Lesson VII. - Second Quarter, May 14, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xiii, 13-52. Memory Verses, 45, 46 - Golden Text, Acts xiii, 47 - Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

When they crossed over to the mainland from Cyprus John left them and returned to Jerusalem (verse 13). We are not told why, but it made trouble later even between such friends as Barnabas and Paul (chapter xv, 39-40). It is a relief to read in what was probably Paul's last letter, "Take Mark and bring him with thee, for he is profitable to me for the ministry" (I Tim. iv, 11). John Mark, having left them, Paul and Barnabas kept on their way to Antioch, in Pisidia, and our lesson today is Paul's Sabbath day talk in the synagogue there, which was followed the next Sabbath by a talk to a very large company of gentiles. It is said that almost the whole city came together to hear the word of God (verse 44). The Jews, seeing Paul get the crowd that next Sunday, were filled with envy and contradicted Paul's teaching and blasphemed. Then the apostle said boldly, "Seeing you put it from you, we turn to the gentiles." And he quoted a prophecy concerning the final gathering of the gentiles to the Lord at His coming and kingdom (Isa. xlii, 6; xliii, 6), for, as one has said, prophecy has many a germinant accomplishment throughout the ages, while the complete fulfillment is yet in the future.

As the gentiles heard the glad tidings many believed, and the word of the Lord was published throughout all that region (verses 45-49). The expression, "as many as were ordained to eternal life believed" (verse 48), is another way of saying, "All that the Father giveth me shall come to me" (John vi, 37). This is not the age of winning the world to Christ, but of gathering out from the world those whom the Father has given to the Son to be His bride. All should hear the offer of salvation, and whosoever will may receive Him, but He knows who will come. The adversary became so stirred by Christ being thus exalted that the Jews and chief men and devout and honorable women persecuted Paul and Barnabas and expelled them out of their coasts. Therefore they departed and came unto Iconium, but the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost. The word of the Lord will always accomplish His pleasure and never return to Him void, but to some it will bring life and to others death (Isa. lv, 11; I Cor. ii, 15, 16).

We will give the rest of our time to a consideration of some things in this great sermon of Paul's at Antioch, and we notice first that four times he speaks of the resurrection of Christ (verses 23, 30, 33, 37), the all important truth of the gospel, quoting from Ps. ii and xvi and Isa. lv concerning it and referring to the sure mercies of David, which David himself called an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things and sure (II Sam. xxiii, 5). All failure is ours, but God is faithful, and His purposes cannot fail. David in his last hours felt that he had come far short, but he rested all on the faithfulness of God and His sure, everlasting covenant. We saw in our recent study in I Cor. xv the importance of the resurrection of Christ, and in Him, the risen, living one, shall every promise to Abraham and David be fulfilled (Matt. i, 1; Rev. xxii, 16).

Speaking to Jews Paul always called their attention to God's purpose concerning Israel, and on this occasion he began with their deliverance from Egypt and followed on through the wilderness, the times of the judges and the reign of the first two kings, Saul and David. And that brought him to the promise to David concerning the Messiah and His kingdom and to the assertion that this Jesus who had been crucified by the Jews, but raised from the dead by God the Father, was indeed the Messiah of Israel. He referred to John the Baptist's testimony concerning Him as the Messiah who had fulfilled all that the prophets had said concerning His sufferings and that He would as truly fulfill in due time all that had been predicted concerning His kingdom and glory (verses 16-37). Since their Messiah had actually come and been rejected what could now be done? Was there any hope for any one? Then he proclaimed through Jesus Christ the forgiveness of sins for all who would receive Him as the crucified and risen one, assuring them that He would come again to restore all things of which the prophets had spoken, be a light to all nations through Israel and bring salvation to the ends of the earth (verses 38, 39, 47).

