COST OF MAKING NEWSPAPERS.

The cry of the publisher becomes more insistent. The increasing cost of almost everything that enters into the making of newspapers bids fair to sweep the one-cent newspaper out of existence. Many papers in the United States and Canada that have built up great circulations at a price of one cent to the reader have been happy one took place in the pretty compelled to put their rate for casual sales up to two cents, and to increas subscription rates to four, five, an in some cases six dollars a year. All sisters, and niece of Mr. Ranold Marthe Ottawa papers, morning and evening, are now on a two-cent basis.

The Ottawa Citizen has recently an alyzed the increases in the cost of the raw materials required in the production of a daily paper, and gives the results in these words:

"Making a newspaper is a complicated business, and the list of ingredients in this commercial pudding may prove surprising to many. Rubber, drugs, carbolic acid, felt, cotton, glycerine, gum arabic, and metals of all this outside the white paper, ink, quinsy. the paste, and the wrappers. Some increases in the price of these lngredients may serve to convey an idea cost of white paper is 53 per cent. onable to assume that the advertising ing. columns cannot be expected to carry all the greatly increased cost of making newspapers. The only other source of revenue the publisher has is the subscriber. Where increases in subscription rates have been made, he appears to have taken them reasonably, recognizing that even at four or five dollars a year, his daily paper is still better value for the money than almost any other necessary of life. ## LIFE OF A DROVER

Driving Cattle One Thousand Miles no Sinecure

To take a mob of a thousand fat steers over a thousand miles of all sorts of country, and bring them into market in prime condition, is a business involving a great deal of responsibility and care, for, although cattle are generally traveled at the owner's risk, of course the drover's reputation depends upon the order in which his cattle reach the end of the journey. A good drover is always in requisition, and the wages of a head man in She-They must be engaged. That's charge of a mob are generally about Looking at these figures, it is reas- her fourth dance with him this even- $20 a week. It is a dog's life, too, a drover's. From daylight to dark he is on horseback, exposed to all kinds of weather, crawling along behind his cattle at the slowest possible rate that is consistent with moving at all. If he averages between four and five miles a day on a long journey it is quite as fast as his cattle ought to travel. Every day the man in charge rides ahead of the mob to pick a place for them to camp at night. Water, of course, is a sine qua non, and he must have reliable information as to the state of the road for a hundred miles ahead of him, or he will get his cattle into a terrible fix. Every night the cattle have to be rounded up, and watched on the camp the whole night long. A drover never gets more than four hours' sleep at a stretch, and he is lucky if he can get that for the first month his cattle are on the road.—Farmer's Advocate.
