THOUGHT TRANSFERENCE.

Wireless Telegraphy May Point to the "Why" of Teledpathy.

Accepting teledpathy as an established fact, the problem remains—how are we to explain it? What is the mechanism by which one person is able to transmit messages directly and instantaneously to another person...

To this question it must frankly be admitted no positive answer can as yet be returned. But some interesting hypotheses have lately been advanced, not by mere theorists, but by eminent men of science...

Sir William Crookes, for example, calling attention to the marvelous but undisputed facts of the real vibration as evidenced by the phenomena of wireless telegraphy and the Roentgen rays, urges that here we have quite possibly an adequate explanation of the mystery of teledpathy...

"It seems to me," he suggests, "that these rays (the Roentgen rays) may have a possible way of transplanting intelligence which, with a few reasonable postulates, may supply the key to much that is obscure in physical research. Let it be assumed that these rays, or rays of even higher frequency, can pass into the brain and act on some nervous center there. Let it be conceived that the brain contains a center which uses these rays as the vocal chords use sound vibrations (both being under the command of intelligence) and sends them out with the velocity of light to impinge on the receiving ganglion of another brain. In this same way the phenomena of teledpathy and the transmission of intelligence through long distances seem to come into the domain of law and can be grasped."

This undoubtedly is the explanation that most strongly commends itself to those scientists who courageously acknowledge their belief in teledpathy. Nor do they see any objection to it in the fact that people apparently are affected by the telepathic impulse only at certain times, for the brain of both sender and receiver may conceivably, on the analogy of wireless telegraphy, be set to transmit and receive telepathic communications only when attuned to vibrations of a certain amplitude...

Modern Husbands. Lady Nevill in her reminiscences talks of the decadence of the day as reflected in the lives of women. "The fact is," she says, "that in a great many cases modern woman—in England, I mean—is spoiled. Many have no interests and too much time on their hands, with the result that they will take up some fad. As for the well to do, a great number of them now seem to completely dominate their husbands. This struck the old shah of Persia very much. "It seems to me," said he, "that an English or American husband is nothing better than a sort of butler."

Lincoln Joited Seward. Uncle Billy Green of Illinois was Lincoln's partner in the grocery at Salem. At night, when customers were few, he held the grammar while Lincoln recited his lessons. At Lincoln's first inaugural banquet Green sat at the table on the president's left, with the dignified Secretary Seward on the right. Lincoln presented the two men to each other, saying, "Secretary Seward, this is Mr Green of Illinois." Seward bowed stiffly, when Lincoln exclaimed: "Oh, get up, Seward, and shake hands with Green. He's the man that taught me my grammar."—Kansas City Star.

Four Days in the Year. There are but four days in the year when the sun and clock exactly correspond. In other words, there are but four days of the 365 in which the sun is directly south at noon. On these four days and none else in the year The sun and clock both the same time declare.

Business Humor. Here is a rare specimen of business humor received the other day by a London firm. It ran: "Our cashier fell unconscious at his desk this morning. Up to this time, 4 p. m., we have been unable to get a word out of him except your names. May we say to him, with a view to his immediate recovery, that we have your check, as we think that is what is on his mind?"—Pearson's Weekly.

Man and Woman. "Man, composed of clay, is silent and ponderous," preached Jean Raullin in the fifteenth century, "but woman gives evidence of her osseous origin by the rattle she keeps up. Move a sack of earth and it makes no noise; touch a bag of bones and you are deafened with the clitter clatter."