The Jews would naturally be stirred to enmity and wrath by the accusation that they were guilty of the rejection of their Messiah, and the gentiles would be glad to hear that there was salvation even for them and a part in His kingdom and glory. Compare chapters iii, 19-21; iv, 12; Isa. lx, 1-3; lxii, 1, 2. And be sure for yourself, O reader of these lines, that you have in Him, by His precious blood, the eternal redemption, the forgiveness of sins, which He has purchased at such infinite cost for all who will receive Him. Then when He shall come in His glory to set up His kingdom of peace on earth you shall be with Him and share His kingdom and glory (Col. iii, 4; Rev. v, 9, 10).

ONTARIO PRODUCES MOST GRAIN CROP TOTALS

Grain Yields of Old Province Make Canada Prosperous—Many Ten-Acre Fields Count Up

The agricultural supremacy of Western Canada is strongly challenged by Dr. George O. Creelman, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, wherever the head of the Guelph institution goes. His remarks are interesting to the firmest believer in the west and also to the banking interests of the country. "They may talk as they like of the importance of the west, but let Ontario have a real crop failure for just once, and the bankers and financial men and manufacturers and the whole country will learn for good that Ontario is still the backbone of the Dominion," says Dr. Creelman. "Something is a half-crop in Ontario every year, but the other crops save the day. Even in grain production Ontario leads and will continue to lead all four western provinces put together."

Mixed Farming is Sacred Dr. Creelman insists that mixed or diversified, as he calls it, farming puts Ontario in front. "There cannot be a complete failure of Ontario's crops, even of her grain crop. Her situation, almost surrounded by great lakes and rivers assures a sufficiency of moisture over a large portion of her southern peninsula and this precludes the possibility of anything like a total failure. Her eggs are not all one basket, less and less so each year." Addressing the members of the Provincial Legislature the president of the Provincial College of Agriculture issued a special warning against being stampeded by the talk of bankers about the West and good times.

Why One Beats Four "The bankers and transportation interests begin to rejoice whenever the crop reports from the West are good," he said. "But remember that good times for the majority of Canadians and for the Dominion as a whole are not dependent upon the West any more than half as much as upon Old Man Ontario's crops. In amount and value Ontario's grain crop is greater than the combined production of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. The figures tell the tale and diversity of products are the secret. Do not let them fool you into believing that their bank deposits depend upon the West but upon the profits and savings of thrifty, canny old Ontario and her enormous number of small, well-worked farms. In the aggregate the ten-acre grain fields of Western Ontario and the St. Lawrence Valley excel and will long continue to excel the prairies in quantity of grain product and outdistance the west in total quantity and value of all farm products."

INSIDE BASEBALL

The Game is Said to Have Been Invented by Gleason

J. C. Kofoed, writing in the Baseball Magazine, claims that "Kid" Gleason originated inside baseball 20 years ago while he was captain of the New York Giants. Kofoed says: "The Giants and Anson's Chicago Colts were fighting it out. In the eighth inning, with the score 9 to 6 in favor of the Giants, the Colts filled the bases with two out, and Jimmy Ryan at bat. In those days Ryan was one of the greatest sluggers, and a long hit then was bound to tie the score. Gleason, ever alert, saw that the comparatively weak hitting Decker was next at bat. He ran over to Joutet Meekin, who was on the slab, and whispered something in his ear. Meekin seemed amazed, but called Catcher Wilson, and the three had a conference, with Gleason doing most of the talking. Then to the astonishment of everyone, Meekin deliberately pitched four balls so wide of the plate that Ryan had not a chance to touch any of them. A moment later he fanned Decker, winning the game. It was the first time on record that a twirler deliberately passed a man (forcing in a run) to take a chance on a weaker hitter."

Can't Disguise Walk

A man's walk is as peculiar to himself as his personal appearance is. So much a part of himself is a man's way of walking, indeed, that it is most difficult to disguise. Many a fugitive from justice who has completely altered his ordinary appearance has been betrayed by his walk. The peculiar gait of many people often indicates their occupation. The policeman, the soldier, and the sailor each has his peculiar walk which betrays him.

