TRAVEL HUMOURS IN SUNNY SPAIN

From Sombra North to Sunny South, Spain Shows a Wide Variety Both of Scenery and People

"Spain and Russia," says Hamilton Fyle in the London Daily Mail, "are the two most interesting countries left in Europe for the traveller who enjoys the humour of life. They are so different from the rest. In Madrid I look out of my window on to one of the finest open squares in the city. I see among the motors and electric street cars carts drawn by huge, slow-moving oxen, strings of mules, boys and men riding on donkeys, flocks of little black sheep, herds of woolly red pigs. The oddest mingling of old and new. Spain is a country that offers so wide a variety of scenery, of people, of food, of everything. As you travel you see all kinds of landscape. In the north the prevailing note is one of sombre reserve. In the south all is colour and gay, laughing sunshine. The same difference marks off the Castilian, grave and proud, from the chattering, smiling, quick-tempered Andalusian, always ready to make friends."

Rice and Snails; Delicious

"Thea, if you are wise and eat the food of the people in preference to the imitation food which is served in hotels, you find that many districts have their own special dishes. There is the Valencia 'paella,' for example, a stew of rice with meat and snails and shrimps, a most appetising mixture served in a wide pan taken straight off the fire. Malaga has its 'boquerones' fried anchovies, delicious. Cartagena smacks its lips over 'octopus.' All through Spain 'puchero,' or national stew, is good, with special flavours in different parts.

HERO OF BROKE'S BATTLE.

Seaman Kirkham Intends to Go Back to Farming.

In 1908 a Bernardo boy landed in Canada, a stranger in a strange land. He is now back in Toronto, a hero whose name has been flashed by cable all over the world, and the picture of whose exploit formed the double-page feature of one of the great illustrated weekly magazines of London which are circulated wherever the English people have spread. At nineteen years of age he had been recommended for the Distinguished Conduct Medal.

On April 20 last his Majesty's ship "Broke," in company with the "Swift," encountered six German torpedo boats. They both made a dash at the enemy and the "Broke" succeeded in ramming one of them. Her bows entered into the side of the German ship, making a great gash in her plates, and while entangled in this position a boarding party of Huns leaped on to the "Broke's" forward deck. The crew on the "Broke's" forward gun fought them off, and the former barrel boy was there.

LEADING Seaman Lawrence Kirkham

Kirkham is his name and ranking now. He served his time on the farm of W. B. Wilkinson, at Ripley, Ontario, and later worked on a farm near Hamilton. Some time after the opening of the war, his British blood and breeding impelled him to enlist. He applied to the infantry, but was refused on account of his eyesight. When the recruiting office for the British navy was opened here, he saw another opportunity and succeeded in his effort to enlist there. Last January he was shipped away. Now he is back—six months of active service, but a world of experience.

When the Germans swarmed down on the deck of the "Broke" the gun crew were alone to bear the shock of the attack.

"Six others and myself," said Seaman Kirkham, "fought them with revolvers from behind the steel gun shield for twenty minutes, but as we could not drive them off we took our sidearms and went out after them. There was a pretty warm time for a while, then those who were not killed jumped into the sea at the point of our side-arms. I myself went too near the railing and fell overboard. I was in the sea for twenty-nine hours, when I was picked up by a fishing smack off Dover. I had two life-belts on, and was unconscious when I reached Dover, and afterwards spent some time in the hospital. The wound in the hand I received when holding up my hand to signal that the gun was fired."

Kirkham was wounded in the hip as well as the hand, and has been discharged from the navy. He will go back to the farm, he says.

A Notable Battalion.

The Toronto Regiment, 3rd Battalion, which left Toronto at the first call in August, 1914, is adding to its hard-won early laurels, according to information trickling back from France. The battalion took an honorable part both in the capture of Vimy Ridge and subsequently in the capture of Fresnoy. At Vimy two battalions of the 1st Brigade made the initial attack and the other two battalions advancing immediately after were given a set of objectives beyond those captured in the first advance. The 3rd Battalion was in the second pair. It is reported that it reached all its objectives and pushed half a mile beyond. For that day's operations eighteen officers and men were named for honors, but a sad feature is that seven of the eighteen were a few days later killed at Fresnoy.

A pleasing incident in the battalion's life occurred on June 13th, when a box of wood sorrel arrived from a Toronto lady. A spray was distributed to each of the men. This they wore in their caps to celebrate the re-capture of Mount Sorrel in the Ypres salient on June 13th of last year.

The battalion's official mascot is the shape of a goat, which has been with the unit for more than a year, is reported to be still alive and well.

Was With French Army.

Word has been received at Ottawa of the death in action of a well-known French-Canadian journalist, Mr. Paul Caron, who, at the outbreak of war, was a member of the staff of Le Devoir, the organ of Henri Bourassa. Mr. Caron, although a native-born Canadian, when hostilities were declared sailed directly to France and enlisted in Paris with the Foreign Legion. For his gallantry in that famous battalion he was promoted and sent to a French Military College. After receiving his commission he joined the French army, and was one of the few, if not the only, native Canadian in the ranks of the army of the republic. He was killed April 16, on the opening day of the French offensive. His closest relative is a sister, who is a well-known French-Canadian writer.

It is a unique fact that Le Devoir has sent more men to the front than any other French newspaper, and has a record equal to that of many of the large English-speaking newspapers.

A nephew of Bourassa, Jean Chauvin, an orphan, who has been a ward of the Nationalist leader, and who has been on the editorial staff of Le Devoir for the past two years, left for France recently, with the object of joining his fellow-newspaperman, Paul Caron. He did not know then of his death.

Shells for Confetti.

When the wedding took place at Brompton, London, of Alexander Ogilvie McMurtry of the Canadian artillery, and Isabel Dora Strathy, both of Montreal, it was solemnized amidst the noises of shells, which were endeavoring to repel the air raiders then bombarding London.

China, which is believed to have the greatest deposits of iron ore in the world, is beginning to export pig iron.

Keep the hired man and keep the stock rather than sell the stock and "sack" the man.

THE LATE DAVID BROWN

On July 31st, David Brown passed away after a prolonged illness, at the age of 54 years and one day. He was born at Bunessan in 1863, and with his family moved to Durham 8 years ago. He was of a kind disposition, kind and obliging in every way he could help a neighbor at any time. He leaves behind, a loving wife and six children to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father. The oldest daughter, Mrs. Percy Day, of Owen Sound, was here for her father's illness, death and burial. He leaves one brother, John, in Northern Ontario, and one sister, Mrs. Grier, in Regina, Sask. The funeral took place from his late residence on August 1st, to Trinity church cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Moyer officiating at house and grave. The pall bearers were six neighbors, Messrs. Wm. Hewitt, Jas. Donnelly, Holly Hawes, Robert McLean, Robt. Watt, and James Saunders.—Com.

ABERDEEN.

The Aberdeen Red Cross workers met at the school-house on Thursday, Augus 2nd, with 16 ladies present. Twenty-three pairs of socks were given in, and the collection amounted to $1.85. Mrs. Jas. McDonald and Miss Maggie McLean were appointed to represent the workers at the monthly packing at Mulock on Saturday, August 4th. The next meeting will be held in the school-house on August 30th.

Miss Catharine O'Neil met with a serious accident last week. While helping the Misses McLean pick cherries, the limb on which she was resting gave way, throwing her to the ground and seriously injuring her back, requiring medical aid. We sincerely hope she will soon be able to be about again.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lawrence visited with her mother, Mrs. J. D. Clark, one day last week.

Miss Inne Davidson is visiting with friends in town.
