MEN—YOU NEED NERVE

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early indiscretions and excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weak, flimsy, mentally, physically and sexually. How do you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, weak before the eyes with dark circles under them, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, listless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

This is the condition our New Method Treatment is GUARANTEED TO CURE. We have treated Diseases of Men for almost a lifetime and do not have to experiment. Consult us FREE OF CHARGE and we will tell you whether you are curable or not. We guarantee curable cases of NERVOUS DEBILITY, VARICOSE VEINS, BLOOD AND SKIN DISEASES, GLEET, BLADDER URINARY AND KIDNEY COMPLAINTS. Free Booklet on Diseases of Men. If unable to call write for QUESTION LIST FOR HOME TREATMENT

An Old School Dominie.

I examined the contents of the satchel of a schoolboy of tender years the other day and found it to contain sixteen books of study. The textbooks covered a wide curriculum, and the perusal of them awakened in me sympathy for the schoolboy, together with a feeling of thankfulness that my own schooldays had been passed in a more stern if less strenuous age, when tasks were more in evidence than textbooks. I mentioned this subject to an old highlander whose schooldays date away back to the "hungry forties," and he assured me that in those days he trudged to school with a Bible in one oxtail and a peat for the schoolroom fire in the other. The Bible was the only book possessed by each of the scholars, and it had to serve for all purposes. As a reading book place names occurred which baffled alike the tongues of schoolmaster and pupils to pronounce. The master never was known to admit defeat, however, for, recognizing that "discretion is the better part of valor," he would extricate a halting reader by observing sagely: "Pass it on, my lad. Ye'll never be there."—Glasgow News.

They Both Wore Beards.

"It's a strain in bindery work not to make mistakes," a girl worker told Mary Van Kleeck, the author of "Women in the Bookbinding Trade." "A book is easily spoiled. I know a girl that put a picture of Longfellow in a copy of 'As You Like It.' Nobody knew it until she looked in another girl's book that had a picture of Shakespeare." "Well," she said, "that doesn't look like the picture I pasted. He was a funny looking man, but not as funny as that."

The reader who has come to a full stop in the middle of a book or of a magazine article because the "signatures" are mixed may be in no forgiving mood with the girl who doesn't know Longfellow's beard from Shakespeare's, but he may have some sympathy with the fatigue and monotony of factory work. Another girl put it tersely: "When you do one thing all day you lose the feeling in your fingers. You are likely to pick up two sheets at a time."

The Future of the Windmill.

The great possibilities of the windmill of the future, as outlined by scientists, reads like a fairy tale. It will be and is now used not only to irrigate millions of acres of desert land, but it can be used to produce electric power, which can be stored away and kept for future use in lighting the house, cooking, heating and furnishing the water supply. Even the weekly washing and ironing may be done by means of the windmill. Among other ideas suggested by scientists is the establishment along all the roads in the country of electrical windmill storage places where any one driving a motor car may stop, drop a coin in the slot, replenish the supply and keep on going. In fact, the possibilities of this latest adaptation of the windmill are so great as to make an enumeration of the many things for which it may be used almost impossible.—London Opinion.

When the Sea Was Fresh Water.

The ocean was once merely brackish and not salt, as it is now. This was when the earth was in its first youth and before there was any land showing at all or any animal life in the water. At this time the water was gradually cooling from its original state of steam, and the salts were slowly undergoing the change from gases into solids. Then came the appearance of land and later on rivers, which gradually washed down more and more salts, while at the bottom of the ocean itself chemical action was constantly adding more brine to the waters. At present it is estimated that there are in the world's oceans 7,000,000 cubic miles of salt, and the most astonishing thing about it is that if all the salt could be taken out in a moment the level of the water would not drop one single inch.

Queer Name for a Flower.

Every one knows that wild flowers are known in various districts by local appellations. Some of them are pretty, many are curious, others merely quaint. But there is one pretty wild flower, the ordinary white arbutus, below of bees, a low growing flower which edges many garden paths. At Guildford, in Surrey, England, it is known as "welcome home the husband be he never so drunk." The origin of the name is not apparent. It is believed to have gained the name because the flower shines out so white at night.

