ATTRACTIVE BREAKFASTS.

How to Serve Them Without Fuss and Fairly Aesthetically.

To be living up to its best possibilities breakfast should be:

First.—Very attractive, because most persons are not very hungry in the morning. Second.—Quickly prepared, because nine-tenths of American women have no servants, and even servants appreciate a few minutes more of sleep in the morning.

Third.—Decidedly nourishing, because it is a light meal, and what there is of it must give up sufficient energy to start one off shipshape.

The wise housewife takes especial pains to have a dainty breakfast service, and even if she is limited for time in the preparation of breakfast she will spend a due proportion of that time in seeing that the table is laid attractively, and the special breakfast dishes, such as marmalade jar, egg cups, toast rack or coffee service, should be kept in immaculate freshness.

In order to make it possible to prepare breakfast in the minimum amount of time as much as possible should be done the night before. At least one should always know exactly what one is going to have in the matter of supplies. Orange juice can be squeezed and left standing all night if it is carefully covered, and it is also possible to look over and wash fruit that is to be served in the morning and not give it any further attention. If cooked cereal is to be used it should be cooked in a fireless cooker, and for this reason it is worth while for any housewife to have such a contraption, even if it consists of only a single compartment.

Chicken and Ham Sandwiches.

Puff pastry, half pint (one cupful) diced cooked chicken, one-quarter pint (half cupful) diced cooked ham, a hard cooked egg (chopped), three tablespoonfuls thick cream, two raw egg yolks. Salt and pepper to taste. Mix the chicken, ham, egg, cream, raw yolks and seasonings together and beat them with a wooden spoon. Roll out the pastry rather thin and spread thickly with the mixture. Cover over with egg, mark out with a knife in any shape and bake for fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Cut in shapes and serve either hot or cold.

The Titian Blot.

A girl with red hair and a fair complexion must be careful in the selection of the colors she wears. The dull blues, the soft shades of greens, the pale lavenders, black, white, creams and tans are the best colors. She should not wear baby blues.

A Simple Fire Extinguisher.

A fire extinguisher easily made and ready at all times for instant use consists of a gallon of water, to which are added three pounds of salt and a pound and a half of sal ammonia. Bottle this fluid, and when fire breaks out pour it out.

Healing Lip Salve.

An ounce of cold cream, fifteen drops of tincture of benzoin and thirty drops of glycerin. Rub the cold cream and glycerin together and then incorporate the benzoin with the mass. Rub with a spatula or flexible knife on a flat tile or plate.

CALLOT MODEL.

Wonderful Gown For the Young Matron.

BEAUTY OF LINE.

Black satin, swathed, draped in a horizontal strip ending in a long, clinging train, gives this handsome evening frock from Paris. The corsage is flesh colored satin, entirely massed with beaded motifs set off with black chantilly sleeves.

THE WAY OUT.

Perhaps You Don't Know How to Save What You Can't Can.

When you have canned and pickled and preserved all the fruit and vegetables your family can use and your cans and jars and bottles will hold, when you have offered to give some to your neighbors and found that they, too, have a superfluity and when you can't even sell what you have because every one in your little town is raising the same, what are you going to do? I wish there could be a plan something like this:

Have a committee in each unit as determined upon—the township, for instance—make a house to house canvass to find out just who has or will have extra fruit and vegetables and on what conditions they would be willing to dispose of them; then have the local committees operate with a committee in the nearest center where the food could be used and have donated automobiles and volunteers go out after it; then dispose of it in the best way. I believe if some plan like this could be carried out systematically all over the country a great deal of food would be saved which might otherwise be wasted. Now is the time to do it.

But in the absence of an organized plan don't let your garden and orchard stuff waste. If you can't use it all yourself make it a point of patriotism to see that some one else has it. Don't let your apples rot on the ground even if you have to do the work yourself and then pay to get them to some one else. Make it not a question of dollars, but of service. Think of the boys in the trenches and their sacrifice and don't waste ammunition.—Mary Elizabeth Rodhouse of the Vigilantes.

Mold in Pickle Crocks.

When the pickles are in the crock and ready to cover take a piece of clean white flannel, double it and cut a pattern of the top of crock from outside edge. Then lay the flannel down over the top of pickles, tucking in all around nicely. Place the cover on and set away. The mold that would form on pickles will collect on the flannel.

At any time if the mold should collect on flannel pretty freely, which it will, remove it, wash it and dry thoroughly; then replace the flannel on pickles. Be sure to keep them well covered with the flannel, and if you follow directions closely you will find the last of your pickles as good as the first.

STORE LATE VEGETABLES.

[Prepared by department of agriculture.]

A cool, well ventilated cellar under the dwelling offers good conditions for the storage of late vegetables. In cellars that are too warm on account of containing a furnace for heating the dwelling a room may be partitioned off either in one corner or at one end of the cellar, where the temperature may be controlled by means of outside windows.

Barrels, crates, boxes or bins may be used as containers for the various vegetables, but movable containers are preferable to built in bins, as it is possible to remove them for cleaning. It is advisable to construct shelves or a slat floor to keep the crates, boxes, baskets and other containers off the ground. This is highly desirable to insure a free circulation of air and to prevent the containers from harboring mice, rats and vermin. Shelves for canned goods along one side of the room need not be more than six inches wide.

Saugeen Presbytery Passed Worthy Resolutions.

At the meeting of the Presbytery of Saugeen in Mt. Forest on the 4th inst., the Rev. Wm. Cooper, convener of the committee on the duties of the church in relation to "After the War Problems" submitted the following recommendations, which were unanimously approved by the Presbytery.

In regard to the return of soldiers it was recommended:

- (1) That each congregation appoint a committee: (1) To meet and receive returned soldiers and arrange for a congregational welcome. (2) To arrange that letters, papers, and magazines be sent to the soldiers overseas for the purpose of keeping them in close touch with their home congregation of which they happen to be members or adherents. (3) To help returned soldiers in securing employment, either with their former employers or with others, to advise with them in regard to vocational training or in regard to such treatment as may tend to restore them to the securing of health and strength. (4) To let them feel and know that we are sharers with them in all the experiences through which they have passed and thus give them such spiritual comfort as we can.

- (2) That the church shall give careful thought: (1) To prevent the reopening of the bars after the war. (2) To prevent the tyranny of capital, and to see that labor has its due reward. (3) To prevent the exploitations of our national resources in the interests of the few, and the accumulation of wealth within circumscribed limits. (4) To the dangers of the social evil. (3) That a determined effort be made to bring all returned soldiers into living relationship with Christ and His church.

A woman hates to acquire her first gray hair as badly as a man hates to part with his last one.
