he said, "it doesn't

"I wouldn't hurt you for the world, Guy," he said, clasping him closer. "Then I'll stay with you," he decided fall of her white bosom.

"I would that it were possible, you feet and keeping hold of his hand. if "Come along," he said, wrapping the

> "You won't let her hurt me?" "Not I," he returned stoutly, with a to keep back a sudden rush of tears.

comes. I'm a goat. I run at everyperfect faith. thing and hurt it and try to kill it. Stung with secret fears, and not Bear in mind that the Canadian daring to trust himself to linger, he Why does that goat come?" would keep it away," he said, as the child nestled to him. "Poor little

There was no reply. It was not to be wondered at: he handsome panelling. He knocked again, louder, three regular strokes, anon up and down the back of his partment observation library cars gently, but perfectly distinct, com- glossy head. "Let him go, the sight of through the mountains and across municating some of his own terror to him sickens me. I shall strike him if

The door was opened at last by a By travelling C.P.R. you avoid the smart maid-servant, who looked sur-

> "Mrs. Wycherly at home?" "Yes, sir: I think you must be the is under consideration, apply to The heavy door clanged with a dull, superior. People everywhere - practically alone, beyond all human of praise. For sale by all dealers.

you don't put him out of your arms; I can't bear it any longer."

"Very well," he said, readily; "goodbye, Guy. Will you remember me? Will you know me when you see me again?"

The boy looked at him long and steadily, a pained expression in his inflamed eyes.

"Yes." he said positively, "I'll know you again, and I shan't hurt you, the goat won't come where you are!" "A la bonheur!" he exclaimed. springing up with him in his arms;

"good-bye, good-night; go to bed; dream of the angels, sweet," and he kissed him tenderly, and put him outside the door. "I am fond of children," he said, apologetically, turning to othe beautiful, heartless creature, jealously days, at any rate until I can get you and follow me?" the girl said, with watching him; "I suppose you wouldn't let me have that boy for a day or two." "What would you do with the little fright at the Hall?" she asked, dis-"Excuse me, sir," she said gravely, pleased.

"Tom and Harry would tuck him in somewhere, Mrs. Wycherly," he said, laughing; "they would see no end of fun in the visit. The little fellow wants a playmate, and the Hargrave boys are such jolly, wholesome, happy young pickles; to rub against them would be the best medicine in the world for Guy."

"Guy doesn't want any medicine; he is not right in his head, he is insane. At times he is raving mad. I hate him; I hated his father; I hated my marriage. I want to forget him; I want to forget the hateful past; I want only to live in your love, now and always. Paul, dearest, you do love me a little?"

"A very little," he said, with a smile which seemed to belie his words; "and, what is more, I have not brought the ring. That silly little bird was wrong, Rowena; I have not been to London, but with your kind consent I'll go to-morrow. Which shall it be?" he demanded, dropping into an inviting divan by the fire, "diamonds, pearls, or sapphires?"

She slipped gracefully to the leopard skin at his feet, laid a firm, white hand on his knee, and looked up into his dark face, her eyes sparkling, her bare neck and shoulders suffused with the rosy glow of the fire. and Rowena Wycherly advanced with

"None of them," she said, stroking his face. "I want you to get me two large rubies cut heart shape, the hearts fastened together by a tiny, wee, diamond arrow. There's a good jeweller's in Piccadilly. I don't remember the name, but it's near a superb fruiterer's. I think you will easily find it."

"I shall find it," he said, confidently, "but, Rowena, won't a ring like that be some long way out of a poor man's reach? Don't think me mean; I am really generously inclined; but, to tell soft reverential tones, curtseying low, the truth, I've not taken my salary yet, and I'm quite sure my bank deposit won't cover the price of such a ring ing her arms around his neck with a as you describe."

> dearest," she said coaxingly. "The ring won't cort quite tist, but the surplus will pay your expenses. You are him. "Good-night, I've half a mind going entirely on my account, and you know I ought really to bear the brunt. Stay at the Cecil, darling; go to a theatre and enjoy yourself."

