Rev. F. G. Fowler, a former very highly esteemed pastor of the Presbyterian church here, who has been in a charge at Pulaski, Indiana, has received a call from a good charge at Logansport, a fine town twenty-two miles from his present charge, which will part with him very reluctantly. A great calamity befell Mr. Fowler's church two weeks ago when three prominent members, two of them elders, were killed instantly in an automobile accident, and another seriously injured. It was estimated eighteen hundred people attended the funeral of the victims. The calamity was a great shock to Mr. and Mrs. Fowler.

F. J. GLACKMEYER
DIES AT TORONTO

Sergeant-At-Arms of Ontario Legislature For 57 Years

Frederick Joseph Glackmeyer, sergeant-at-arms of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario since Confederation, died Sunday evening at his apartment at the Parliament buildings. He was eighty-one years of age and has been in failing health for some time. Mr. Glackmeyer had officiated at every session of the Ontario Legislature from Confederation to the present time, a record of service unequalled in the British Empire. He was a former resident of London, Ontario, and was educated at the grammar and private schools there.

Mr. Glackmeyer was born in Montreal on May 20, 1843, the son of Edward and Jane Glackmeyer. His great-grandfather, William Louis Roy Portelance, represented Montreal in the old Legislative Assembly of Canada from 1808 to 1819.

Appointed in 1867

When, at Confederation, a provincial Legislative Assembly was formed in Ontario, he was appointed sergeant-at-arms on December 27, 1867, and officiated at the first assembly. Since that time he had established the remarkable record of almost fifty-seven years on continuous service. Blessed with more than average good health, he had been a faithful attendant at the post of duty and had become the most familiar figure about the Legislative Chamber, particularly to the older members of the House. He was honored by the King in 1916 by being made a member of the Order of the Star. He has served under six premiers and had not missed a session of the Legislature.

Mr. Glackmeyer married on September 6, 1882, Annie Enders, fourth daughter of the late William A. Thompson, who represented the County of Welland in the House of Commons from 1871 to 1878. Mrs. Glackmeyer survives him. He was an honorary member of the Canadian Military Institute and president of the Victoria Club, Toronto.

UNITED CHURCH IN CANADA
IN EVERY COMMUNITY

A declaration that there would be a United church in Canada, in every Community of the Dominion, was made at the close of a meeting of the executive of the joint committee on Union in Toronto last Friday night, when a recommendation was made regarding the voting by non-concurring congregations, on the status of ministers and the program for rallying the churches through the period of transition.

The Presbyterian committee discussed at length the question of preparing information regarding the provision in the legislature for the congregations which desire to take the vote, as to whether or not they will be participants in the Union. The section of the act providing for action by non-concurring congregations comes into effect December 10, 1924, while the Act of Incorporation comes into full effect June 10, 1925.

The committee wished to avoid as much as possible the disruption of congregations, and it was pointed out that the vote was not obligatory.

Principal Clarence McKinnon, Moderator of the General Assembly, in addressing the joint committee, stated that he had just returned from a tour of the Western churches, and declared that there would not be any of the Presbyterian churches outside the Union in the whole of Manitoba.

PEOPLE ARE GETTING MORE HONEST
(Toronto Star Weekly)

A railway conductor, Edward H. Minkler, retiring after fifty years' service with the New York Central, was never on a train that ran off the track. About passengers he has this to say:

"The public has not changed much. It depends upon how you use people. If you are nice to passengers they are nice to you. I think people are getting more honest than they were once. Not nearly as many try to beat their fare."

The fact is that most people are like yourself—ready to be friendly at a moment's notice, according to the manner in which you are treated or greeted. But it is interesting to hear that people are getting more honest than they were. If fewer people try to beat their fare, does it show that people are more honest than formerly, or that the system of fare-taking on the railways has been tightened up? Aside from the fact that there was a prevalent feeling forty or fifty years ago, especially in rural parts, that a railway conductor who wouldn't give a friend a lift from one town to the next was a mean man. Any teamster along the road would do as much for a neighbour. "This is just spite work, said a man to a

JUDGE IN MONTREAL COMMENTS ON LAW
When Giving Sentence.

In pronouncing sentence of two years in the penitentiary and five lashes of the cat-o-nine-tails on Joseph Lecompte, convicted of an attempted serious assault on a fourteen-year-old girl, Judge Monet of Montreal deplored that the Criminal Code did not provide for a longer prison term. The Judge pointed out that such crimes as receiving stolen goods, common theft, etc., were punishable by seven years, or even longer, in the penitentiary, while a crime as revolting as that of Lecompte's could be given a maximum of only two years.

After pronouncing the whipping sentence, Judge Monet added: "If you find any ground to complain against the severity of the lashing sentence, I suggest you appeal to the Solicitor-General."

If you fail to get what you really deserve you ought to be grateful.
