OUR OTTAWA LETTER

PATRONAGE MILL STILL GRINDS

F. R. Beattie, who resigned the federal seat for East Kootney last winter to make a place for Hon. J.H. King, minister of public works, has been appointed to Vancouver harbor board. Samuel Prenter, a leading Vancouver Liberal, has been given a place on the same body. There were no vacancies, but the government made two, by the simple process of asking for the resignations of Messrs. McClay and MacKenzie. Needless to say, the letter are Conservatives. In this correspondence recently, reference was made to appointment of a defeated Liberal candidate as customs officer at Wingham, Ont. The Times of that town now publishes, a letter of protest from Mr. C. R. Wilkinson, who regrets the passing over of a returned soldier, Mr. Harry Town. The writer recalls "promises made to our noble young men who offered their all that decency and freedom might live. Mr. Town was one of those who returned. He was wounded and gassed. His discharge papers show him have an honorable record. His qualifications were altogether excellent. Yet he was passed over for one whose credentials consisted chiefly of political influence."

PROVINCIAL AFFAIRS

For the moment, federal affairs are for the most part overshadowed by provincial events. In British Columbia, where the lamp of Conservatism still burns brightly, a provincial convention is on, and Mr. Meighen addressing meetings. In Quebec, J C. Langlois has earned congratulations by his fight in Labelle, unti now a Liberal stronghold. Result of the by-election, cutting the Liberal majority as it did, may hasten a provincial contest. In Ontario, the press is still ringing with comment, mostly complimentary, upon the utterances of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. Howard Ferguson at Port Stanley. Woodstock Sentinel-Review (Liberal) remarks, admiringly, that "the way Mr. Meighen roasted the King Government was equalled age of the harvest excursion and has hold the letter from delivery make it only by the way Mr. Ferguson roast- gone West. ed the Drury Government." experienced by the West-rejecting the substance of a voluntary pool to snap at the shadow of a compulsory menopoly-one who hesitates to rub it in. If the matter were not so serious, one could find humor, now, in a parliamentary letter sent out two weeks ago to Liberal weeklies, which said: "The Western Provinces should feel gratified over the action of the King Government in the matter of the Canadian Wheat Board. The matter was placed in the hands of a committee composed largely of farmers, and on the report of that committee the government acted. Another matter which should please the West lies in the choice of personel for that board." board personel, it never got that far.

"Carefully watching" has been the chief claim advanced in regard to the government's conduct towar important federal issues which have arisen since the session. On the fuel situation, the matter was largely put up to the provinces, and a conference called by the Ontario controller ended in advice to buy Welsh coal, or a supply of wood. Meantime, permanent force troops are being moved to the strike area in Cape Breton, and the premier is trying to explain that to the union. Horrers! The soldiers may be equipped with some of the munitions that landed at Levis before the election! Conciliation boards are grinding away, hearing evidence in the railway shopmen's case, while Hon. Mr. Murdock, speaking at Vancouver, doesn't sound at all conciliatory in a declaration that the action of the U.S. Railway Labor Board in "trying to force compulsory down the throat of Labor" had compelled railway workers to defy the laws of that country. This from a minister of the crown, in reference to a Government body in a neighboring country.

Fact and Comment

A Western city of the United States stencils the house numbers on the curbing, a plan that especially at night saves many steps for persons in automobiles who are looking for a particular number.

The purchasing power of farm products for June, expressed in terms of commodities that farmers buy, was seventy-two per cent. of what it was in 1913-a decrease of four points since March.

In New Jersey some four hundred women of one political party are taking a summer course in the "principles of political oratory." They are preparing for the autumn campaign, in which many if not all of them expect to make speeches, and in which some of them probably hope to have the last word.

Although the statement comes from London, England, that English mines could supply the United States with two million tons of coal month, the figures are not so impressive as they sound, for the New England State alone use more coal than that. The most that England can do is to help out a little.

A New York man who made a planting of white pine thirty-six years ago has been offered five hundred dolfars an acre for the timber on the stump. It is a good price, but not at all unusual. An acre of white pine under favorable conditions will on the average make a growth of one thousand feet a year, which is as profitable as are the crops of much good farm land under cultivation.

Many Japanese merchants became rich during the war and built themselves fine houses, but when they were ready to furnish them they found that most of the desirable old Japanese objects of art on the market had passed into the hands of European or American collectors. One New York dealer who years ago picked up numerous articles in Japan for little money, and who had not found a sale for them in America was agreeably surprised to learn recently that he could send them back to Japan at a handsome profit.
