ADVENTURE

Her trilling laughter smote upon his reverie and he stepped to the screen door, through which he could see her running down the path to the beach. At her heels ran two of her sailors, Papehara and Mahameme, in scarlet lava-lavas, with naked sheath knives gleaming in their belts. It was another sample of her wilfulness. Despite entreaties and commands, and warnings of the dangers from sharks, she persisted in swimming at any and all times, and by special preference, it seemed to him, immediately after eating.

He watched her take the water, diving cleanly like a boy, from the end of the little pier, and he watched her strike out, with single overhead stroke, her henchmen swimming a dozen feet your partner, that's all. You'll drive me into buying Pari-Sulay yet."

"All the more reason"—he attempted.

"Do you know what I'll do?" she demanded. "I'll find some man in the Solomons who won't want to protect me."

Sheldon could not conceal the shock her words gave him.

"You don't mean that, you know," he pleaded.

"I do; I really do. I am sick and tired of this protection dodge. Don't forget for a moment that I am perfectly able to take care of myself. Besides, I have eight of the best protectors in the world—my sailors. You were living like a savage when I came along and found you—eating nothing but tinned meat and scones that would have ruined the digestion of a camel. Anyway, I've remedied that, and since we are to be partners, it will stay remedied. You won't die of malnutrition, be sure of that."

"If we enter into partnership," he announced, "it must be thoroughly understood that you are not allowed to run the schooner. You can go down to Sydney and buy her, but a skipper we must have."

"At so much additional expense and most likely a whiskey drinking, irresponsible and incapable man to boot. Besides, I'd have the business more at heart than any man we could hire. As for capability, I tell you I can sail all around the average broken captain or promoted able seaman you find in the south seas. And you know I am a navigator."

"But being my partner," he said coolly, "makes you none the less a lady."

"Thank you for telling me that my contemplated conduct is unladylike."

She arose, tears of anger and mortification in her eyes, and went over to the phonograph.

"I wonder if all men are as ridiculous as you?" she said.

He shrugged his shoulders and smiled. Discussion was useless—he had learned that; and he was resolved to keep his temper. And before the day was out she capitulated. She was to go to Sydney on the first steamer, purchase the schooner, and sail back with an island skipper on board. And then she inveigled Sheldon into agreeing that she could take occasional cruises in the islands, though he was adamant when it came to a recruiting trip on Malaita. That was the one thing barred.

And after it was all over, and a terse and businesslike agreement (by her urging) drawn up and signed, Sheldon paced up and down for a full hour, meditating upon how many different kinds of a fool he had made of himself.

He had never seen a more independent woman who stood more in need of a protector than this boy minded girl who had landed on his beach with eight picturesque savages, a long barreled revolver, a bag of gold, and a gaudy merchandise of imagined romance and adventure.

He had never read of anything to compare with it. He smoked cigarette after cigarette. Satan, back from a prow around the compound, ran up to him and touched his hand with a cold, damp nose. Sheldon caressed the animal's ears, then threw himself into a chair and laughed heartily. What would the commissioner of the Solomons think? What would his people at home think? And in the one breath he was glad that the partnership had been effected and sorry that Joan Lackland had ever come to the Solomons. Then he went inside and looked at himself in a hand mirror. He studied the reflection long and thoughtfully and wonderingly.

RIVERDALE.

Harvesting is about wound up in this part, and the hum of the threshing is heard. Robt. McArthur started at Jas. Atkinson's this Monday afternoon.

Among those leaving for the West on Monday's excursion were Mr. John Weir, for Eibow, Sask., and Mrs. Thos. Collier, for Tisdale, Sask.

Among the contingent that left Durham to attend the Hanover Model school last week were three from this part, Miss Victoria Aljoe, Mr. E. McGirr and Mr. Alex. Bea.

Miss Mary Whitmore visited with her sister, Mrs. Robt. Wells, Allan Park, last week.

Mr. Chas. Newell, of Rock Mills, spent over the week end at his home here.

Misses Annie and Eva Atkinson accompanied by Mr. Josepa Patterson, spent Sunday with friends at Vickers.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Wells, of Allan Park, spent Sunday evening with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Whitmore.

Mr. Wm. Andrews' new barn, to replace the one burned by lightning last summer, is about completed. Mr. Wm. Haas had the contract, and made a first-class job.

We are sorry to hear of the recent affliction that has befallen Mrs. John Davis, she having gone totally blind. Cataracts on her eyes are the cause.

Mr. Jos. Atkinson happened with an accident last Monday that will lay him up for a while. While cradling some oats, he made a slip, and the cradle blade struck him on the leg, making a nasty wound.

Mr. W. S. Gunsalus, a farmer living near Fleming, Pa., says he has used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in his family for fourteen years, and that he has found it to be an excellent remedy, and takes pleasure in recommending it. For sale by all dealers.
