STOP! LOOK! LISTEN! -read the sign. He didn't. Now his friends have come to STOP- in and give him a last LOOK- and LISTEN- to the minister's words.

"German Bird Expert Makes Canaries Sing Like Nightingales" says a story from across the pond. Wonder if he could do as much for half a dozen feline opera stars that gather under our bedroom window for their nightly rehearsal.

The guy who whistles his soup and the dame who "cracks" her gum are nonexistent as compared to the old maids in the movie show who "just must" read the sub-titles out loud and predict what's coming next.

We've read or heard about a train hitting cows, dumbell motorists, etc., but here's one that drew a giggle out of us:

Here's a want ad of our own:

Wanted: Two alienists who will testify that we're insane because we told teddy bears our secrets when only 3 years old.

We hope we get some results. Because—we're anxious to rid the world of an assistant who just pulled that be-whiskered one about:

"Put your nose against the window and feel the pane."

"NEW GIN COMPLETED"

-read a headline in one of our exchanges. Our heart stopped. Can it be that in this land of many constitutional amendments—Was it still being made—oh, shucks, the article referred to a "cotton gin."

WHY IS IT—lovers seek the moonlight yet turn out the lights in the parlor?

See where some college professors claim that the "prettiest co-eds are the brainiest." Can it be possible?

(Want ad in the Eclair, Ill. Daily Republican)

LOST—Last Friday, a parrot Owner will pay $5.00 reward if returned without broken legs or wings to Mrs. Peter Brooks, 640 Whitney street.

To make it plainer, the lady might have advertised. "Will accept and pay reward as long as the parrot hasn't been used for soup.

"Adam Slept On A Limb," writes an inspired adster. So Adam was the first acrobat?

FANCY WORK

"Sam, what's a farmerette?" "Well, Bill, a farmerette's a farm woman, but not a regular, honest-to-goodness farm woman—the ette part of it means something kind o' fancy, you know."

"I see—like a kitchenette, hey? Supposed to be a kitchen, but just a fancy kind o' clothes closet with a little gas-stove in it. . . . But what good's a farmerette?"

"Why, Bill, I reckon the place for the farmerette is in the kitchenette."—Farm and Fireside.

Hospital for Sick Children

67 COLLEGE ST., TORONTO

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Your readers have probably had their appetite for statistics satiated during the past few months. Still they will, no doubt, want to know something of the work accomplished by the hospital to which they have so generously contributed in the past. They are shareholders in a Mission of Mercy. Their dividends are not paid in coin of the realm. May I trespass upon your space to outline what those dividends are?

Firstly, the daily average of children occupying cots in the Hospital for Sick Children was 255. The total cared for as in-patients was 6,397. That is equivalent to the population of a good-sized Ontario town.

And secondly, the out-patient department. This is a wing of offices given over to consultation and minor operations. On an average there were 190 young callers a day.

That is where the dividends are earned—in the difference made in the lives of thousands of children through the voluntary contributions which render it possible to maintain an institution where pallid cheeks become rosy and twisted limbs are made straight.

If that were not dividend enough, one might try to estimate the enormous salvage of child-life in Ontario which has taken place since "Sick Kids" doctors and "Sick Kids" nurses have been going out through this province equipped with a knowledge of children's diseases, which they could not get except in some such highly specialized and pre-eminently efficient institution as the Hospital for Sick Children.

On this year's service the Hospital expended $345,126 and finds itself in the hole to the extent of $134,284. What comes in around Christmas-time keeps the Hospital going. So long as the word "Christmas" retains its original significance could any charity possibly exhibit more of the sympathy of your readers or entitle itself to more of their support?

Faithfully yours, I. E. ROBERTSON, Chairman Appeal Committee

"FROM FIDDLE TO FILMS"

DESCRIBES BETTY'S RISE

When Betty Compson was a child, she studied the violin with the result that she entered the theatrical world as a vaudeville violinist.

As a youngster one of the first of the classics she mastered was Gounod's "Ave Maria." It was her favorite then, and it is one of her favorites today.

That is the reason why the Betty Compson of today insisted on having Gounod's "Ave Maria" played by the musicians on the set for the big emotional scenes in the Joseph Henabery production of "The Stranger," in which she is featured with Richard Dix, Lewis Stone and Tully Marshall, and which opens at the Veterans' Star Theatre tomorrow and Saturday.

"The Stranger" was written for the screen by Edfrid Bingham from John Galsworthy's "The First and the Last." It's a Paramount picture. Issue of November 27.
