PICTURE OF LOVE AND WAR

'The Light That Failed" Has All the Elements of Appeal.

One of the finest screen dramas of the current picture season is said to be George Melfort's Paramount FOR SOUTH GREY FAIR production of "The Light That Failed" based on Rudyard Kipling's celebrated story. Jacqueline Logan, ed in the prize list of the South Grey Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist and David Torrence are featured.

The story deals with Dick Heldar Helen Young, a Sr. II. Class pupil in England. Although he loves Maisie of Durham Public school, won first Wells, played by Sigrid Holmquist, among the tribesmen in the Soudan gives Dick an opportunity to send home a series of sketches which made him famous.

Returning to England after the the campaign, Dick discovers he is great figure in art circles. The scarifier from the provincial inck, and they have been continuous highways department has been used and made a good job of its part of the work. Following this, the town Mr. John Adlam of Bentinck, and of grader has done considerable grad-Mrs. William Brown and Mrs. Harry ing and a fresh coat of screened gravel and the drag will put the road in first-class condition.

While the improvements are very satisfactory, and the business men no doubt appreciate the changed conditions, it is pretty generally felt that it is false economy to spend too much money on the front street in its present condition. The economical way, it is felt, is to put in storm sewers first. In this way the streets will be quickly drained after heavy away, the streets will not be nearly so hard to keep up and will remain