Nothing but Work.

One very well known character at Oxford used to say that modern undergraduates were sadly inferior to their predecessors, who had constantly employed him when they went out with gun or rod. "There's a very idle set of gentlemen at the university nowadays," he said. "They never shoot; they never goes a-fishing. They does nothing—nothing but read, read, read from morning till night."

To the Point.

"That was a very appropriate remark the jockey made when they pulled him from under his mount when it stumbled and fell on him."

"What was the remark?"

"This is a horse on me."—Baltimore American.

Modern Dancing.

Clara—They say that one evening's dance is equivalent to walking ten miles. Maud—That was the old style. Now it's equivalent to climbing about 100 trees.—Life.

Patience is the most necessary thing in this world.—Confucius.

Oldham Likes Its Fun.

While Oldham cannot claim to have any one of the twenty-two biggest cotton mills in England, it is the premier cotton town for all that, since it is pretty safe to say that it has more cotton mills to the square mile than any other town in the world. The Oldham people are peculiar. They are steady and thrifty while they work, but bent on pleasure, they want all they can get on the annual holiday at Blackpool. An Oldham family was returning from the annual holiday at Blackpool, and one of the daughters told the mother that they ought to have stayed another day.

"We couldn't, lass," said the mother. "T' brass is all done."

"Well," retorted the undutiful daughter, "it's all thy fault. I told thee to sell 't' clock ere we started, and thou can't say as I didn't."

And this anecdote is a true illustration of the Oldham character, too, for it has been estimated that in one week of the year Oldhamers spend something like £300,000, about 12 per head of the population. That is the week of "Oldham Wakes," when the mills stop working and everybody chases pleasure.—London Globe.

Loie Fuller and Dumas Fils.

Loie Fuller was dancing at Les Folies Bergere, in Paris, when a friend from Haiti, M. Eugene Pouille, arrived in Paris and offered to take her to see Dumas at Marly. She tells about it in "Fifteen Years of a Dancer's Life."

"During the journey in the railway carriage M. Pouille taught me a French phrase which I was to say when Dumas extended his hand—'Je suis tres contente de serer votre main' (I am delighted to grasp your hand). And, of course, when the psychological moment arrived I phrased the words all askew. Instead of taking one of his hands I grasped both, and emphatically and with stress on each word I said: 'Je suis tres contente de votre main serree' (I am delighted with your close fistted hand). I did not understand his reply, but my friend later on told me that Dumas had replied, 'My hand is not close fistted, but I know what you mean, child. * * * and I open my heart and my hand in your service.'"

Habit of Formation.

Psychologists who have studied the subject tell us that in the psychology of success—success won by a man's own efforts—there are always two periods. There is the period of struggle. Every man who amounts to anything wins his way at first by will power and sheer endeavor. He has to use all his energy to climb the hard places determinedly, to fight and persevere. At first the battle is exhausting and often seems hopeless. But the thing to do is to hold on, day by day, through this first period. Then comes the period of habit formation. When the will has insisted upon certain acts or thoughts over and over again a path, so to speak, is cleared in the mind. Daily travel sets in over this path, and a habit is formed. Soon the thing that was so hard becomes easier and easier. The new method of thinking or acting becomes organized and solidified.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Correcting Family Speech.

A Cleveland man who makes a practice of choosing his words with care, a practice which he has endeavored to instill into the family circle, made a memorandum of the misused words uttered by his son and daughter during a recent breakfast. Here is the result:

Elegant, nineteen times.
Awful, eleven times.
Dandy, six times.
Pierce, four times.
Great, two times.

When the meal was over the head of the household called the family around him in the library and gravely read the totals to them.

"Gee, that's fierce!" said the son.

"Isn't it awful!" said the daughter.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Stage Money.

