FLESHERTON OIL FIELDS ARE SHOWING GOOD PROSPECTS
Last week's Flesherton Advance said:—For some time we have not said anything about the oil prospects here, and The Advance certainly cannot be charged with sensationalism in this regard. It is time, however, that the public should be acquainted with the actual condition of affairs. The Cox company of Brantford have been industriously drilling away on the Lever farm, east back line, and on Friday evening last, Mr. Cox brought The Advance a bottle of the balings, which showed considerable petroleum in the mixture and smelled strongly of the crude oil. He expected to hit it better in a few days, and was very much elated at the prospect. The drill, according to his statement, was down 1,300 feet. The Midland drill has had considerable trouble with quicksand, and is not yet down 200 feet. This is a private enterprise, but the company holds a large number of options. A man named Henderson has for the past five weeks been driving around in a costly car picking up every option he can get on farms within a radius of five or six miles. Not much is known of this company, as they appear to be mostly interested in options, although they have promised to drill on A. Harrison's farm south of the village. It is said that Henderson has paid as high as $50 for options on certain farms.

USING OLD THIMBLES.

English Woman Makes Odd Contribution to Aid War.

A writer in the Woman's Home Companion says: "One day an English woman who must understand her own sex very well had a beautiful, thrilling inspiration. Perhaps in her strenuous sewing for the soldiers she had to discard a punctured silver thimble for one of brass or composition. Perhaps she just stumbled upon a battered, forgotten thimble which had served another generation of nimble fingers. At any rate, she decided that probably every home in her town could boast a thimble in or out of service. Now, if all these silver thimbles were gathered up, sent to a silversmith, melted and refined, they would come forth from the process—money! Money with which to buy ambulances and equip hospitals.

"She began by collecting thimbles from friends and neighbors. Thimbles came rolling in from every direction. The richest and the humblest sent them. Then there were women, hundreds of them, who had no silver thimbles—and were sorry for it. They wrote, asking whether they might send other bits of silver or gold—an old silver spoon or two, a napkin ring, a cuff link, a watch charm—old-fashioned, even bent or broken, but wrought from the precious metal.

"The answer to such queries was always the same: 'Nothing too large. Nothing too small.' "The heaps of discarded thimbles and trinkets grew. The mint melted them and then returned them, ingots of silver and gold. In a year, 'The Silver Thimble Fund' was able to disburse the following splendid charities: "Seven ambulances. "Five motor hospital boats for Mesopotamia. "One disinfecter. "Two thousand pounds sterling to Navy Employment Agency for Disabled Sailors. "Two thousand two hundred and fifty pounds sterling to the Star and Garter Fund. "Ten thousand pounds sterling for disabled soldiers and sailors. "Two hundred and twenty-two pounds sterling in small grants to hospitals and supply bureaus. "Fifteen thousand pounds sterling, or seventy-five thousand dollars, had been raised by gifts from those who thought they had nothing worth selling."

The Unwritten Law.
The "unwritten law," whereby a man may kill his wife's seducer, was recognized by an English jury recently for the first time within the recollection of the English public. "Justifiable homicide in self-defence," was the verdict rendered by a London jury in the case of Lieut. Douglas Malcolm, who shot and killed a foreigner, Anton Baumburg, styling himself "Count Deborch."

Lieutenant Malcolm, who was a wealthy young merchant before the war, returned on leave from France and found his wife with the so-called count. He attacked the "count" and afterwards challenged him to a duel, but the "count" ignored the challenge. Malcolm visited the "count's" London lodgings and other lodgers testified to hearing a struggle, followed by a revolver shot. They followed by a revolver shot. They followed by a revolver shot. They followed by a revolver shot. They followed by a revolver shot.

After leaving the premises Malcolm surrendered to the first policeman he met. He testified before the coroner's jury relative to Deborch's actions, but did not suggest self-defence in killing the man. Malcolm's wife admitted her delinquency.

It developed that Deborch was for a brief period in service with the officers' training corps, but that he was under police suspicion of being an international spy and was listed by the police as a professional spy.

Hero Worship.
A rather embarrassing case of hero-worship occurred in a London county school the other day. The embarrassment was all on the side of the hero, as will be seen. He is a teacher, who has been to the war for two years, and has come back to his desk, having lost an arm and a leg in the service of his country. The boys in the whole school are devoted to him, and his class simply has forgotten what indiscipline means. The other day the teacher—say his name was Taylor—was talking to his boys about the war, and he asked them who was the greatest British military figure who, in their opinion, stood out head and shoulders from all others in this conflict. And the answer was a unanimous shout of "Mr. Taylor." Whereupon the ordinary lesson was hastily resumed, Mr. Taylor having got quite hot, and murmured, "Not quite."

Few Doctors Killed.
Because of an exaggerated statement in some American newspapers regarding the casualties in the medical corps of the British army, Col. T. H. Goodwin, of the British army medical service, who has been on this continent since the visit of the British War Office for the facts. In answer it was stated that out of 12,000 doctors in the whole British army, from the beginning of the war to June 23, 96 had been killed, 707 had been wounded, and 62 had died of disease. The newspaper story, of which this was a refutation, stated that 257 had been killed within an hour in one battle, and that in another engagement 400 had been killed.

Got a Degree.
Speaking about college degrees, a chimney sweep who was complainant in a case in Jamie Gregory, LL.D. name as Jamie Gregory, LL.D. "Where on earth did you get that distinction?" asked the attorney. "It was a fellow frae an American university," answered Jamie. "I swept his chimney three times. 'I canna pay ye cash, Jamie Gregory,' he says, 'but I'll mok' ye LL.D. an' ve'll ca' it quits.' An' he did, sir."

CRISIS OF WOMAN'S LIFE

Change Safely Passed by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wagoner, Okla.—"I never get tired of praising Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now well and do all my household besides working in my garden. Several of my neighbors have got well by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. VIOLA FINICAL, Wagoner, Okla.

FARMERS SHOULD BE SATISFIED (Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Farmers who object to a price of about $2.20 for their wheat don't know when they are well off. The price of wheat in Australia has been $1.10 a bushel, and there is a big surplus left from the old crop, and a new one of about 135,000,000 bushels coming along in a few months. Argentina has a surplus of about 40,000,000 bushels, with record crops in sight in December and January. In fact, if it were not for the shipping difficulty, the North American, Indian, Argentine and Australian surpluses to be stored in the next few months would represent more than wheat-hungry Europe needs. Instead of a worldwide shortage, therefore, there is actually in sight a surplus. If peace were to come quickly wheat prices would probably drop about fifty cents.
