THE SLEEPER OF OKUO.

Swedish Woman Who Spent Thirty-two Years in a Trance.

There have been several cases of long sleep quite apart from the celebrated persons of Ephesus and Rip Van Winkle. One of the most remarkable was the long sleep of a German Government official named Arnheim, who had an accident in which his head was injured in 1904, and falling asleep was still unconscious four years afterward, and may be sleeping still.

But the most interesting example was that of a woman, Caroline Olsson, living in the little island of Okuo, off the coast of Sweden, who fell asleep in 1875, and did not wake up till 1907. Dr. Froderstrom of the Saltpetriere Asylum in Paris has made a detailed examination of her experience, and now publishes the result of his enquiries in the asylum journal. It seems that "the sleeper of Okuo" was born in 1861. The first fourteen years of her life was passed in perfect health, although extraneous difficulties prevented her from attending school. It was not till just before her fourteenth birthday that she received any schooling. At the following Christmas she fell ill.

On the all eventful day she came home from the school, which was three miles off, and complained of toothache and indisposition, and was put to bed. A very few hours later she fell into a trance, uttered no word, seemed to hear nothing, and showed no trace of feeling anything when needles and such like things were run into her arms. For thirty years and more, according to her mother's evidence, Caroline remained in this condition without a sign of change. Only once in reply to the despairing cry of her mother for a prayer did she move her lips and say, "Jesus have mercy on me!"

Some three or four times did the invalid leave for a moment her bed, on which all the rest of the time she lay in a crouching posture with the bed-clothes drawn up over her head. It is said that her whole nourishment consisted of two cups of milk a day. When her mother died Caroline must have been conscious to some extent of the fact, for she burst into tears, though otherwise no change was noticeable in her condition. After the mother's death a brother undertook the charge of the sleeping girl and her food but after two years he was drowned, and this sad event occasioned a second violent fit of weeping.

The care of her then devolved upon a housekeeper, and Caroline seems to have shown more intelligence and sharpness in noticing her presence. It began to be noticed that her hair was always kept tidy and that her nails did not exceed the usual length. As the result of an experiment in leaving her alone for some hours of the day a suspicion arose that her trance could not have been so complete and unbroken as formerly. At last there was no doubt about it. Food disappeared mysteriously.

A few months later Caroline suddenly asked for her mother, and when her brothers hurried to her side she waded them away, saying, "You aren't my brothers; they were quite small." From that moment she was a different being. The trance had ceased and left her quite well and hearty. The most careful examination failed to reveal to the doctor the slightest trace of weakness or of mental defect. She remembered every detail of her early life, but showed a great reluctance to speak about her illness.—Hamburger Nachrichten.

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION FOR 1913.

The Youth's Companion appeals to every interest of family life, from housekeeping to athletics. It begins with stories of youthful vim and vigor, with articles which disclose the secrets of successful play in the great games, with charming tales of life at the girls' colleges. But The Companion does not surrender these readers when they have entered the more serious paths of life. Mothers will welcome the page for little children and the weekly doctor's article. Fathers will find the important news of the day as it is, and not as it is rumored to be. The entire household will appreciate the sketches which touch gently on common foibles or caricature eccentricity. In short, for less than five cents a week The Companion brings into the home clean entertainment, pure inspiration, fine ideals, increase of knowledge.

Names rarely seen in tables of contents will be found in The Companion's Announcement for 1913, which will be sent upon request—with samples of the paper, to those not familiar with it.

Every new subscriber for 1913 who sends $2.25 will receive free all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1912; also, free, The Companion Window Transparency and Calendar for 1913, in rich, translucent colors—the most beautiful of all Companion souvenirs.

CAT FALLS FOUR STORIES AND KEEPS NINE LIVES.

A cat jumped from the top of a four-story building at the corner of Richmond and King streets, Toronto, on Thursday, and beyond a severe shaking up is believed to be unhurt.

