NOVELTIES IN FIREWORKS.

Moving Pictures in fireworks are surely the newest thing in Pyrotechnics. And the newest thing in all lines are served at the Canadian National Exhibition. Among the motion pictures framed in fire that are on the bill are a threshing machine, with wheels running and grain pouring from the spout, an auto fire engine that runs so fast it crashes into an automobile, and flying machines. Add to these the changing illumination, the colored balloons, the exploding bombs the soaring rockets, the massive golden fountains and dispersing radiating batteries, and you have fireworks that will more varied and more wonderful than anything ever before presented at the Canadian National.

ELEPHANTS OF THE SEA.

Discovery of Colony of Giant Seals.
Thought To Be Extinct.
Naturalists all over the world are greatly interested just now in a beach some 400 yards long by 30 in width on the isolated Island of Guadalupe. Here on this remote and uninhabited island, lying in the Pacific Ocean, 140 miles off northern Mexico, has been discovered the onlyookery left and the last standhold on the western continent of the northern elephant seal. This is the largest of all seals, and is thought to have disappeared, and likewise one of the most remarkable marine mammals existing to-day.

Aside from its great size, 16 feet and more, the chief feature of interest of these animals is centered in the strange appearance of the head, caused by an elephant-like trunk or snout, measuring in the adult males nearly a foot or more in length.
Being valuable for its oil, the elephant seal was killed in large numbers for commercial purposes until it was thought to be practically extinct. The oil is worth about 50 cents a gallon. A 6-foot elephant seal is said to yield from 200 to 250 gallons of oil.

The most striking and remarkable feature of this animal, and from which it takes its name, is a curious elongated trunk or snout, which attains a length equal to the remainder of the head. This thick and heavy appendage has a length of 10 inches or more forward from the canine teeth and is fibrous and fleshy throughout. When fully expanded it exhibits three bulging transverse folds on top separated by deep grooves. The trunk is not capable of inflation, but is retracted into heavy folds on top of the head by muscular action. This snout is somewhat protuberant, but when not elongated hangs in a pendulous fashion over the mouth; when sleeping it rests upon the sands, a shapeless mass.

In fighting, the large males crawl slowly and laboriously within striking distance, and then, rearing on the front flippers and drawing in the heavy pendant proboscis into wrinkled folds well up on top of the snout, strike at each other's necks with their large canine teeth. This is accompanied with more or less noise and snorting.
In fighting, the proboscis is closely retracted and the seal is apparently successful in keeping it out of harm's way, as many of the animals with badly damaged necks were found to have trunks showing no injury whatever. The fighting is not of a fatal or desperate sort, and the contestants soon separate.

One of the curious features developed for protection in their beach battles is a "shield" covering the part of the animal mostly exposed to attack when fighting. This extends from the throat just below the base of the jaws down to the level of the flippers and rather more than half way back on each side of the neck and breast. The skin is greatly thickened, practically hairless, and years of fighting has given it an exceedingly rough and calloused surface, producing an armored breast plate.

Centenarians of the Nations.

Although scientists assure us that there is no physiological reason why the average healthy man or woman should not live to be a hundred, centenarians are so rare that most people have never seen one.
A German statistician recently compiled figures showing that of the 58,000,000 people, or thereabout, who inhabit the Kaiser's empire, less than a hundred are more than a hundred years old.

The same authority reports 146 centenarians in England, 213 in France and 410 in Spain. On the whole, it would seem that where life is less strenuous longevity increases.

The most astonishing figures come from that troublesome and turbulent region, the Balkan peninsula, where it might have been supposed that life is less secure than elsewhere in Europe.
Serbia reports 573 people who are a hundred years old or more; Roumania 1,084, and Bulgaria no fewer than 3,880. In other words, Bulgaria boasts 1 centenarian to every 1,000 of its inhabitants.

The Strength of Granite.

Granite is two and two-thirds times as heavy as water; its specific gravity is 2.663. A cubic yard of granite weighs exactly three-quarters of a ton. The strength of granite is tremendous, although the different granites vary greatly. Poor granites will withstand a pressure of 18,000 pounds to the square inch in good, where grained granite will withstand 30,000 pounds; but certain Wisconsin granites have withstood a crushing pressure of 43,733 pounds to the square inch—22 tons' weight resting on a tiny cube not much larger than a lump of sugar.

Some Note.

"Oh, par! Algernon has asked me to marry him!"
"The nervy pup! What has he ever done to deserve you?"
"Well, Algernon is a writer of some note."
"If that so? Can you convince me of that?"
"Sure. Here is the note!"

Fingers and Chemicals.

Fingers can be protected against stains while handling chemicals by coating them with a wax made by melting white wax and adding to each ounce of it while melted a dram of olive oil.

Wise Ostrich.

The ostrich is not such a fool as it appears. It buries its head in the sand when pursued by its foes because, when it does so, its body resembles the ant hills which surround it, and thus it escapes observation.
