On Sunday last, the Thanksgiving services at Trinity and St. Paul's Anglican churches proved highly satisfactory. The sermons by Rev. Mr. Thompson of Mount Forest were pleasing to the congregations. The churches were nicely decorated for the occasion, the music was especially fine, and the response to the call for funds is said to have been generous and gratifying. Rev. Mr. Dymond had charge of the services at Mt. Forest.

Mr. George Noble lost a fine three-year-old colt yesterday under peculiar circumstances. His son, Albert, put the harness on him and drove him up and down the street a few times to break him. While standing on the street in front of the livery stable, on Tuesday, for some reason the colt became excited, rose on his hind legs, fell backward, and struck his head on the hard road, rupturing a blood vessel. He died yesterday morning.

Mr. A. H. Jackson recently received letters from a number of the boys in uniform, and lack of time prevents us taking copious extracts from a number of them. Some of his recent correspondents are: Dave Borthwick, W. H. Knisley, Cecil McNally, Bob Lindsay, Vernon Elvidge, Mack Saunders, Ray Flucker. He has also received a copy of the "Listening Post," a paper published at the fighting line. It is a paper of interest to boys versed in the phraseology of the trenches.

Norman, the little four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley McIntyre, was badly bitten on the arm and throat last Tuesday evening by a vicious dog, and would have been killed had it not been for timely interference. The dog belonged to Mr. F. W. Kelsey, and the child, with others, were out in a car and stopped for a few minutes at the Kelsey home, when the dog attacked him without any provocation. Mrs. Kelsey was soon on the scene, and averted a fatality. The dog was said to be of a snappy disposition, but he was dispatched that evening and will do no further damage.

The Owen Sound Advertiser takes an exchange to task for stealing matter from its columns and publishing it without credit. The paper the "Tiser" is after is an expert at that sort of thing, and has apparently lost all sense of shame for such cribbing. In our opinion, an item worth copying from an exchange should be credited with the source from which it comes. By the way, the "Tiser" in Monday's issue, copied an article from this paper and gave the credit to another. As the editor's intentions were good, we'll forgive him this time.

Donald McKinnon Killed in Action

We regret very much to learn of the death of Donald McKinnon, who was killed in action on the — inst. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil McKinnon of Priceville, twenty-four years of age, of fine physique, well educated, and intellectually bright. He was esteemed by all who learned to know him, and many will regret to learn of his sad fate.

He enlisted in July, 1915, and took out papers for a Captaincy. Later in the year, he relinquished the title and in November joined as sapper in the signal section of the Engineers.

He left Canada on January 1st, 1916, as Corporal, and before being long in England he was given his three stripes. In May, 1916, he was sent to France, where he remained continuously to the time of his death. Wanting to serve with his brother, Neil, he transferred to that branch of the service in February of this year, as a Gunner in the 10th Battery.

On Monday morning last, three telegrams were received by the parents. The first said he was wounded and admitted to the 42nd Casualty Clearing Station on September 10th. The next message stated the wounds dangerous, a gun-shot wound in the side, and the next message announced his death.

As despatches of this nature are very brief, and give no particulars, there will be nothing further known for some days, when a letter will be received. In the interval, the saddened parents will have a period of suspense. The worst has been told, however, and whatever intelligence the details may communicate, there will be nothing to remove the burden of sorrow the fond parents are now forced to bear. We sincerely sympathize with the family in their affliction.

THE BAPTIST ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday last, morning and evening, anniversary sermons were preached in the Baptist church by Rev. Mr. Stillwell, who spent fifteen years in missionary work in India. In the evening, his talk was on "India", and for nearly an hour the gifted speaker, who was full of his subject, held the audience spellbound in his graphic description of the country of 325 millions of inhabitants. It was gratifying to learn of the loyalty of the people to British rule and British institutions, which they evidently love and admire because of kind and generous treatment and the influence of the missionaries. That they remained loyal to England, despite the influence of the Germans, made a great difference in the present war.

Had they cast their lot in with the Central Powers, France and Russia, and perhaps Britain would be now under German rule. Nothing pleases the Hindu better than to be given the privilege to fight, and great was their rejoicing when the opportunity was given to engage in the great conflict.

In introducing the speaker, Rev. Mr. Wylie told the audience he had spent fifteen years in India, but one would scarcely think so from his youthful and healthy appearance. He might properly have added he is Stillwell.

STRACHAN—REID.

[Tisdale (Sask.) Recorder.]

A quiet wedding occurred on Wednesday, September 5th, at the home of Mr. R. J. Reid, when his sister, Edna, and Mr. Geo. Strachan, manager of the local Bank of Ottawa, were united by the Rev. T. C. Hargreaves in the holy bonds of matrimony.

At 8.30, to the strains of Lohen-grin's wedding march, the bride, given away by her brother, took her place beneath a prettily decorated arch. She was gowned in her travelling suite of taupe gabardine with hat to match. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Hargreaves sang "Because."

After a dainty repast, the happy couple left for Regina and Calgary. The best wishes for "Un Bon Voyage" through life follow them from a host of friends.

J. & J. HUNTER

FLIGHT-LIEUT. W. A. CAMPBELL.

Lieut. Campbell was wounded in France, and is now in the hospital. His condition was of a serious nature, according to the brief reports, but a cablegram received Monday was more reassuring, and stated he was considered out of danger. The cut given above was made while in attendance at Queen's University.
