

For The Quiet Hour

ON A CERTAIN RELIGIOUS ARGUMENT

Argue it pro and con as you will,
And flout each other with words,
But the rose will bloom and the summer still
Will bring us the song of birds.

How was He born who came to earth
With the Godlight in his eyes?
Wrangle and quarrel about His birth
And yet you shall not be wise.

And what does it matter? The clover blows
And the rose blooms on the tree,
And only the God in Heaven knows
How these things come to be.

You take the flower though you cannot say
Why this is red or white,
You accept the warmth of the sun by day
And the light of the stars by night.

You joy in a thousand mysteries
Which your wisdom can't explain,
The green of the grass and the rolling seas
And the gold of the harvest grain.

So why do you bother your heads at all?
And why does your faith grow dim?
You take the flower on the garden wall,
So why will you not take Him?

FOUR HUNDRED YEARS AGO THIS YEAR THE FIRST NEW Testament came from the printing press, the work of William Tindale, who single-handed had accomplished the translation. In many countries throughout the world, the British and Foreign Bible Society is celebrating the event this year that has had such a tremendous influence on the life of the world. Following the death of Tindale, the work of revision of this New Testament which he had himself inaugurated was carried on at frequent intervals until the issue of the Authorized version in 1611. Even then revision did not cease, but the text was gone over by groups of scholars from all sections of the Church in England and America until the Revised Version was given to the world. A leaflet issued by the Bible Society further says:

Now the simple fact is that, notwithstanding all this process of perfecting the first translation, the version as we read it today is virtually Tindale's translation throughout. Corrections and emendations there have been certainly; for the most part, they have been verbal niceties; nowhere has the sense of the text in substance changed. This is a phenomenal tribute to its merits, and is due to William Tindale; so that after four centuries have elapsed, it is virtually that very translation which the Bible Society is circulating throughout the English-speaking world by the million copies every year.

THE SHANTYMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION WAS FOUNDED thirteen years ago by Mr. William Henderson of Toronto for work among the lumbermen of Canada. Mr. Henderson was in a Toronto office, with a promising future, when he heard the call to go out into the highways and hedges. Leaving his family in the care of God, he started into the forests of Ontario to preach to the lumberjacks. He and his associates gave the gospel without asking for pay, sharing the mean accommodations of the camps and depending on God for the supply of their needs. Their present field is among the five hundred thousand workers in lumber and construction camps.

Beginning at points nearest Toronto, the work has now spread from ocean to ocean. Last year over seven hundred camps, containing some fifty thousand men, were visited. Everywhere save in British Columbia, where an intensive Bolshevik propaganda has developed a hostile atmosphere, the camp evangelists have been welcomed. Gospels and tracts have been particularly acceptable to the French and other non-English lumbermen. In fact, as an agency for the evangelization of the French Canadians, this work is of very first importance. "We have the confidence of the French Canadian lumberjack everywhere," says the report of the association, "and seek his salvation without arousing his enmity by attacking his church. As we represent no particular church, they look upon us as their own preachers in the camps, and our association, to use their own words, as the lumberjacks' religion."

In the Maritime Provinces, work was started for the first time last winter. There are sixty thousand employed in the lumber camps of New Brunswick, and many thousands in the pulp, lumber and construction camps of Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

AN ENGLISH EXCHANGE STARTLES US WITH THIS question regarding England. Must it not also challenge us in America?

By evangelistic missions is not meant the normal evangelistic effort of the regular ministry, but special efforts for arousing the unsaved and bringing them to a decision for Christ. How long since there has been such an effort in your church or community?

True, there is evangelistic machinery in all the large denominations, organized largely perhaps because of prejudice against so-called vocational evangelism. And individual evangelists are busy and honored by God. But a passion for souls is not widespread. Most professing Christians are content to jog along in church life without concern for the unsaved, near or far.

Perhaps we must wait till God raises up new evangelists. Experience would seem to show that seasons of refreshing come in answer to prevailing prayer on the part of those whose hearts are burdened with a sense of need and a love of souls.

As to methods, let spiritual revival come in whatever form it will, so long as it gets sinners saved. For ourselves, we know of no type that beats the genuine old-fashioned kind where judgment begins at the house of God and the Holy spirit comes in convicting and saving grace upon the godless.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF ORGANISTS IS SEEKING to bring about a better understanding between churches and their organists, with a view to the larger usefulness of the latter and their larger appreciation by ministers and congregations.

