HEPWORTH MAN IS CHARGED WITH A SERIOUS CRIME.
 James Doyle, aged 22 years, of Hepworth, was taken through Hanover on Thursday last to the Walkerton jail. He was committed for trial on the grave charge of incest with his sixteen-year-old sister, an infant being born on February 5th. The case was reported by a local man to the neglected children's department of the Ontario Government, and Inspector Gunton was sent up to investigate. He found conditions in the Doyle home of the most deplorable character. The family were living in a log house, and seven persons were sleeping in one room 12 by 14 feet. An older unmarried sister had got into trouble five years ago. The mother has been dead six years. Doyle was taken to Walkerton by constable Curry. Inspector Gunton unearthed another bad case at Alliston a few days ago in which a grave crime is alleged to have been committed against a nine-year-old girl by an old man over 70 years of age. He has been sent up for trial at Barrie.—Post.

HARRISTON AN AWFUL PLACE
 The following despatch from Harriston, dated March 10th, appeared in Tuesday's London Free Press: The fragments of a night feast and the empty receptacles of the feast found recently in the basement and furnace room of more than one place of worship and educational building. Led to enquiries and the subsequent arrest of John Donegan, and the wife of a respectable and industrious citizen. They appeared before magistrate Spotton, charged with vagrancy. The pair, according to the woman, have been staying at nights in the places mentioned, they being possessed of the keys to admit them. The woman is the mother of a family of six children, but for the past three weeks has forsaken her home and obtained food for herself and her paramour on her husband's credit. Donegan pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to six months in the county jail. The woman was allowed to go on condition that she would return to her husband and family, they being willing to receive her.

HOBBLE SKIRTS ARE TIGHTER THAN EVER.
 According to a London fashion expert who has just returned from Paris, the dressmakers of that city are proposing not merely to revive the hobble skirt, but to make it tighter than ever, so that women will be almost unable to walk in it. This London expert says:
 "The skirts I saw in Paris were so tight around the legs that the dressers could scarcely walk. The dresses are frightfully ugly. In some cases they are draped up some inches in front or on the side to allow the feet some little movement, and are arranged with folds of the material in drapings around the thigh and tapering to the ankles.
 "This draped hobble is more insidious than the plain hobble skirt. It has deceived everybody because the fashion prophesies led women to believe that the hobble skirt was dead, that folds and drapery were coming in, and, therefore, that the skirts are bound to be fuller, and that more material would be used. The extra material, however, is used in draping the bodice, and around the hips, and leaves but a wispsness of skirt around the ankles.

 "In very many cases, skirts are so narrow, even in tailor-made costumes, that they must be split in 'directoire' fashion up to the knee, or even above, either in the side or in the front. In many cases, buttons and button-holes allow the wearer to determine how long the slit shall be."
 "Almost all the new Parisian skirts are slit—they must be," said another Londoner back from the French capital.

A SHREWD ECCENTRIC.
 There is a wealthy man, well known in the mountains of Kentucky, who, being asked where he resided, as a witness in court, answered, "Three, four miles up and down Jonathan Creek." The judge was about to fine him for contempt, when it developed that the witness spoke literal truth. He lives neither in house or camp, but perambulates his large estate, and when night comes lies down wherever he may happen to be. In winter he has been known to go where some of his pigs bedded in the woods, usurp the middle for himself and borrow comfort from their bodily heat.
 This man is worth over a hundred thousand dollars. He visited the world's fairs at Chicago and St. Louis, wearing the old long coat that serves him also as a blanket, and carrying his rations in a sack. Far from being demoted, he is notoriously so shrewd on the stand, and so learned in the law that he is formidable to every attorney who cross-questions him.
