TOM MIX AND WM. S. HART HEADLINERS AT VETERAN STAR

Patrons of the Veteran Star Theatre have had the opportunity of seeing some exceptionally good pictures during the past winter, and according to this week's program, the end is not yet. To-morrow and Saturday night the big William Fox production, with Tom Mix in the leading role, and, of course, the usual comedy, will be the bill, while for next Tuesday and Wednesday, the 11th and 12th, William S. Hart will be here in "The Whistle." Both these photodramas and actors are too well known to need introduction to Durham fans.

To-morrow and Saturday nights Tom Mix is appearing in "The Texan," that well-known picture "of the cattle country and the mountains—a red-blooded, romantic story of the great open spaces; of men who do things and of women who are brave; a tale of once turbulent and tender, impassioned but restrained." Such is the producer's appraisal of "The Texan."

"The Whistle" is a story of a factory town. Robert Evans is a factory foreman, a widower, and lives with his son Danny, whom he idolizes. The boy wakes his father when the whistle blows and the two are inseparable. The mill is owned by Henry Chapple, a wealthy man who is too engrossed in his business of making money to pay any attention to the safeguarding of his employees in the factory whose lives and limbs are daily menaced by unprotecting shafting and revolving belts in the mill.

Evans protests to Chapple in vain and one day Danny is caught and instantly killed by a flying belt. Evans is driven to the point of madness by the accident and quits his job. One night Mrs. Chapple sends her little child in an automobile with a chauffeur to fetch "daddy" home and the bridge tender who is forced to work sixteen hours a day falls asleep at his post with the result that the drawbridge swings open just as the Chapple automobile reaches the scene. Evans is too late to prevent the motor car from making the plunge, but he dives into the stream and rescues the Chapple child.

The man decides to rear the child as his own in revenge upon the Chapples for the untimely death of his son Danny, and disappears with the infant. Several years later he is seen working at a dam where he lives with his so-called nephew, who is in fact the son of the Chapples. Evans has a battle with a ruffian who uses bad language in the child's presence and later is shot by the ruffian just as the Chapples reach the scene in their automobile.

Chapple recognizes Evans despite the changes wrought in him in five years and gives orders to take him to the hospital. Meanwhile Mrs. Chapple, who has met Evans' supposed nephew, decides to care for him until his uncle leaves the hospital. Some months later, Evans returns to the Chapple home and he is conscious stricken when he observes the loving kindness of Mrs. Chapple towards her own son, of whose identity she is ignorant, she believing her own child to be drowned.

Evans is on the point of revealing his secret to her when he learns that Chapple's negligence had resulted in the death of another mill hand, the father of a family, and he upbraids the mill owner for his conduct. Notwithstanding his determination to leave the place with the boy he repents when he observes Mrs. Chapple's sorrow at the parting with the lad. Chapple learns the truth from Evans and telling the boy always to call Mrs. Chapple mother, he leaves the scene as the whistle blows, the sound blotting out the blessings showered upon him by the devoted mother who has divined the truth at last.

"The Big Adventure," featuring "Breezy" Eason, the five-year-old motion picture star, will finish its engagement of two days this Thursday night. Last night was its first appearance, and judging from the applause it "went over."

Strange, but when a cold snap comes, every man wants his thermometer to do its best.—Winnipeg Tribune.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETING WAS LIVELY SESSION

The Town Council meeting on Monday evening last in the Council Chamber was without doubt the liveliest session staged so far this year by the Town Fathers and also drew the largest audience for many months. After the reading of the minutes and the passing of accounts, the receiving of deputations was the next order of business. Messrs. J. S. McIlraith, W. A. Glass and R. E. Richardson were a deputation to wait on the Council with a request that a full-time Constable be employed instead of the present system of having a guardian of the peace only on Saturday and Sunday nights.

Mr. McIlraith was the chief spokesman and briefly laid his request before the Council. Mr. J. H. Hunter, for the business men, was the next man heard and he voiced the objection of the merchants to the enforcement of some of the by-laws, especially those dealing with the street traffic and the parking of autos. The merchants claim that the enforcement of these by-laws as they now stand would be a detriment to the business of the town.

Mr. Hunter also objected to the employment of a full-time Constable whose sole duties would consist in patrolling the streets. He was of the opinion, if such a man were to be employed, he should work on the street and his duties as constable could be coupled up with some useful job from which the town would derive some benefit.

Reeve Calder also objected to the change in the present system, claiming that under the old license laws the present method of employing a constable had been found satisfactory and that now, under prohibition, when everybody must admit that conditions were better than formerly, he could not see the necessity for a full-time constable. The Reeve severely criticized the manner in which convictions and arrests had been made in town during the last few months, charging certain constables with sneaking, underhand tactics, and naming Constable Watson as the chief offender.

In his defence, Constable Watson denied any sneaking tactics in the enforcement of his duty and stated his willingness to resign if the ma-majority of the citizens so desired.

Taken all in all, it was a very merry evening, thank you, while it lasted and furnished good amusement for the crowd, though perhaps some of the remarks were a little too personal to be productive of the most good.

Mr. Glass and Mr. Richardson also addressed the Council in favor of the full-time constable, stating that, despite rumors to the contrary, they had no special constable in mind, nor were they prepared to suggest the salary paid. All they wanted was a constable who could devote his whole time to the better enforcement of the law and the moral benefit of the town.

From the above, it must not be inferred that the business men were against the enforcement of law and order, for such is not at all the case. The majority, it is true, were not favorable to the payment of a large salary for a patrol policeman alone, and all were decidedly against the rigid enforcement of some of the by-laws as they now stand. They also believe that the Council and some representative citizens should meet and discuss some of the rules and regulations of the town, passed by former councils, which in their opinion could not be enforced. On motion of Calder and Adams the Council decided that the petition be not entertained.

A further account of the meeting is given in another column.

STEWART-HIND

A wedding of local interest was solemnized on the 30th of March, when Miss Irene Isabel Hind of this town was united in marriage to Mr. Francis Benson Stewart of Mount Forest. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. P. Latta and after the vows were taken a reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Padfield, where friends of the contracting parties were invited to spend a social evening. The staff of R. Scott's store, of which the groom is an esteemed member, presented the young couple with a generous gift in cash. The bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hind made many friends in Mount Forest during the six months in which she attended the business college. The Chronicle wishes the young couple a bright and happy future.