"You are most kind and considerate, Rowena," he said; "but I can't accept money from you; I can't let you buy your own engagement ring; the idea is preposterous! Choose something simpler, something more in accordance with my shallow pocket. May I bring you the prettiest and daintiest ring I am able to afford?"

"Bring what you like, anything; I have shoals of rings; I don't care what it is so long as you bring yourself safe back," she retorted, letting the crown of her head rest on his breast and longed to you from the likeness, and tossing up her arms to clasp his neck. "Paul, when do you leave Weyberne Hall for good?"

"Christmas, I expect; why?" "Nonsense! I want to be married pefore then. What notice is usual to give?"

"Three months, to leave, then-" "I won't wait," she exclaimed pasing he had overshot the mark, "and be sionately: "I declare I'll elope with you first, Paul! I'll-darling!" she whispered, changing her tone with the sudden withdrawal of her arms, caught him in his arms, walked to a and turning her marvellous face to low couch, and sat down with him on his, "if you do stay till Christmas it won't interfere with our marriage. It "You can't like him, Paul," she said, can't make any difference to Sir Thosorrowfully, going and standing close mas whether his secretary is married to him, her two hands crossed on his or single, how should it?"

shoulder. "He's possessed! He will "Do you mean bring my bag and bite you, tear your clothes, kick you, baggage, take up my residence here and spit at you. He is nothing more at the Larches, and visit the Hall in or less than a demon; he has no busi- the day?"

"Yes," she said, with a gleeful "As he is here we will make the best laugh, "that is exactly what I do mean. of him," he said, smoothing the rum- Promise you will."

pled curls, and g ancing up at her with "I can't promise to-night, I am not a look that set her nerves a-thrilling, my own master, so it would be foolish and tossed her heart into the rise and to pretend I am. I will speak to Sir Thomas, and if he is willing to con-"You won't be unkind to me, will cede, we must wait the appointed you, chappie?" he asked, bending to time."

> bravely and gaily away. Do you think James, and bring him home." I don't know you are temporizing, "Thank you, James," he said heart-Paul? Do you think I don't know you ily, touched by Felix's devotion and are indifferent to me, that you would forethought; "if ever I can do you a escape me if you could? Why you good turn you may depend upon it have more feeling for that miserable I will." imbecile of mine than you have for "I'm obliged to you, I'm sure, sir," me. I watched you, I saw your face he returned gratefully; "but don't you quiver with pity for that wretched, go to think I want compensation for plate my rare beauty, my exquisite to wait on you, sir, and so are the his neck, "you don't love me, I know, ash, and no spent matches a-lying but you will let me teach you? Will around the library of a morning; you try? Whether you love me or not they're all as neat as wax on the win your heart one day."

"I have never said that I did or do the shooting." naturally hard-hearted, I-"

"Leonie with the coffee," she said, You judge a man not by what irritably, rising hastily from the leohe promises to do, but by what he pard's skin, and arranging the soft has done. That is the only true ruffles of lace on her bodice.

The smart, coquettish maid who had brought a message, madame. Mr

"ANYTHING that is produced in Canada from Canadian materials, by the application of Canadian brain and labor, will always have first call with me. And it's only good business on my part that it should."

STORE WHERE EVERY DAY IS BARGAIN DAY.

WIE ALWAYS carry a full line of the W chociest teas, sugars, currants, raisins and groceries of all kinds.

Our goods are always the best and always the cheapest, when quality is considered. Give us a trial and be the judge.

Garafraxa St DURHAM

Matthews & Latimer!

For Flour Feed Seed Fresh Groceries New Fruit and Nuts Choice Confectionery Pure Spices and Vinegars No. I Family and Pure Manitoba Flours Fine Salt. Farmers Produce Wanted

Farley is wanted immediately."

"Thank you," Paul said, quietly without betraying his intense relief "say I will come directly." He rose as the girl shut the door and held cut his hands. "Good-bye, Rowena," he said, smiling, "wish me a pleasant journey and

"Let me give you a cheque for £200, a fine day in town to-morrow." "I wish you all the good the god: will send," she exclaimed, clinging to not to let you go. Will you swear to bring the ring to-morrow night?" "No," he said, gravely, "some acci> dent, some unforeseen circumstances. might crop up-a nundred things might occur to prevent."

> "Will you swear to bring it if nothing save your own will and inclination stands in the way?"

"Yes," he said, promptly. "I'll swear that." and with one last prolonged embrace she let him go. The hall door stood open, and the bevelled hanging lamp cast prismatic colors over the stolid silent James waiting on the top of the steps out side. Paul crushed his hat on his head, caught up his coat, and with a brief "Good-night" to the smiling maid he pinned James by the arm, leaped three steps at a bound, and ran down the drive like a hare.

"Hi! Hello, sir! Stop! You've taken all the wind out of my sails!" Paul stopped, let go the panting James, and laughed a young, wild, free

"Let me help you on with your coat, sir, it's not so mild nor so muggy as it was earlier, and I daresay you've come from a warm room."

"Very warm," he said, with emphasis. "Anything wrong, James?" he added, quickly, buttoning his coat; "Sir Thomas never sent anywhere for me before."

"No, and he hevn't now; it's just me, sir, humbly hegging your pardon; but 'twas the squire's doing. He says to me on the quiet like last night, 'Look here, James, says he, 'Mr. Farley is making a call to-morrow evening up at the Larches, and he's young, James; he's got no grown suspicions about womin, and especially widders; will yer keep your eye on him for me while I'm in Lunnon? If he don't return in an hour from the time he leaves the Hall just you walk along the turnpike and meet him, and if in another "In that case I should wait until my fifteen minutes you don't see him, hair is grey; my knight would blow a ring the widder's bell, and give an urkiss from his finger tips, and ride gent message, and you wait for him, puny object, and yet you can contem- any chance turn I do yer . I'm pleased surroundings, my wealth, my absorb maids; you gives no trouble, sir. ing love, and not move a muscle. There's no cleaning up after you; Paul, dear love," she hid her face on there's no cigarette ends; no tobacco I shall marry you, dearest, and I shall bronze tray-very different to some gentlemen's ways as we get down for love you, Rowena, but I am willing to | "I don't like giving trouble if I can be taught; willing to learn. I am not anyway avoid it," he said, affably, "I would rather by half wait on myself. A low knock at the door silenced You'll accor a trifle, James, for this won its great reputation and exconducted him upstairs, entered, and tensive sale by its remarkable cures ada for High Grade Business Edulooked curiously from one to the other. of coughs, colds and croup. It can "Sir Thomas Hargrave's man has be depended upon. Sold by all dealers.

Continued on page 7.

FURNITURE UNDERTAKING

Oilcloths Rugs, Window Shades Lace Curtains and all Household Furnishings

New Stock just arrived and will be sold at the lowest living profit.

Undertaking receives special attention

EDWARD KRESS

CANADIAN PACIFIC UNEXCELLED TRAIN SERVICE

Fast Time and Attention to

Winnipeg Saskatoon Edmonton Regina Brandon Calgary Banff

Nelson Spokane Victoria Tacoma

Laggan Rossland Vancouver Seattle Portland Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars, Via Canada's Greatest

Highways. For reservation and information apply -R. MACFARLANE, - Durham

WATER! WATER!

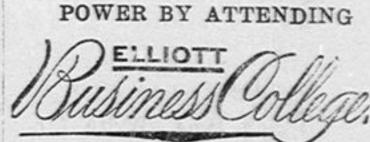

If you are in need of a supply it will pay you to consult the LOUISE WELL DRILLERS

Also Agents for the Baker Ball Bearing Direct Stroke and Back Geared Pumping Windmills, Pumps and Write and have us call on you. Satisfaction Guaranteed Your Patronage Solicited.

> PRATT BROS., LOUISE P. O.

INCREASE YOUR EARNING

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has Toronto Ont. Best place in Cancation. Enter now. Opan all year. Catalogue free.