HARNESSING A SHARK.

Cruel Revenge That Has the Sanction of Immemorial Custom.

The shark's jaws are pried open to the fullest extent. A stout eight foot ANY PERSON who is the sole spar of tough timber, 4 by 4 inches in cross measurement, is fixed transversely far back in the angle of the jaw, the ends projecting on either side. A strong rope leading from the ends of the spar is drawn close and tightened with a clove hitch round the fish's tail behind the wide tail flukes. It is thus the sailor harnesses his enemy.

The clamp of the cruel jaws drives the two inch long teeth deep into the tough spar. The tight line holds it in place, and, struggle as he may, the shark fails to move the spar an inch from its position. As a finishing touch the sailor drew his knife blade across the shark's eyeballs and let him go.

Bitted and bridled, blinded, with fice in the New Hunter Block. The queer furnishings he bore er in good standing may pre-empt scared away others of his kind. Lonea quarter section alongside his ly and silent, he passed like Cain among the fishes till starvation and the sheer misery ended his existence.

Cruel? Of course it was. But surely, like the venomous snake, the shark has long put himself beyond the pale of human mercy. Soft hearted as he usually is, the sailor man has a long memory. The shark has followed for scores the sailor pays it to the full. Besides, the thing has the sanction of immemorial custom. It was some oid Phoenician, trading out of Tyre to the far Cassitorides, who probably first put the trick in practice.-Wide World Magazine.