Stage money—that is, money of no value off the stage—is first said to have been used by David Garrick in the eighteenth century. The money is said to have been made by the wealthy actor-manager so as to look actually actor-manager money. There was little mone-like real money. There was little mone-like real money. There was little mone-like real money, especially among actors.

Much More So.

"Is there anything more exasperating," asks an exchange, "than a bureau drawer that has constitutional objections to closing up after it has been opened?" Yea, verily, brother—to wit, a bureau drawer that has constitutional objections to being opened after it's been closed.—Chicago News.

Supremely Exasperating.

"Don't you think Mrs. Spurrell has an awful temper?"

"She has, but can you blame the poor woman? She has a husband who just absolutely won't get mad at all."

Dear, Indeed!

"The dear, dear girls!" exclaimed Mrs. Pawkins, looking at her fashionable daughters enthusiastically.

"Yes, the dear, dear girls!" muttered Mr. Pawkins despondently.

Had to Confess.

Wife—Do you mean to tell me you lost $2 at cards? Husband—I don't mean to tell you, but I may as well. You'll find it out anyway.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

No man rejoiceth safely unless he bath within him the testimony of a good conscience.—Thomas a Kempis.

"A Perfect Woman Nobly Planned To Warn, to Comfort and Command"

Nature never intended woman to be delicate, ailing, or a sufferer from "nerves." Women in middle age complain of "hot flashes." Many women suffer needlessly from girlish to womanhood, and from motherhood to middle life, with backache, or headache, dizziness, faintness, or hearing-down sensations. For a permanent relief from these distressing symptoms nothing is so good as

as a soothing and strengthening nerve—alays and subdues nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, and other distressing symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the feminine organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

The "Favorite Prescription" is known everywhere and for over 40 years as the standard remedy for the diseases of women. Your dealer in medicines sells it in liquid or tablet form; or you can send 50 cent stamps for a trial box of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription tablets. Address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

BINDER TWINE

It was the manufacture of Plymouth Binder Twine in Welland that started that town to boom, and the using of Plymouth Binder Twine will create such a pleasant feeling, that every farmer that uses it will start booming everything around the farm.

We are the only people in Durham, that sell this excellent Binder Twine, and you should not lose any time in placing your order for your season's supply. Every farmer that has ever used Plymouth Binder Twine, knows its quality, and other farmers are finding it out very fast, consequently we are supplying a great number of farmers with their twine.

Make Us Prove It

We dare not exaggerate to you. We are dependent upon your patronage. To get it we must have your trust and confidence. We make the following statements with a full understanding of what they mean to us. You are safe when you believe in these statements.

For the Bowels

If you only knew as much as we and those who have used them know about Rexall Orderlies, you would be as enthusiastic about recommending them as we are. They taste just like candy. They act so easily and so pleasantly that the taking of them is a pleasure.

Even children like Rexall Orderlies; and you know that if a medicine appeals to a child, it will appeal to grown-ups.

Rexall Orderlies

help chase gloom, dispel blues and make you feel happy by their splendid tonic, cleansing and strengthening effect upon the bowels. — They act to free the system — and keep it free from the distress and ill feeling that naturally results from irregular and inactive bowels.

Rexall Orderlies do this quietly, without griping or causing nausea, purging or excessive looseness. They act to overcome and remove the cause

We do not ask you to take our word for this. We want you to make us prove it, and at no cost to you.

Buy a box of Rexall Orderlies at your store. Use them once, or use up the whole box. Then, if you are not thoroughly satisfied, just come back empty handed and tell us. Without obligating you or questioning you we will return the money you paid us for them.

Doesn't that indicate that Rexall Orderlies are at least worthy of trial? Doesn't it prove our faith in them? Doesn't it merit your confidence? Could any offer be more fair to you?

We particularly recommend Rexall Orderlies for children, delicate and aged persons. Rexall Orderlies come in convenient vest-pocket size tin boxes, 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c.

CAUTION: Please bear in mind that Rexall Orderlies are not sold by all drug stores. You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at the Rexall Stores. You can buy Rexall Orderlies in this community only at our store:
