CLASSIC CITY CHRONICLES.

At the time of writing, 15th, a heavy snow storm prevails, which is rapidly filling up streets, sidewalks and railroad tracks.

While passing through the depot recently your scribe came across Mr. John McQueen, of Druham. John is the same jolly Scotchman that he was when we attended the old red school in Boothville, in the seventies.

During the past three weeks, very successful revival services have been conducted in Knox church, under the very able leadership of Messrs. Gale and Col-lison, of Boston.

The senior Normal school students are writing on their final examinations just now. We trust success will crown their efforts after their strenuous work during the past six months.

We are pleased to learn that Miss Lizzie Aldcorn, of Swinton Park, has secured a fine situation at Cargill at a handsome salary.

Three terribly sudden deaths occurred here last week. One man, an employee at the G.T.R. shop, was killed almost instantly.

The Classic City is contributing its share of young men for the west. If the exodus continues, there will, in all probability, be a scarcity of young men for local demands.

Prospects for another railway are bright. A proposition will be submitted to the ratepayers shortly asking them to give the C.P.R. right of way through the city along the south side of the Avon river.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XII.—First Quarter, For March 24, 1912.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark ii, 13-22. Memory Verses, 16, 17—Golden Text, Mark ii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The call of Matthew, the first part of today's lesson, is found in Matthew and Luke, as well as in Mark. But the rest of the lesson, including Matthew's entertainment, and the parables of the new and old cloth and the new and old wine are found only in Mark and Luke.

Matthew the publican (Matt. x, 3), or Levi, as he is called by Mark and Luke, may have been turning to Christ in his heart, as probably Zaccheus did, while continuing with doubt in his unpopular calling and longing to be done with it.

The words of Jesus to them at this time are both a parable and its explanation, the parable being, "They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick," and His explanation of it, "I come not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance."

These words and those concerning the old and new cloth and wine are found also in Matt. ix, 10-17, and seemingly in the same connection as here, but according to the gospel harmony the record in Matthew referred to a later incident.

To associate the disciples of John and of the Pharisees seems like a very bad combine, but some of John's disciples were no doubt from the Pharisees and, like too many church folks of today, had not dropped their mere formalities. In Zech. vii we read that when the people inquired of the Lord as to whether they should continue certain fasts or not He asked them, "Did ye fast at all to Me, even to Me?"

There is much patchwork in the teaching of our day which is directly contrary to the teaching of our Lord concerning the necessity of a new birth. The old garment of our unrighteousness cannot be mended. It must be a new garment throughout, even the garment of Christ's righteousness which He has provided at such infinite cost (II Cor. v, 21; Rom. x, 4).

There is much patchwork in the teaching of our day which is directly contrary to the teaching of our Lord concerning the necessity of a new birth. The old garment of our unrighteousness cannot be mended. It must be a new garment throughout, even the garment of Christ's righteousness which He has provided at such infinite cost (II Cor. v, 21; Rom. x, 4).

However unpopular the doctrine may be, it is most plainly written that "the carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be" (Rom. viii, 7). Not a shred of Adam and Eve's fig leaf aprons could be tolerated. The coats of skins were all sufficient. We must sing from the heart the words of Isa. lxi, 10. The so called new thought or new theology will not do, for it is not of God and must therefore be from the adversary, who flatters man by telling him that he is all right and only needs some improvement, which he himself can easily accomplish.
