Northern Business College

A School with a Record of Useful Service

OWEN SOUND, ONT.

Courses of Study

On November 1st, 1881, the Northern Business College was established by the present Principal, C. A. Fleming, at Owen Sound, and its record of 35 years of faithful training of young men and women for business life is unparalleled in Canada.

From a school started in a very small way 35 years ago, the Northern Business College grew rapidly until it is recognized as a leader in the Dominion.

Principal C. A. Fleming, who personally directs the courses of instruction, is a Fellow of the Institute of Chartered Accountants and is known throughout Canada as one of the leading men in the profession.

The management of the Northern Business College many years ago realized the need of first-class accommodation and proper environment in order to do the best work.

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

The white paper situation might be relieved if the government would dispense with the publication of unnecessary blue books.—Windsor Record.

By calling President Wilson an eloquent ostrich, Teddy Roosevelt must have a notion that he's a great hand at swallowing notes.—Belleville Ontario.

Even if it costs more, as labor department statistics show, to live in Ontario than in any other province in the Dominion, do not worry. It is certainly worth it.—Peterborough Review.

Someone says that all good Conservative editors are to be made honorary colonels. No doubt us folks on the Opposition side will be expected to tip 'em a salute.—London Advertiser.

They do tell now that farmers are killing off the chickens because it costs too much to feed them. "An egg a day or your neck" will be the barnyard slogan from now on.—Guelph Mercury.

The fact that women who get franchise do not herd together politically is the best possible argument in favor of the claim that they are as well qualified to vote as the men are.—Peterborough Review.

Pinchback suits are the latest for men, and will, no doubt, suit the slender chaps. As for the others, no doubt the high prices for foodstuffs are calculated to produce the pinch-front models.—

Everything that supplies energy to the working man is going out of the reach of his purse. Everything that is needed for winter comfort in his home is going farther and still farther away from him.—Belleville Ontario.

Is there any chance of political peace in Canada, as a preliminary to a coalition government? Not much. And yet without it one sees little chance of making further recruiting a pronounced success.—Kingston Whig.

The "heckler" is generally a nuisance at a political meeting—to the party holding it. But his suppression would be a distinct loss—as they say of the departure of an esteemed citizen—to the gaiety of elections.—Hamilton Spectator.

Tommy Church must loom large in the minds of some Toronto youngsters, when one child, in reply to a question of a teacher as to who the candidates were in the United States, got the answer, "Woodrow Wilson and Tommy Church."

A poor old Toronto man who died in a Sarnia hospital stated that his wandering was due to not being allowed to smoke in the house. This has ever been a fruitful source of much domestic nagging.—Belleville Intelligencer.

The only thing that prevented Canada from having daylight-saving this year was the unwillingness of Ottawa to displease the railroad barons. And now, in the light of England's experience, we are able to learn what Canada missed.—Simcoe Reformer.

Toronto is great on contrasts. Sunday night a Presbyterian minister in his pulpit utterances strongly opposed compulsory drill for the schools, while a Labor leader was demanding national conscription in a recruiting address in one of the theatres.—St. Thomas Journal.

Merchants who are paying 100 to 500 per cent. more for their wrapping paper will be able to sympathize with the newspaper publishers, whose raw material is practically paper alone. It may be difficult to establish the fact that a combiner exists among the paper manufacturers of Canada, but no one seriously doubts it.—St. Thomas Journal.

C. L. GRANT

The special letter of Pope Benedict XV. to the Canadian bishops on the bilingual question is a masterpiece of consecrated common sense. It is to be hoped that it will be carefully studied by the malcontents at Ottawa, who disregard the law of the land, and invoke mob law to vindicate their fancied "rights."—Hamilton Spec-

Every woman knows it's easier to coax a man than drive a nail Most women are as modest as the styles will permit. You may have noticed that easy money is difficult to retain. A fussy wife says the most annoying thing in a house, next to a man, is a fly.
