ABOUT SOILING CROPS

An Easy Way to Supplement Dry Midsummer Pastures.

Alfalfa and Clover, Peas, Oats and Corn Cut Green Make Succulent, Nourishing Food — Weed Seeds Spread by Manure — What to Plant in a Late Garden.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

When the pastures dry up in June, July, August or September, the shrinkage is noted in the milk can and on the ribs of all the live stock.

Live stock to be profitable must be fed liberally. Maintenance rations — dry pastures are nothing more — never make beef or milk, and never can be profitable.

Feeding Soiling Crops Prevents Losses.

The farmer who provides green or succulent feed to carry his live stock at full capacity during any period of pasture shortage is not only making his operations profitable, but he is preventing losses that liberal feeding alone can prevent.

The farmer who takes time by the forelock and provides a summer silo does not worry about drought, knowing full well that his stock feed reserve is standing ready. The man without the summer silo must do the next best thing, provide ample green crops that are palatable and succulent to do what the pastures fail to do.

How to Carry Over Ten Cows.

If a farmer has ten cows he should figure on the crop from one half acre providing ample green feed to carry them ten days. Peas and oats mixed one and a half bushels of each, and sown as early as possible in the spring, and followed by a second seeding ten days later, will provide for twenty days of an early drought.

An area of alfalfa near the feed-yard is especially useful during July and August to keep the stock going until the early corn is ready. Sweet clover is more useful as a pasture plant than as a crop plant that may be cut and taken to the feed rack.

Clovers, peas, oats and corn will furnish all the succulent feeds that are necessary providing of course that the stockman undertakes their production in due time each spring. Grow a few additional acres for green feed this spring, and if drought occurs you will be fortified against loss.

Weed Seed Spread by Manure.

It is quite generally known that weed seeds pass through the digestive tracts of animals and still remain viable. The manure will contain these seeds, and the result is that a field may become infested with weed plants, some of a very noxious character.

As a result of experiments at the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, it was found that in feeding certain seeds to cows the germination may be increased after having passed through the digestive tract.

Curled dock, a very common farm weed, germinated only four per cent. in its natural condition. A quantity of this seed was fed to a cow, and 100 such seeds were placed in a germinator. Ninety-eight out of the one hundred grew. The same is true to some extent of lambs' quarters, often known as pigweed. The seed of this weed germinated 62 per cent. before feeding, 88 per cent. after feeding.

In view of the foregoing figures, the farmer should be very careful in the use of screenings. They should either be ground to the very finest possible condition, so as to crush all weed seeds, or else they should be fed to such animals as sheep, which grind up and thoroughly destroy the ordinary weed seeds.

What to Plant in Late Garden.

Carrots, beets and celery for winter use may be planted in the latter part of June.

Golden bantam corn to keep up the supply for late summer.

Early string beans and peas to provide substitutes for meat.

Fresh and crisp vegetables as the means of saving canned products for winter use.

Seed sown in mid summer should be planted in freshly stirred soil and somewhat deeper than in spring, and the soil over the seed should be "armed" more carefully than usual.

The Home Vegetable Garden. The home vegetable garden should be a family interest and all members of the family who are able to do so should take part in its cultivation.

ONTARIO WHEAT SUFFERING FROM WIRE WORM

Wireworms are reported to be working considerable damage to the fall wheat in different parts of the Province. The most serious injury has been found in Perth and Huron counties, some fields being so badly infested that they have been plowed under.

In one case, a farm near Clinton, in Huron county, three acres of fall wheat had to be plowed up as a result of killing by this pest.

Unfortunately, due to the vitality and longevity of the wireworm, control is a difficult proposition. Wireworms which, in the adult stage are the common "click beetle," live from two to five years, and are very retentive of life, even surviving flooding, starvation and artificial disturbance over extended periods.

Fall plowing has been suggested as a remedial operation in an effort to break up the pupal chambers in the soil, or to expose the larvae to adverse weather conditions, but little evidence actually exists to show how effectual such a practice really is.

Wire worms are known to feed upon and to exist on a great variety of plants and to frequent many types of soil, but experience has shown that, generally speaking, they are more numerous in rich, loamy soils than in poor land, more injurious to grain crops than to plants of the clover family.

This indicates that crops rotations of a suitable nature, accompanied by various methods of soil handling adaptable to particular districts, are more to be relied upon, in a mixed farming section than any other cultural or artificial control operation.

As with the case of the white grub, a suitable crop rotation system especially adapted to western Ontario, but indicative of the principles to be applied to any district, is given below.

With white grubs, wireworms and cutworms, the chief classes of soil-infesting field crop insects that cause most of our trouble in a mixed farming community, crop rotation is regarded as a satisfactory measure consistent with good farming and insect control.

A suggested crop rotation is consequently presented for a typical Western Ontario farming community where no specialization of any crop is in evidence and where the aforementioned insects are present:

First year—Plant the field to oats. Second year—Cut the clover for hay, plow the field in late summer or early fall and plant to wheat.

Third year—Seed the wheat to clover in the spring, which may be pastured in the fall or allowed to grow.

Fourth year—Plow the clover sod early, prepare the ground for corn and roots.

Fifth year—same as first year.

This four-year rotation will be found to materially increase the soil fertility, as no crop is allowed to occupy the land for more than one year, which insures ample cultivation.

The introduction of two crops of clover will prevent the growth of weeds, and the likelihood of establishing any insect pest is reduced to a minimum.

KIDNEY TROUBLE?

I was always complaining of my kidneys. Finally I made up my mind to try Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. I took two packages and don't complain any more. I have gained in weight and am still gaining. My appetite is great and sleep has come to me. That is what the Anuric Tablets have done for me. I truly recommend them to those who are suffering from kidney ailments the way I did.
