Of course the first day of 1912 was on Monday. April and July follow suit. February and August will start on Thursday; March and November come in on Friday. May will be the orly month beginning on Wednesday; June will start on Saturday; September and December on Sunday; October on Tuesday.

Almanac makers and people whose specialty is measuring time and unwinding the eternal dances of the midnight sky, "tell us that the length of day light differs according to its location. Thus, New York's longest day Deputy of the Minister of is fifteen hours. London has sixteen and one-half hours. Spitzbergen has three and a half months. Quito on the equator has its day and night equally divided.

Reduced to simple numbers we say that all years contain three hundred and sixty-five days. And unless one is a time specialist, one would say that all the years begin the first day of January. It depends on what kind of a year is considered. The lunar year, for example, has three hundred and fifty-four days, eight hours, fortyney round the earth twelve times. As you will readily see, the lunar year is eleven days shorter than the solar

One View of Modern Children.

Children are never children to themselves. From the standpoint of the grownup the real children we meet in these days are few and far between, To be a real child implies unconsciousness of one's superiority. The trouble with many of the children of Old Orchard, Me to-day is that they have discovered Portland, Me that they are superior. Their advantages are much greater than ours were, and they know it and they rub it in. The old-fashioned licking has gone out and with it the child. In his place is a vastly superior creature who is affable on being approached, condescending under continued contact and capable of any degree of cruelty if his dignity he ruffled.
