OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL

Have you got a patch of ground on which a garden might be made? Have you got a pig, a chicken, or a cow? Have you tested out your muscle with a bright and busy spade? If you haven't done so, are you learning now? If you're over-old or young to go where shells are on their way, or if the doctor labels you unfit; if you can't pick up a rifle and go forward to the fray, There is still a chance for you to do your bit.

There is still a chance for service which can never be denied, though you can't be marching when your country calls. A uniform, we know, is now the Nation's greatest pride. But there's dignity in common overalls. When a soldier is selected, we must see that he is fed. And we want to have him dressed in clothes that fit; though we cannot all be heroes, everyone can go ahead. There is sure to be a chance to do your bit.

ON ACCOUNT OF THE WAR

John Brown cannot pay me the money he owes, The cook wants ten dollars a week or she goes. "On account of the war" The baker reduces the weight of his bread. The butcher sends steaks that could muster as lead. The tailor's wool suits are of shoddy instead. "On account of the war" The tinner can't patch up my roof where it leaks. "On account of the war" The car that I bought will not come for six weeks. "On account of the war" The cost of my shoes mounts each time that I buy. The prices on drugs are prodigiously high. But when I demur I receive the reply. "On account of the war" And what can I do when they airily say. "On account of the war" What else can I do but obligingly pay. "On account of the war" Yes, often I wonder what some folks will do. When all of the world with its warfare is through. And they can no longer pass by in review. "On account of the war" —Brattleboro Reformer.

ANOTHER SOLDIER WRITES

The following letter, under date of May 17th, was received last week by Mr. A. H. Jackson, and shows that some of the boys, at least, receive the parcels sent them through the Durham Tobacco Fund: Mr. A. H. Jackson, Durham, Ont. Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the parcel of tobacco and chocolate sent by you, and must say it is so helpful to know that the people at home are so thoughtful of the boys here. I am sure I only express the opinion of the boys here when I say that we owe much to the kindness of those at home. I cannot attempt a letter, as news is very scarce. I was very pleased to see Nat Grierson and John Hopkins, who came over to look me up to-day. Both are looking well, and in good spirits. I have nothing to say about myself, unless that I am quite well, and getting along o.k. Really must close this time. Thanking you kindly, I remain, Yours truly, James G. Coutts.

POISONED BY A GERMAN

A despatch from Sunderland says: "Pte. Herb. Colcutt, of Brock twp. died from the effects of poison administered to him while suffering from a minor wound in a hospital in France. The poison was applied to his wound by a German girl in disguise, according to a letter received by his father. "The lad's father, F.R. Colcutt, is a farmer living near Wilford. He received a message from Ottawa some weeks ago that his son was slightly wounded. Following this, a second message announced his death in a hospital in France. Simultaneously, a letter was received from the son, stating that his wound was very slight, and he expected soon to be in the lines. Ottawa had no further information to offer, and the parents were naturally perplexed, until a letter arrived last week from the doctor in charge of the hospital giving an explanation of the untimely death of the young soldier. "He said Pte. Colcutt was admitted to the hospital suffering from a slight wound but was poisoned by a German girl who had successfully disguised herself as an allied nurse. Her identity was detected by a wounded officer, to whom she also administered poison by placing it in the wound. She admitted having poisoned between 100 and 200 men.

It in addition provides the traveller with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety First," with up-to-date equipment, unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars, in a word, everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

WHAT MOUNTED POLICE HAVE DONE FOR WEST

Forty-three years ago, three divisions of the newly-formed Mounted Police left Toronto by train by way of Chicago and St. Paul for Western Canada, to take up their duties of policing the great north-west territory. Three divisions which had passed the winter at the old stone fort, near Winnipeg, marched out to meet the new detachment, and together they began their long march to patrol the district northward to the Rocky Mountains. "Whiskey runners," who stirred up the Indians, cattle rustlers and other outlaws, kept the Mounted Police busy for a time, but finally by their determined efforts to enforce law in the new country, the territory became as safe for habitation as a well-policed city. The march westward of the Mounted Police is said to be the longest on record of a force carrying its own supplies. The men travelled 1,959 miles, carrying plows and harrows, driving cattle, provisions, ox-carts and wagons, and arms and ammunition for the posts to be established in the west.

NOTED NATIONALIST REPORTED KILLED

A despatch from London says: The news that Major Wm. Redmond has been killed on the battlefield in France will cause genuine regret both in England and Ireland. He was one of the most brilliant men of the Nationalist party, and while an uncompromising advocate of home rule, he was one of the most popular men of parliament and the country. Among his friends, and even many of his most bitter political opponents, this popularity was enhanced when on the outbreak of the war he wholeheartedly supported the cause of the allies and at the first opportunity sought and secured a commission in an Irish regiment, although well over the age limit. He had risen to the rank of major. After Major Redmond's regiment went to France, he made few appearances in the House of Commons.

