Stewart Cooper, Agricultural Representative, Grey County Branch, Department of Agriculture, was in Guelph attending a short course given by Professor Caesar, Professor of Economic Entomology, in connection with the spray service which is being conducted this year in various parts of the province. Altogether thirty-two men took part in the work.

Monday
Every man present had to do the actual work of spraying. Practice was given for one day in a large orchard near the College grounds. The work was directed by Professor Caesar assisted by Messrs. P. J. Rodgett, director of Fruit Branch, Toronto; W. L. Hamilton, Collingwood; R. S. Duncan, Director, Agricultural Representatives, Toronto; F. Johnson, Simcoe; and L. Smith, Wellington.

Monday
The idea of the course was to train the Agricultural representatives in actual spraying methods so they will be able to go into their fruit districts and supervise this work as well as give instruction in the methods of controlling both fungus and insect infestations.

Monday
A large number of applications for assistance in the spraying work have come to the Markdale office from the Georgian Bay district, but more could apply. Perhaps you would like to be assisted. It is not too late to apply. The Department of Agriculture is here to serve.

Monday
The most successful brooders are coal burning. If a person wishes to raise about 200 chicks, they are to be preferred, as they are economical of fuel; there is a minimum of danger of fire, and the chicks can be easily seen. The lamp brooder is used for 75 or less, but they require more attention and are more dangerous. The experience at the College would indicate that the brooders will not take care of the full capacity claimed. This, of course, varied with the attendant, size of pen and ease of ventilation.

Monday
The chickens are comfortable when they circle the edge of the hover. Too much heat may cause them to bunch in corners and smother one another. Too little heat may do the same thing. A lack of fresh air is at times a cause of drooping wings and worn appearance.

Monday
Chickens reared in a brooder and with the mother hen constitutes a very different problem. The former must have everything brought to them, the latter through instinct balance their rations by insects and tender green morsels of food.

Monday
The perfect chick food has not been found at the College as yet. For years, experiments have been carried on with the object of compounding a simple, inexpensive method of growing a normal chicken. Only common feeds are used as far as possible.

Monday
A grain ration composed of equal parts of family corn meal and good shorts makes a ration that appears to suit the digestive organs of the chick. This is not of itself a complete feed. It lacks animal protein and whatever may be in green feeds and some vitamins.

Monday
To make this apparently a complete feed, we have found that by moistening to a crumbly state the above mixture, with raw eggs, hashed raw liver, and canned tomatoes, also giving milk to drink, we can grow a chicken to weigh two pounds at twelve weeks of age at any season of the year, whether grown entirely indoors on cement floors or not. This ration is too expensive to use entirely for such a period. What a ration costs for the first month or six weeks is not such a serious fact if it will grow the chicks and keep the mortality down to ten per cent or less.

Monday
Mr. H. J. Moore of Toronto, noted lecturer on horticulture who gave an address here last December under the auspices of the Horticultural Society, will speak here again on April 14th. Everyone who heard Mr. Moore before will want to hear him again. Come and bring your friends with you.

Monday
Sixty organizations which met at Victoria, B.C. a week ago under the auspices of the Sons of England, to discuss the Oriental question, have resumed discussion of the problem, and resolutions advocating a boycott of all Orientals, urging legislation to put an absolute stop to further Oriental immigration, and laws to make it impossible for Orientals to own or lease land in the province, which will report at some future date to the main body.