Whether a man serves as organist only, or as choir leader too, he is of prime importance in the musical activities of the church. He must not only have a mastery of the technical side of his profession, but should also be in full sympathy with the aims and methods of worship. Music in the church, whether vocal or instrumental, is quite a different thing from music in the concert hall. There ought to be a different spirit animating it, and a rendition that is distinct from mere professional art. A generous recognition of the work of the organist, and a grateful appreciation of the personal service he renders, will keep him in fellowship with pastor and people, and will stimulate him to a better ministry. Music has a powerful value in the testimony of the gospel. Let us get the best by encouraging efficient, consecrated leadership!

TODAY

Today is all sufficient for
The burdens we must bear.
Today is ours, to live, to love,
Our brother's sorrow share.

Tomorrow never comes to us,
And yesterday is gone,
Therefore, today is all of time
We have to build upon.

Tomorrow is as far away
As yesterday it seemed,
So put your shoulder to the wheel
And do the things you've dreamed.
—Kind Words.

Honeycomb Coil Receiver

By R. M. SHERRILL
(Radio Engineer)

It was not so long ago that the honeycomb coil receiver was one of the most popular receiving arrangements. Such a receiver is just as good now as it ever was, and it has a lot of advantages over some of our later receiving sets.

The principal feature of this type of receiver is that it may be used on any wavelength whatever. Of course, nearly all of the radio-phonograph's work is done on the comparatively narrow band of wave lengths between 200 and 500 meters. The experimenter, however, often wants to listen-in on waves from a few meters in length to the 20,000 meter waves of some of the largest transoceanic stations. Also, there are official time signals sent out regularly from Annapolis, Arlington and other long wave stations, and there are several broadcasting stations, including KDKA and WGY which are transmitting regularly on waves of less than 70 meters in length. Any of these waves may be reached with the honeycomb receiver by simply plugging in the proper sizes of coils. Even for the normal broadcasting range, the honeycomb system provides a very sensitive and selective regenerative receiver which will compare very favorably with the latest type of broadcast receivers. The circuit, shown in Figure 1, will be recognized as the regular tickler regenerative set. The two condensers are each of the 500 mmfd. size (about 23 plates).

Building and Operation

The best way of supporting the honeycomb is with one of the usual three-coil mountings. With this mounting, the centre coil, which is closer to the secondary until the tube is just on the verge of oscillating. There is a decided click in the phones when the oscillation starts. The receiver is in its most sensitive condition when the tickler is as close as possible to the secondary without starting the oscillation. The selectivity of this receiver is improved by keeping the primary very loosely coupled to the secondary.

If there is any trouble in making the set oscillate just after it has been made up, it is probable that the tickler connections are reversed.

For loud speaker work, one or more stages of A. F. amplification may be added in the usual manner.

RADIO QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mr. Sherrill will be glad to help you solve your radio problems. Write him, care of The Durham Chronicle.

A. A. B. says: "I am using a 23-plate variable condenser across the secondary of a regenerative receiver. Whenever I turn this condenser it makes a grating noise in the headphones. The plates do not touch, and there is a good flexible connection to the rotary plates. Can you suggest the trouble?"

Ans.—It is possible that there is dust and dirt between the plates which causes this trouble. Take an ordinary pipe cleaner and clean out between the plates thoroughly.

B. J. D. asks: "Is it necessary, in Someone asked what has become of the old fashioned cook. She started the fire with gasoline.

M. B. T. says: "I am living in a house covered with wire lath. Is it true that a loop receiver will not function in this house?"

Ans.—The wire lath will shield the loop so that it will not pick up as much energy as it should.

When we say people spend their money foolishly, we mean they spend it for things we would like to have.

STARTING SMALL

If there be skeptics among us, let them read this: John D. Rockefeller has a private day of celebration each year which he calls his "job day." It falls on September 25th. On that day in 1855, the future "richest man in the world," landed his first job. "For days and weeks," he once said, "I had tramped the streets of Cleveland asking merchants if they had not some use for a boy. I was refused many times, but I did not give up. Finally I got a job as assistant bookkeeper, and

I worked from September 26th to January 1st for $50.

The Fortieth Lesson

Octavus Roy Cohen, the authority on negro dialect, said in Birmingham the other day:

"I once tried to teach a little Alabama colored boy to speak pure English. I'll never forget the despairing way he said to me at the end of the thirtieth or fortieth lesson:

"Dey aren't no 'ain't you, 'ain't it?"

Buying on the Installment Plan

PURCHASING commodities by paying "a dollar down and a dollar a week" has grown into great popularity. Often the object purchased is worn out before it is paid for, and the purchaser continues to pay. Buy yourself a fortune on the installment plan by placing regular installments of your earnings in a Standard Bank savings account. The money is always available for use if required, and there is no depreciation but accruing interest as time goes on.