SERMONS IN SENTENCES

By Gordon V. Thompson

You owe the world a life; the world owes you a living—pay up! Some people forget all about the "go" in gospel. A good habit is just as powerful to lift a man skyward as a bad habit is to drag him hellward. Stop this side of trouble. Reputation is the bank's estimate; character is God's estimate. Tell me what you think and I'll tell you what you are. God wrote three books, nature, man, Bible. Study them all. Common sense is most uncommon, especially in religion. Put more week-day enthusiasm into your Sunday and more piety into your week days. Class and caste are not of God. Hitch your wagon to a star, but not a falling star.

GORDON V. THOMPSON

Less time before the looking glass and more before the book would be better for some women. I believe the problems of labor and capital can best be solved by a mutual idea of service. Conversion means changing one's life from the take to the give plan. It is the 1 in front of the 1,000,000 that gives it value—be a 1 and not an 0. Anyone can be nothing. Don't stifle ambition; re-direct it. Sins of omission are more common than sins of commission but less frequently meet with admission. The greatest sins are indifference, inaction and ingratitude. Repentance is a result and not a cause. Man's sin plus the realization of God's goodness equals repentance. Might is not always right, but right is finally might.

GRUMBLE DOESN'T CURE

People See Too Many Wrongs to Right Any

In these days there are innumerable things that go wrong. They have to be borne, but one's suffering is often rendered all the more acute by the person who informs one that all these things might be set right in the twinkling of an eye if people were only sensible or as energetic as himself. There is undoubtedly a great deal wrong that we shall be remarkably foolish to let have the chance of ever going wrong again. We have to see that they are right in future. But the wholesale grumbler and omniscient individual is not the person who will bring about that happy result. He simply scatters irritation and disgust around, and there his activity ends. He exhausts all the energy he had in the process. "I feel sure," once said a newly-wedded wife to John Strange Winter, "that our home will be a real model in time." Her eyes glistened with expectation of that happy time. "John"—that was her husband—"is wonderful at finding out what's wrong—wonderful."

How Eggs are Spoiled

Eggs not only spoil by the transpiration of their moisture, and the putrid fermentation of their contents in consequence of air penetrating the pores of the shell, but also by being moved about and jostled when carried a distance by train or otherwise. Any rough motion ruptures the membranes which keep the white, yolk and germ of the chick in their appropriate places, and upon these becoming mixed putrefaction soon follows.

The Sky for May

By REV. D. B. MARSH, Sc. D., F.R.A.S., Holstein, Ontario

Mercury.—The planet Mercury reaches greatest elongation, 21 degrees, 43 minutes E. on the 12th inst. A favorable time to see this planet is a few days before and after elongation, and should be seen by the naked eye on the 12th just after sunset. Look carefully about 15 degrees northwest of sunset and about 15 degrees above the horizon.

Venus.—A beautiful evening star all this month. On the 27th it will be the brightest. Its close conjunction with the moon on the 6th was beautiful. The planet now is hardly half full.

Mars.—On the 15th Mars will be 121 millions of miles from us and will have a stellar magnitude of 0.9. It is in Leo, not far from Regulus.

Jupiter.—Jupiter crosses the meridian at 9.51 a.m., hence a morning star.

Saturn.—Saturn is a beautiful object with the telescope up till 11 o'clock at night.

The Sun.—Just now the Sun is quite spotted, considerable agitation going on.

A cablegram from Copenhagen announces the discovery of a planet by Prof. Wolf at Konigsstuhl, in the following position: April 27.—R. A. 12h., 40 m., 16; Declination above 2 degrees, 24 m.

This object had a cometary appearance and had a daily motion in R. A. below 32 S., declination above 5. Visible in a large telescope.

UNLUCKY.

"I'm unlucky." "What's the matter now?" "Everything goes against me. Say! If I were five miles from home at a party and the last trolley had gone, and there were sixty-five men there and as many automobiles in front of the place, not one of the bunch would be going my way."

THE COMING GREATNESS

Greatness will always be greatness. But the reason of mankind is going to see presently that greatness is founded on worth and power earned by a man's own brain and sweat, not through the sweat and brain of his forbears.—Eden Phillips.
