THE FOX-LADELL CONCERT

A very pleasing entertainment was given in the town hall Monday night, in the interests of the Boy Scouts. The entertainers for the occasion were Mr. George Fox, renowned violinist, whose ability is known all over Canada, and in many of the American cities. With him was Miss LaDell, a widely known and highly prized electrotonic artist. As a violinist Mr. Fox has few equals, and fewer superiors. He seemed to be in fine form on Monday, and the king of musical instruments fairly spoke under his most skillful manipulation. In Annie Laurie, and The Swanee River, the renderings were most entrancing, and a spellbound audience listened in perfect silence till the last notes were struck. Miss LaDell is a very pleasing entertainer, and was received with increasing popularity in each succeeding number. Her "Christmas Re-union at the Old Home" was a very fine selection, and splendidly executed. Miss LaDell excels in child mimicry being the best we ever heard in that line. The attendance was not as large as it should have been, owing to the fact that many were out of town for the holiday.

THE SILO A MEANS OF GRACE.

We do not mean grace in the sense that preachers use it. We might have said "a means of salvation," but we do not mean by salvation as the preachers use the word. We mean that the silo is a means for the growth of that kind of character that makes good farmers. We might say that it does more than that; it prevents certain feelings which sometimes finds expression in words not used in good society, and in this sense it certainly is a means of grace in the preacher's sense.

For example; if the farmer has a silo,—so that he can feed his cattle under cover in the worst storm that ever blew—he is likely to use better language than if, to get feed for his cattle, he has to go out to his field or shock corn in the snow a foot deep, or in regions where there has been no snow this winter, cut the butts of the corn stacks out of the ground before he can put them on the wagon. There is an awful temptation under these circumstances for a man to speak "unadvisedly with his lips." We know it from experience.

The man who has a good silo, when he comes to haul out the manure, is not likely to fall backwards when he tackles a long corn stalk, and finally pries a forkful loose. He is not likely to speak ungently in his endeavor to get an unruly steer to behave himself properly when a storm is coming up. We don't believe that any of the experiences of a man in handling corn fodder in the shock and feeding cattle are a means of grace.

The silo is therefore, even if we take it in an indirect way, a means of grace. In the summer season, when the grass is burned to a crisp as it was last summer, the pasture getting shorter and shorter every day, and the fly increasing in capacity to torment man and beast, the man with a silo who will feed his cattle in the daytime and let them stay in a dark barn during the hot weather, is likely to be a better man, even from the preacher's standpoint. He certainly will be better able to contribute when the contribution plate is passed, than where his cattle are shrinking in weight and in milk, simply because he has not silage to feed them.

Sooner or later a summer silo, and a winter silo will be regarded as a sort of term of admission or communion in the congregation of good farmers. It will help them to feed cattle during the winter with a much better chance of profit than ever before. Supplemented by clover or alfalfa hay, it will enable us to give a cow a balanced ration, and altogether from crops grown on the farm. It will enable farmers to reduce their pastures, or, if not to reduce them, to keep a greater number of head per acre, especially in dry seasons. It will make them happier, so far as prosperity affects happiness.—Wallaces' Farmer.

15 YEARS A DYSPEPTIC

Forced to Live on Stale Bread and Porridge.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HIM

AVONDALE, N. B., October, 15th.

"I have been a great sufferer from Indigestion for fifteen years. I was forced to deny myself all such hearty foods as beans, meats, potatoes and could not drink tea or coffee. For the past two years, I lived on porridge, stale bread, etc. I had treatment from two doctors, and tried nearly every kind of medicine, but got worse. Finally I saw a testimonial of "Fruit-a-tives" and concluded to give them a trial. I took nearly four boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" and they have made me feel like a new man. I can eat all kinds of hearty foods without suffering, and am no longer constipated."
