LAW TO BE ENFORCED

Two Listowel produce merchants, T. G. Anderson and William Finley pleaded guilty before Magistrate Hamilton, because they had failed to grade the eggs they were buying. Five charges were laid against Mr. Anderson and six against Mr. Finley, by Government Inspector Morrison. The law regarding the grading of eggs went into effect in July of last year and was amended early in May of this year. It seems that dealers and merchants throughout the country were warned, but disregarded the warning. After the convictions, the Listowel merchants met to discuss the situation and decided there was no alternative but to obey the law. The merchants are in a quandary as to the best course to pursue and farmers are sore because their eggs must be graded.

The law reads in part: "Every case or container of eggs that is exposed, displayed or offered for sale by any person selling or delivering eggs direct to the consumer in a public place or manner, shall be marked, labelled, tagged, or accompanied in conspicuous letters with the name of the class and grade of eggs contained therein." Since the amendment there are two grades instead of four. The first grade consists of extras and No. 1, while the second grade consists of dirty, small and cracked eggs. All eggs must now be candled. Washing dirty eggs will not make them first grade as the fact that they have been washed is revealed in the candling. Some preservative solution is removed from the egg by washing and the egg will not keep.

THE MELITA SURPRISE

We received a copy of "The Melita Surprise" a few days ago. It was written on board ship by Mr. E. R. McIntosh, editor of The North Bay (Sask.) News, and formerly of Dornoch. In an accompanying letter Mr. McIntosh tells us it is the "first all-Canada newspaper ever printed at sea." Four hundred copies were run off.

Mr. McIntosh, writing on board ship under date of June 19, says: "Had a splendid trip across the Atlantic. The lights of Seilly Islands off British coast were first sighted late last night and were a welcome sight. Next week will be spent in the battlefields and in Paris."

The little paper has a full staff, consisting of editor-in-chief, editors, sporting editor, wireless editor, society editor, financial editor, and business manager. Apart from the fact that Mr. McIntosh is down as one of the editors, the names of the others will be of no local interest. Brief skits on many of the passengers are interesting only to those who know them. Jack Hunter of Kincairdine is the most frequent fish-feeder; George Mitchell of Hanover attributes his natty appearance to the lavish use of furniture polish; and fighting Bill McDonald of Chesley is one of the real boys.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS

Somehow mothers are not too sympathetic to agitations against child labor in the home. And some of us still wonder how we stuck on the earth before the law of gravity was passed. And if you talk plain sense, few understand the strange tongue. He isn't a genuine old-timer unless he thinks a woman has unsexed herself if she has brains. The widow's mite is the insurance money she has left after taking the advice of her friends. It is easy to be thin if the sight of victuals affect you as the sight of the scales does. Every husband is free to come and go as he pleases if he doesn't mind seeing his wife pout. A good sport is one who won't sweat a fly until he has thawed it out and given it a fighting chance. An old-timer is one who can remember when everyone was delightfully shocked by a corset ad. When a woman writes to her old friends her husband knows she is pouting at him for something. The length of his cigarette holder indicates how loud dad hollers when he overdraws his allowance. Not every woman marries a man to reform him, but most of them try it later. If she knows the history of all the movie stars, she is a wizard with a can opener. About the only difference is that the upper class people are tired in the morning instead of at night. A sophisticated age is one that calls its ignorance instead of innocence. Sympathy for the under dog isn't so much good sportsmanship as the memory of hurts received from some upper dog. Definitions change. In the old days he was called a lost sheep. Now he is called a conservative.

HYMENEAL

BELFRY-TAYLOR

The Methodist parsonage, Durham was the scene of a quiet wedding on Saturday, June 28, at two-thirty, when Emily Olive, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Taylor, Victoria Harbor, was united in marriage to Armin Earl Belfry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Belfry, Victoria Harbor. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. E. Peters. The bride was attired in a gown of cocoa shade silk crepe, embroidered with steel beads, wearing a hat to match, and carried a bouquet of opelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Immediately following the ceremony, the young couple left on the afternoon train for Niagara Falls and Buffalo, where they will spend their honeymoon, and later will reside at Eugenia Falls, where Mr. Belfry is now employed with the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

