SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency, or Sub-agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties.—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties.—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

LOVE AND WAR.

A Walkerton gallant who was escorting a lady about the streets of Durham last week, was beset upon by one of her former lovers and pommelled in good shape. The trade-at-home idea has evidently got such a strong hold on the people of Durham that the girls there aren't even have an outside beau. Consequently the stranger who walks down street there with a home girl is liable to have to square matters with some home talent, as the Walkertonian discovered before he was through. The affair, however, was taken from the streets to the courts and the Durham brave was assessed $7.35 on Wednesday for the part he played in the love drama.—Herald-Times. The Telescope says: "The Durham youth who gave the young Walkertonian a severe trouncing, when in that town a week ago, appeared before a magistrate in Hanover on Thursday last, on assault, and was assessed one dollar and costs." Who was the young man from Durham?

RHUBARB

When first Mr. Rhubarb makes his appearance he is as a delicate youngster. He is slim in the legs and pale about the gills, and he tender and hectic flush. He is juicy, and costs, and there is a pink layer of him about as thick as a dollar bill between the plastic matter and the gummy coverlet of the alleged pie.

But by degrees he grows more robust. He gets red in the face, and chesty and tough. He will become vulgar and cheap, and your landlady will get all she can carry of him for five cents—a half a dime—the twentieth part of a dollar. Rhubarb is like chickenpox or the measles—we've all got to have it, we are the better for having it, but we don't want to have it all the time. We want to convalesce, so to speak. You should endeavor to impress on the female of your species, be she wife or landlady, that rhubarb is not a food—it is a spring medicine. It holds the place of distinction on the scroll of fame with sulphur-and-treacle, prickly ash, senna, and other medicinal vegetables which were planted at creation for the healing of the nations. The idea of putting spring medicine into a dumpling is outrageous. Surely, if the female of your species considered for a moment she wouldn't be so cruel. If you are a boozier, it is ten to one that the female of your species has surreptitiously administered a home treatment gold-cure to you, putting it in your tea or, if she can get her hands on it, your booze. This Lucretia Pinkham Borzita stuff can be bought by the quart at the corner grocery. It only makes you worse, for it sends you to the nearest saloon to get something—anything—that will take the taste out of your mouth. But you can't conceal rhubarb in a roly-poly. It's pink inside tells the tale.

Having taken your spring medicine as a stew, or incorporated in a so-called pie, roly-poly or dumpling, on the principle of a sugar-coated pill, it is time to call a halt. This thing can go on for a month at the very furthest, but then it's time for Mr. Rhubarb to go away back and sit down. To pass a crate of strawberries on the corner and go home to find rhubarb on the table has driven many a man to crime. There are prohibited hours for whiskey; there ought to be prohibited months for rhubarb. Rhubarb gets woody and stern. He should be used for fence palings, whiffletrees, axe-handles, and the like, but not as food.

Some people like to eat rhubarb raw. They peel the skin off it and eat it the same as if it was a banana or a carrot. But some folks will eat most anything. It's a wonder they don't get poisoned. Their stomachs must be lined with boiler-plate.

I have followed them around for hours expecting to see them drop dead; but no—it didn't seem to fizzle on them.

You are fortunate if in the dog days you have a rhubarb patch. A leaf in the crown of your hat will keep your brains cool.

THE KHAN.

There never was a time when people appreciated the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy more than now. This is shown by the increase in sales and voluntary testimonials from persons who have been cured by it. If you or your children are troubled with a cough or cold give it a trial and become acquainted with its good qualities. For sale by all dealers.

THE HIRED MAN

A great deal is being said and written about how to keep the hired man on the farm, and the problem is one that every farmer has to face. One of the great difficulties seems to rest in the fact that farm help is engaged only for the summer months, and allowed to go elsewhere for the winter. The chances are that they will go to towns and cities, where the work is permanent, or the opportunities are greater for getting a new job. Many a man goes to the city, not from choice, perhaps, at first, but from necessity, and soon he comes to look upon farming as a drudgery. Farming today is not the life of drudgery it was forty or fifty years ago, and living in the country is much cheaper than it is in towns and cities. If the hired man's position could be made more permanent, and homes could be provided for the married man, and his family, we believe the hired man difficulty would be largely overcome. The wages, too, will have to be increased, to keep pace with the increased wages paid to city and town laborers and artisans. To the farm laborer who sells his services for a few months, and then feels that he will have to seek employment elsewhere, the situation is not very inviting. Give the man work and wages for the whole year round, and it will not be so hard to keep him. Be satisfied with fair work for fair wages, and when work gets slack don't worry because the man happens to have an easy spell. Few men care to work for a slave driver, but most men are reasonable enough to make an extra effort for the employer who has a little give and take about him. We know the problem is a hard one to deal with, and it isn't going to get much better soon.

ORILLIA'S SHORT OF HOUSES.

A number of Orillia employees are thinking of petitioning the Grand Trunk to run an early morning train from Barrie to Orillia. They say houses are to be had in Barrie while they can't get any here, and if arrangements could be made to get here in the morning in time for work and back to Barrie in the evening, they would take a Parrie house until more were supplied here. The Barrie Board of Trade might co-operate and help the county town along.—Orillia News-Letter.

ANOTHER VIEW OF GEORGE.

A man but lately married went out to post a letter, and as the lamps had not been lit in the suburban road in which he dwelt, he could only dimly see his way. A short distance up the road he met, as he thought, his wife, who had been out to tea; and as he went past he just whispered: "All right my dear; I shall be with you in a minute."

Immediately after he had said these words, he saw the woman turn a horrified look upon him and then hurry away; and the idea occurred to him that it was not his wife at all, and that in the darkness he had made a mistake. He decided to say nothing about the matter, and quickly disappeared.

When he returned home, he found his wife awaiting him, and she at once greeted him with the words: "Oh, George, I have had such a frightful experience! I was just coming down the road when a man tried to stop me, and said: 'All right my dear; I shall be with you in a minute.' I ran home, found you were out, and I've been so much alarmed."

George was just about to explain when an idea came to him. "What sort of a man was it?" he asked.

"Oh," replied the young wife, "I saw him quite plainly, and a more villainous face I never beheld in my life. He was a perfect monster, with crime stamped on every feature."

George decided it was best to say nothing after all.—Boston Post.
