MONTREAL'S MEMORIAL.

City Selects Philippe Hebert's Statue of King Edward.

Great interest is being taken throughout art circles in Canada in Montreal's memorial to King Edward VII.

The successful competitor for the work was Mr. Philippe Hebert, C.M.A., the eminent French-Canadian sculptor who designed the Maison-neuve Monument in the Place d'Armes, Montreal; the Bishop Bourget Monument, Montreal; the Queen Victoria and Sir John A. Macdonald memorials on Parliament Hill, Ottawa; the Bishop Laval monument at Quebec; and many of the heroic statues that ornament the facade of the Legislative Buildings at the Ancient Capital.

Mr. Hebert's design calls for a monument 40 feet in height. The base, which will be carried up to a height of thirty feet, will be surmounted by a bronze statue of the late King, ten feet in height. His late Majesty will be seen in his Parliamentary, rather than his coronation, robes, but he will hold the sceptre, which is indicative of authority and power, and the state crown will rest upon a table at his side.

The pedestal of the memorial is suggestive of the Monumental and Decorative French Architecture of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and in outline is particularly pleasing to the eye.

The front of the pedestal is ornamented by a figure of Peace, who is represented in an attitude of confidence and quiet repose. The right hand, which is upraised, holds an olive branch (the emblem of peace) while the left carries a shield and sword, symbolical of armed peace, the security of modern nations.

The reverse of the pedestal carries a figure symbolical of the Spirit of Tolerance. Its upraised arm it holds aloft a fragment of a broken chain. The figure proclaims the liberty of conscience, the severance of the fetters of the past, and the triumph of a new era of harmony and fraternity in the Empire. It is beautiful in its conception.

On either side of the pedestal are two magnificent groups. That on the left typifies "Abundance." It shows in its entirety the elements of stability and wealth; instruction, preparing youth for a career of usefulness; agriculture, the inexhaustible source of strength and fertility; and industry—the field of activity and prosperity.

That on the right is allegorical of peace and concord among the various nationalities from which the population of Canada is drawn. It shows English, French, Irish and Scotch nationalities living in a common family, each united to the other by a common interest.

All the groups and figures which ornament the granite base will be cast in bronze, and in size will easily dominate anything of a like nature in Montreal.

Mr. Hebert is already at work on his magnificent undertaking, but it is not expected that the memorial will be completed and in place for upwards of two years. In the meantime the task of preparing Phyliss Square for the memorial will be undertaken by Mr. J. Frederick Todd, an expert landscape gardener. The square will be remodelled and its beauty will be immeasurably enhanced by the rearrangement of walks, flower beds and trees.

A model for the memorial was also submitted by Mr. G. W. Hill, A.R.C.A., of Montreal, who designed the South African memorial on Dominion Square.

Mr. Hill's design, which was rejected in favor of Mr. Hebert's, was quite a departure from tradition and differed from the others in almost every respect. It showed the late King vested in his coronation robes, wearing the state crown and holding the orb and sceptre, seated in the Chair of Homage he occupied during a portion of the coronation solemnity in Westminster Abbey. In front of the chair was a large plaza, the approach to which was guarded by two lions. Behind the chair, granite wall was raised, in which were set four extremely massive bas-reliefs depicting incidents in the King's life. At either side of this wall were groups of bronze statuary; behind the wall a fountain was displayed. The design was one worthy of the sculptor of the Strathcona memorial. In every respect, it was a beautiful work of art, and there is a widespread feeling of regret among artists that it was not chosen. One cannot help recalling the piteous plea of Mr. Walter Allward, the celebrated sculptor, that Canadian cities should not demand commonplace statues of a portly gentleman in the act of stepping off a high pillar.

Grasshoppers in Norfolk.

Robbing standing grain crops of all but the chaff, eating off whole bean fields and a number of farm gardens, and pesting young fruit trees by nibbling the new buds and cutting the tender stems, dense clouds of grasshoppers are playing havoc with parts of Norfolk county. Around Victoria the pest is worst, but in sections of Charlotteville, North and South Walsingham and Windham townships there are fields similarly afflicted, and heavy losses are being experienced by a large number of farmers. The districts where the soil is light and sandy are most seriously affected. The light sand belt that crosses Norfolk extends over part of Elgin county, and it is feared damage is being done there as well.

His Eightieth Birthday.

Chief Game Warden Tinsley of the Ontario Government Service, recently celebrated his eightieth birthday. Mr. Tinsley has held his present position for the past seventeen years, which he took after 38 years service on the Great Western and Grand Trunk Railways. It was on account of his expert knowledge of game, that he was made chief game warden.

Honey is Scarce.

Owing to the heavy losses in bees as a result of the past winter, which condition was shown by the spring report of the Provincial Apiarist, there is, no doubt, much less honey in Ontario than at this time last year.

WIVES.

New York, Oct. 8.—Cases where women have died or disappeared under suspicious circumstances shortly after they had been insured have become so numerous within the past few years that the insurance companies have passed a rule whereby a woman without property cannot insure her life in favor of her husband. Where the woman has no income of her own, the husband has nothing to lose but a good chance to get the insurance money, if he puts her out of the way.

LADY BRICKLAYERS.

Women bricklayers, plumbers and plasterers are to be graduated in due course of time from the Johnson Female Trade School, which will be located near Winfield Station, Greater New York. The school is to be the first of its kind in the country and will be erected by the Master Builders' Association at a cost of $50,000. Women will be taught all the details of the builders' craft, including the gentle pursuit of steam heating and steel work. It is said that already 60 women have been enrolled and more recruits are expected when the school opens on October 16 next. A similar school in Berlin has more than 300 students.