Talking of Wings.

W. G. Massarene, a New York architect, who is Irish, even if his name doesn't sound so, tells a yarn of a green yokel where a so-called trance-medium was holding a spiritualistic seance. When the operator asked whether anyone present cared to communicate with a loved one in the other world, the youth stated that he would like to have words with his father, who had died a few months before, he said. Ensued a series of supposed manifestations, and then from the depths of the black cabinet a squeaky voice spoke. "Is that you, paw," asked the youth, apparently not recognizing the voice. "Yes, my son," answered the ghostly parent. "Are you in heaven, paw?" "Yes, my son, I am in heaven." "Are you happy, paw?" "Very happy, my son." "Are you an angel, paw?" "Yes, I am an angel." "A regular angel with wings, and everything?" "Yes." A pause followed. It was broken by the countryman. "Say, paw," he asked, "what do you measure from tip to tip?"

TORONTO LIBERALS FAVOR CONSCRIPTION

Monday's Mail and Empire, on writing editorially on a meeting of Liberals in Massey Hall, says: "The hall was crowded with citizens of the right stamp, and the speeches were of the right spirit. The message of Conscription was well delivered and well received. . . . It was a Liberal meeting on the question of Conscription, but there was hardly any reference to Liberalism, so intent were the speakers and audience on the great question of the hour, Conscription."

Referring to the speech of Dr. Michael Clark, it goes on to say: "The speeches of Dr. Michael Clark are always fine performances. On Saturday night, he spoke with his usual pith, power and polish, and with a passion of patriotism that was well suited to the occasion and to the audience. It was simply his own thoughts he had to offer, and they were given, as he said, without fear and without reserve. The Conscription he believes in is the organization and mobilization of everything of man power, material power and moral power—for the winning of the war. He considers Canada to be bound to the pledge of its premier to send a minimum of 500,000 men to France. He wants no referendum, nor does he think this is the time for holding a general election. . . . He has made up his mind, he says, to support the Government of the day, if that is at all possible. By doing so, he may, he says, find himself opposing his revered and honored leader. On purely personal grounds, he would much regret that but personal grounds in these times he regards as but dust in the balance. They are not to be compared with loyalty to the flag, with human liberty and public grounds. "Sir Wilfrid Laurier," he said, "shall follow his own conscience, and neither he, nor anyone else, shall keep mine."

In referring to Mr. Rowell's address on the same occasion, The Mail and Empire says: "Mr. Rowell made an excellent speech in which he declared himself unreservedly for Conscription. Like Dr. Clarke, he believes that the wealth of the nation should be organized for war service, as well as the man-power of the nation. That can be no two opinions on that point. Another matter that had been emphasized by Dr. Clark, viz., that organized labor had gallantly responded to the call for men, was touched on by Mr. Rowell, who pointed out that about 65 per cent. of the men enlisted are classed as manual workers. Neither he nor any other speaker made reference to inflammatory utterances or disturbances of anti-conscriptionists in Quebec. On the contrary, racial discord, or undue attention to such manifestations was deprecated."

The Guelph Mercury tells the following story, which helps to explain the scarcity of help on Ontario farms. Of course, it must not be concluded from this story that the farmer in the case is representative. The trouble is that there are enough such characters to give the farmers bad reputations as employers: "A young lad about 15 years old walked into the police station at Guelph the other morning just after the arrival of the train from the north, and asked for assistance to continue his journey to Toronto. He stated that his home was in that city, and that he had been working for a farmer near Alma. Some time ago, he and some other boys were sent from Toronto to work on farms. He was escorted as far as Elmira, where he was told to stop at the hotel over night, and he would be called for the next morning by the farmer for whom he was to work. His employer called for him, and took him to his farm near Alma. He was to receive $1.80 a week. At the end of the first week he received only $1.10, the balance being deducted for his night's lodging at the Elmira hotel. The boy's working hours were from four in the morning until seven at night, and he got so played out in a short time he had to tell the man he would have to go home. The generous farmer supplied him with 70 cents, which was just enough to bring him to Guelph, where he arrived without any money. After telling his tale to Chief Randall, the latter said he would see that he got home."