HOOPER-ADAMS

A pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at five o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Bruce street, when Aggie Lena Adams, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Adams, Durham, was united in marriage with William Greenwood Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Hooper of Glendale. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. J. Burnett, pastor of Ames church, Dromore, under an arch of evergreens, beautifully decorated with roses and peonies, the beauty of which was further enhanced with a large white wedding bell, while the artistic arrangement of beautiful house flowers lent additional beauty to the wedding arch. The hour set for the happy event was five o'clock. At the appointed hour the groom took his place, and immediately after the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, who gave her away. The bride was handsomely gowned in radio blue silk crepe, crepe trimmed with silver beads, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses, carnations and maidenhair fern. The young couple were unattended. Mrs. Victor Adams, sister of the groom, played the wedding march. The ceremony and congratulations were sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, where the usual toasts were proposed and responded to, after which a social evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Hooper left the same evening for their home on the 20th Concession of Egrement, where the groom is a prosperous farmer, and where the congratulations and best wishes of the bride's many Durham friends follow them, the bride wearing a travelling suit of sand, with hat and shoes to match. The esteem of the bride is best attested to by the many and beautiful wedding gifts received, that of the groom being a pearl necklace, while the gift of her father was a five hundred dollar Victory Bond. The groom's gift to the organist was a gold bar pin. The Chronicle joins the community in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hooper a long and happy married life.

KEITH-McEACHNIE

A pretty home wedding was solemnized on Monday, June 30, at the residence of the bride's parents in Proton Township, near Hopeville, when Miss Mae McEachnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arch. McEachnie, was united in marriage to Mr. Winlow Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keith of Holstein. The wedding ceremony took place at four o'clock, and was performed by the Rev. G. S. Scott of Holstein. At the hour appointed, the bride, who looked charming in her wedding gown of maize georgette trimmed with lace, and wearing the customary bridal veils, and carrying a bouquet of white carnations and bridal roses and maidenhair fern, entered the parlor on the arm of her father, who gave her away, and took her place beside the groom under an arch of evergreens, decorated with Japanese wisteria and foxgloves, white wedding bells, and white doves being also artistically used. Miss Annie Keith, sister of the groom, dressed in sand crepe, and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations and maidenhair fern, was the bridesmaid, while Mr. Nelson McEachnie, brother of the bride, was the groomsmen. Mrs. Alvin McEachnie played the wedding march, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. E. E. Hockridge sang "Because" very sweetly. The ceremony over and felicitations extended, the guests, to the number of about eighty, sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner, at which the usual toasts were proposed, that to the bride being given by Dr. Sneath, to which Rev. G. S. Scott, on behalf of the groom, very fittingly replied. The dining-room was very beautifully decorated with white peonies and snowballs, and the many beautiful gifts were a tribute to the popularity and worth of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Keith left on a motor trip to Buffalo and other points, the bride travelling in a going-away gown of sand crepe and wrap they will commence home-making on the groom's farm near Holstein. Guests from a distance in attendance at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Brunkard, the latter the groom's sister, and Mr. and Mrs. James Keith, all of Drayton; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Manary, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. T. Brown and Miss Mary Brown, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry, and Mrs. Hamilton Allen, the latter an aunt of the bride, all from Durham.

MY DOG

Louella C. Poole. I know he has more heart than brains— That he's not very wise; But he would give his life for me— I see it in his eyes. I have no human friend would do as much as that for me— You say he is a bother, care, Needless expense—that he Leaves hairs around and muddy tracks— Upon the polished floor, And that his eager paws have left Long scratches on the door. Well, what of that? I care far more For this true friend of mine Than for the varnish on the door Or for the floor's bright shine. My dear protector, gentle, kind, With him I know not fear, And when he gazes in my eyes With his brown eyes so clear. Head on my knee, and gaily wags His spiral of a tail, I know full well I have one friend Whose love will never fail. A girl doesn't necessarily object to a young man's mustache because she sets her face against it. Perhaps it's these early birds wakening up the roosters that start 'em crowing. Can you remember when old timers were shocked at corset advertisements. Temptation is no disgrace. Satan never bothers to tempt those who belong to him.

AUTO-MANIA

Here lies the body of Jim Lake, Tread softly all who pass; He thought his foot was on the brake But it was on the gas. At sixty miles Drove Willie Smidder; He lost control, His wife's a widdler. Here lies what's left Of Henry Glenn; Match in gas tank— Up went Hen. Bill Turpin sneered At careful folk; He hasn't sneered Since his axle broke. Ben Higgins never would be passed, He braced his car's endurance, He passed six cars with backward glance— His wife has his insurance. "Til hog the whole road," Willie said "Til give no inch of room." Now Willie's lying calm and dead, Amid the flowers' perfume. "That license is from another state, I'll keep the road," said Rich. The car in passing swerved too late, For evidence see the ditch. Here lie the remains of Percival Sap He drove his car with a girl in his lap. Lies slumbering here one William Blake— He heard the bell, but had no brake. Beneath this stone lies William Raines, Ice on the hill, he had no chains. Here lies the body of William Jay, He died maintaining his right of way. Read the Classified Ads. on Page 7. It will pay you.
