Winter Is Coming.

Last week we printed a prophesy of the son of an Indian Chief out west, who gave as his opinion that from observations of the stars and the fact that the "dipper" was turning very slowly in the heavens this year, we would have a warm, long fall. This week we notice that the "old-timers" of Clarkson district, in Peel Township, are predicting an early winter and a long winter. The prediction is based on observations in the woods, where, it is said, all the squirrels, chipmunks, fieldmice, and the rest of the tribe have started early and are building their winter houses unusually warm. In the meantime, "based on passed experiences on Garafraxa street in February," we would advise the citizens of Durham and vicinity to prepare for winter. It is coming; but whether it is to be long, short, hot, cold, we are not prepared to say. We will say, however, that winter is coming, and that we expect to have a cold day between now and next Union Day.

SELLING CHARGE DISMISSED

The police court case here last Friday afternoon before Police Magistrate Creasor in which Johnston Allan was charged with selling liquor in contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act, resulted in the acquittal of the accused, as absolutely no evidence was forthcoming for the Crown to show that the charge was justified.

The case against Allan was laid following the recent arrest and conviction at Brantford, of Earl McEown proprietor of the Chevrolet garage here, who was caught with five or six bags of liquor in his car and fined $500 and costs. At this trial McEown is alleged to have given a signed statement to the authorities that he had on the 25th of June purchased from Allan two bottles of John Dewar's whiskey at $5.00 a bottle. At the trial here on Friday, McEown admitted his signature on the signed statement, but said it was made to the authorities to get even with Allan, whom he blamed for pulling off a trick on him, but of which he subsequently found that Allan was innocent.

As it was expected that McEown would be the star witness for the Crown, the case against Allan fell through, though Magistrate Creasor used strong words in giving his opinion of a man who would issue a signed statement of this kind and then admit under oath that it was false. He told McEown that it was a good deal worse to get up and lie than it was to buy a bottle of whiskey.

In his evidence, Mr. Allan denied the selling charge, en toto and stated that he had never on any occasion sold, given, or in any manner had any liquor dealings with McEown and he knew of no reason why McEown should issue such a signed statement against him. As McEown in his evidence also repudiated the statements he had made in the sworn statement, and denied any liquor dealings whatsoever with Allan, the magistrate dismissed the case without costs.

IS HANOVER SORE?

The following letter from R. L. Saunders is in reply to a communication in The Globe and Mail and Empire, Toronto, of September 12. Much of it was "fairy" talk, and the local lacrosse fans are hard put to know what made some Hanover sore-head give out such erroneous information. Mr. Saunders' letter follows:

"I noticed an item in the sporting columns of The Globe and The Mail and Empire of September 12, in which I note the Hanover Lacrosse Club has charged the Durham Lacrosse Club with using ineligible players against them in the semi-final game here. They also charge rough treatment.

"We admit we used Durham players of Durham No. 1 team, and informed the Hanover Club, and also the official referee before the game that we were doing the same, and the game was played under protest.

"But Hanover seemingly didn't think there was a team here could beat them, and it is this beating, in our opinion, that is bothering them.

"When the Hanover Club talks about ineligible players, I think it would be wise for them to do a little house-cleaning themselves. They used a player in both semi-final games with Durham, and in their league games, who told me personally that he was ineligible to play with Hanover intermediates.

"The Hanover Junior team has been dabbling in the same business, of which I have proof. I think the old saying would be very applicable in this case: "People who live in glass houses should never throw stones."

"In reference to the rough treatment. There was an efficient official in charge, and he imposed six penalties, which were evenly divided.

"In conclusion, if Durham Club wished (and which I had the opportunity of doing recently) or letting out some of the Hanover Lacrosse Club's doings, they might not have so many teams left in the running to boast of.

"Thanking you for your space,
"Yours truly,
"R. L. SAUNDERS,
for Durham Lacrosse Club.

SOUTH GREY FAIR IS ON TO-DAY: EXHIBITS ARE ABOVE AVERAGE

The Durham Fair is in progress and the results of yesterday's judging are given in this issue. To wait for the full list would throw us a day late and would serve no particular purpose. The prize-winners for to-day's judging will be given next week.

The lowering sky yesterday morning looked as though we might be in for bad weather, and at this writing a small drizzle is falling, and we are unable to say what may happen to us to-day.

So far, the exhibits in quality and quantity may be pronounced good, but in some respects are below former years. The exhibits in the hall are good, the ladies' work being pronounced above the average. In canned fruits and vegetables, as well as pastry, bread and home baking, there was a full display and of excellent quality, in the opinion of the lady judge sent out by the department. Grain in quantity and quality was above the average. Potatoes are excellent, but roots only fair, not nearly so good as in some former years. The fruit, consisting of apples, plums, and pears, were a good average, but not A1. There is an excellent display of flowers, considerably above the average.