PEACE COMET IN JULY

Another comet, which is described as "the most astonishing and wonderful of all phenomena" is coming. By July of this year it will be visible to the naked eye. A German, Prof. Wolf, of Heidelberg, is responsible for the 1917 "peace comet" and he first discovered it on April 27, 1916. The American observatories have now sighted it and have cabled both the stations in Canada and to the Greenwich observatory. The "peace comet" is travelling at the rate of 131 miles a second, or over 1,134,000 miles per day, and this is its first appearance for 60,000 years. The Toronto officials, though they have heard of the comet's approach, very much doubt that it appears but every 60,000 years, considering the rate at which it travels. It is exceptionally large, and the nearest point reached by it to the earth will be 104,000,000 miles, so it is not likely to outshine the brilliant comet of 1882.

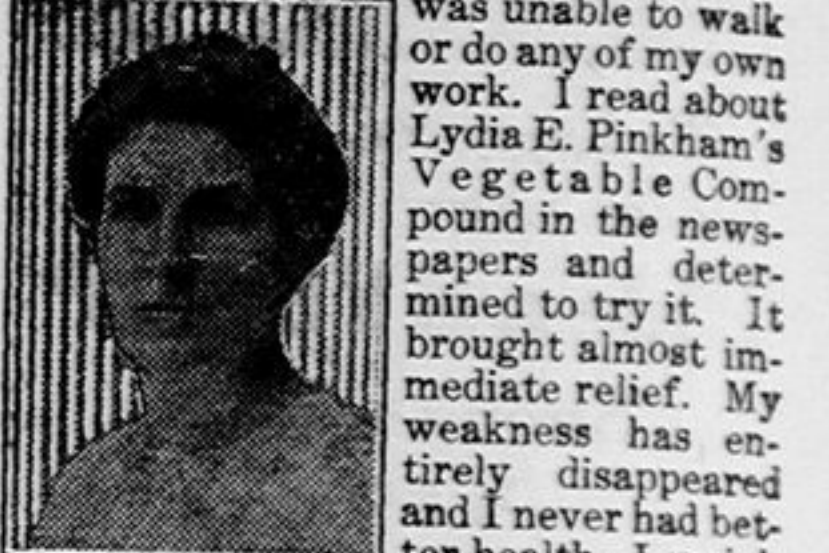

THE WESTERN FAIR

September 7th to 15th. The prize list of London's popular Exhibition has just been issued and will be of great interest especially to intending Exhibitors. In these strenuous times the pressing need seems to be greater production. The management of the Exhibition having this in mind have this year generously added $2,000.00 to their Prize List in order to encourage the Farmers and Breeders to produce more and better Live Stock, Grains, Roots, etc. This amount which has been distributed throughout the list will certainly make it a most attractive one as it brings the list up near the $30,000 point. Send to the Secretary, A.M. Hunt, London, Ont., for a Prize List or any information regarding the Exhibition.

WOMAN SICK TWO YEARS

Could Do No Work. Now Strong as a Man.

Chicago, Ill.—"For about two years I suffered from a female trouble so I was unable to walk or do any of my own work. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and determined to try it. It brought almost immediate relief. My weakness has entirely disappeared and I never had better health. I weigh 165 pounds and am as strong as a man. I think money is well spent which purchases Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOS. O'BRYAN, 1755 Newport Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

SIR JULIAN BIDS CANADIANS FAREWELL

A despatch by Stewart Lyon from Canadian Headquarters in France, says: The Canadians in France are no longer "the Byng boys." Sir Julian Byng bade good-by to his associates at headquarters yesterday (the 9th of June). Before his departure the corps commander issued a special order, in which he said: "In bidding good-by to the corps I find it very difficult to give expression to the feelings of pride and affection which dominate all other sentiments. During the year of my command, the unvarying success in battle, the progress in training, and in discipline and the unswerving devotion and loyalty of all ranks are features which stand out prominently in the history of the corps. That history will last forever, and my association with you in the making of it is a joy that can never be impaired."

The men in the ranks, as well as the officers, with whom he was more intimately associated, regret deeply his departure from the command of Canada's field forces.

The raid of Saturday morning, it is now known, resulted in the infliction of far more serious losses on the enemy than at first estimated, while our casualties were relatively light, considering the number of men engaged and the depth to which the enemy's position was penetrated. In one section of the front, it is stated in the official report, thirty dead were counted and twelve prisoners were taken by our men, whose losses were only two killed and five wounded. If the enemy loss along the entire front was in the same proportion to ours on this small portion, the raid must have cost the Germans more casualties than any affair on this part of the line since the battle of Vimy Ridge.

A new method of warfare, used by the Canadians for the first time, was the projection, before the assault, of two hundred drums of burning oil into part of the enemy front.