A dozen people who were waiting for cars or passing at the time saw the animal come hurtling through the air. All expected that it would be killed when it struck the cement sidewalk, but although apparently badly jarred the cat picked itself up and made its way slowly down King street and disappeared in a laneway.

SIGNS OF MATRIMONY.

(Baltimore American.)
"Are those two in front of us husband and wife?"
"I don't think so."
"What makes you think they are not?"
"Because when they met he raised his hat to her and then took her bundles to carry for her."

THE TWO EXTREMES.

Queer how politics will warp a man's judgment. A respectable and truthful Liberal told The Review that there were 20,000 people at the Laurier gathering in Mount Forest, and an equally decent Tory says there were about 2,500. Both were probably wrong in their estimates.—Harriston Review.

HAPPY THOUGHT

The "Heat-Where-You-Want-It" Idea

Sometimes a range is judged by its fancy trimmings—by the size of its firebox—by the number of holes, or the size of its oven—or by its general appearance.

All these things are important. But the most important for you to consider is:—What will the range you buy do for you?

What return in actual service will you get from the range itself and from every ounce of fuel you put into it?

Behind "Happy Thought" Ranges, you must remember, there is the experience of over twenty-five years—a quarter of a century of sustained effort to produce the best.

The aim of the makers has been from the first to produce a stove that will give the largest possible return in perfect service.

So you find to-day that the "Happy Thought" is not only the best for baking, but also for roasting, frying, grilling, broiling, stewing and all other forms of cooking.

A sane design proportions this range so that you have the heat at the holes or in the oven just where and when you want it, and in the volume you require.

A simple demonstration will prove this to you as it is already known to a Quarter Million Canadian women who use the "Happy Thought" every day.

ENTERTAINED AN ANGEL.

The Review entertained an angel unawares for a brief interval last Saturday. Some unknown person stole quietly into the hallway of our domicile and deposited a bag of potatoes and silently departed. As the fruit of the potato vine promises to be somewhat of a luxury this season our mysterious benefactor displayed extra generosity. Now if some agricultural santa claus would drop a couple of pumpkins down our chimney we'd be pretty well fixed.—Harriston Review.

AGRICULTURAL COURTSHIP.

A potato went out on the mash and And sought an onion bed.
"That's pie for me," observed the squash,
And all the beets turned red.
"Go away," the onion, weeping cried,
"Your love I cannot be.
The pumpkin be your lawful bride,
You cantaloupe with me!"
But onward still the tuber came
And laid down at her feet;
"You cauliflower by any name,
And it will smell as wheat;
And I, too, am an Early Rose,
And you I've come to see,
So don't turnip your lovely nose
But spinachat with me!"
"I do not carrot all to wed,
"So go, sir, if you please,"
The modest onion meekly said,
"And lettuce, pray, have peas;
Go, think that you have never seen
Or ever smelled my sigh.
Too long a maiden I have been
For favors in your eye!"
"Ah, spare a cuss," the tuber prayed,
"My cherrysbed bride you'll be;
You are the only weeping maid
That's currant now with me!"
And as the wily tuber spoke
He caught her by surprise
And giving her an artichoke
Devoured her with his eyes.

IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

Spinach and cucumbers make a tasty hot weather salad.
Toasted sandwiches are very tasty, especially on a cool night.
A slice of bacon or salt pork improves the flavor of any kind of greens.
Radishes boiled till tender, sliced and served with cream sauce are unusually good.
Cherries, huckleberries or peaches substituted for apples may be used in making a brown Betty with good effect.
By those who like the flavor of mint, a few sprigs added to the pitcher of iced tea will be appreciated.
Vegetables always have a more delicate flavor if cooked with little water. It is because of this that vegetables en casserole are particularly tasty.
Berries or lettuce leaves may be kept fresh over night by packing in a preserve jar and placing on the ice. The lettuce should be washed first. The berries should not be hulled or washed until ready to use.
A delicate frozen pudding is made by adding to a simple boiled custard, just before putting it into freezer, half a cupful of nuts, dates and figs.
