

THE CHRONICLE PICTORIAL PAGE

Europe's Venus De Milo

A REPRESENTATIVE group of Austrian painters, sculptors, photographers and medical men have declared the Baroness Lucy Kieselhausen-Prozelwitz to be the "most beautifully-formed woman in Europe today." In fact, they have classed her as being anatomically—100 per cent perfect. Photo above shows the baroness.

World's Most Photographed Girl

MEET Miss Sally Long, the most photographed girl in the world, whom Flo Ziegfeld has described as "the most beautiful girl on two hemispheres." Quite a distinction. Miss Long is well known to theatre-goers. Ziegfeld, besides having featured her in his Follies, engaged her for a special number in the well-known "Kid Boots" musical comedy with Eddie Cantor. At the time, he had a $100,000 insurance policy written for her to insure against the possibility of some young man falling in love with her and thereby taking her out of the profession. She has also been starred considerably in the movies—notably as one of the fourteen beautiful manikins in Leatrice Joy's production, "The Dressmaker From Paris."

Vanity-Case Pup

WOOF! G-r-r-r. Look out—mashers and purse-snatchers. This little beast weighs one whole pound and is carried by an eastern Miss in her vanity case for protection. If, by chance, some bold man should grab the case, the cover flies open, and "Tiny"—this two-month-old Boston Bull pup—does his stuff. G-r-r-r. Woof! Woof!

Produced Gold from Mercury

WHETHER or not it will ever pay to artificially manufacture gold, still remains an open question. But—that it can be done was proved by the gentleman shown here, Privy Councillor Dr. Miethe of Berlin. He produced a dollar's worth of gold from mercury, the test being made at a cost estimated at $60,000.

Special Invitation to Bandits for "Warm Reception"

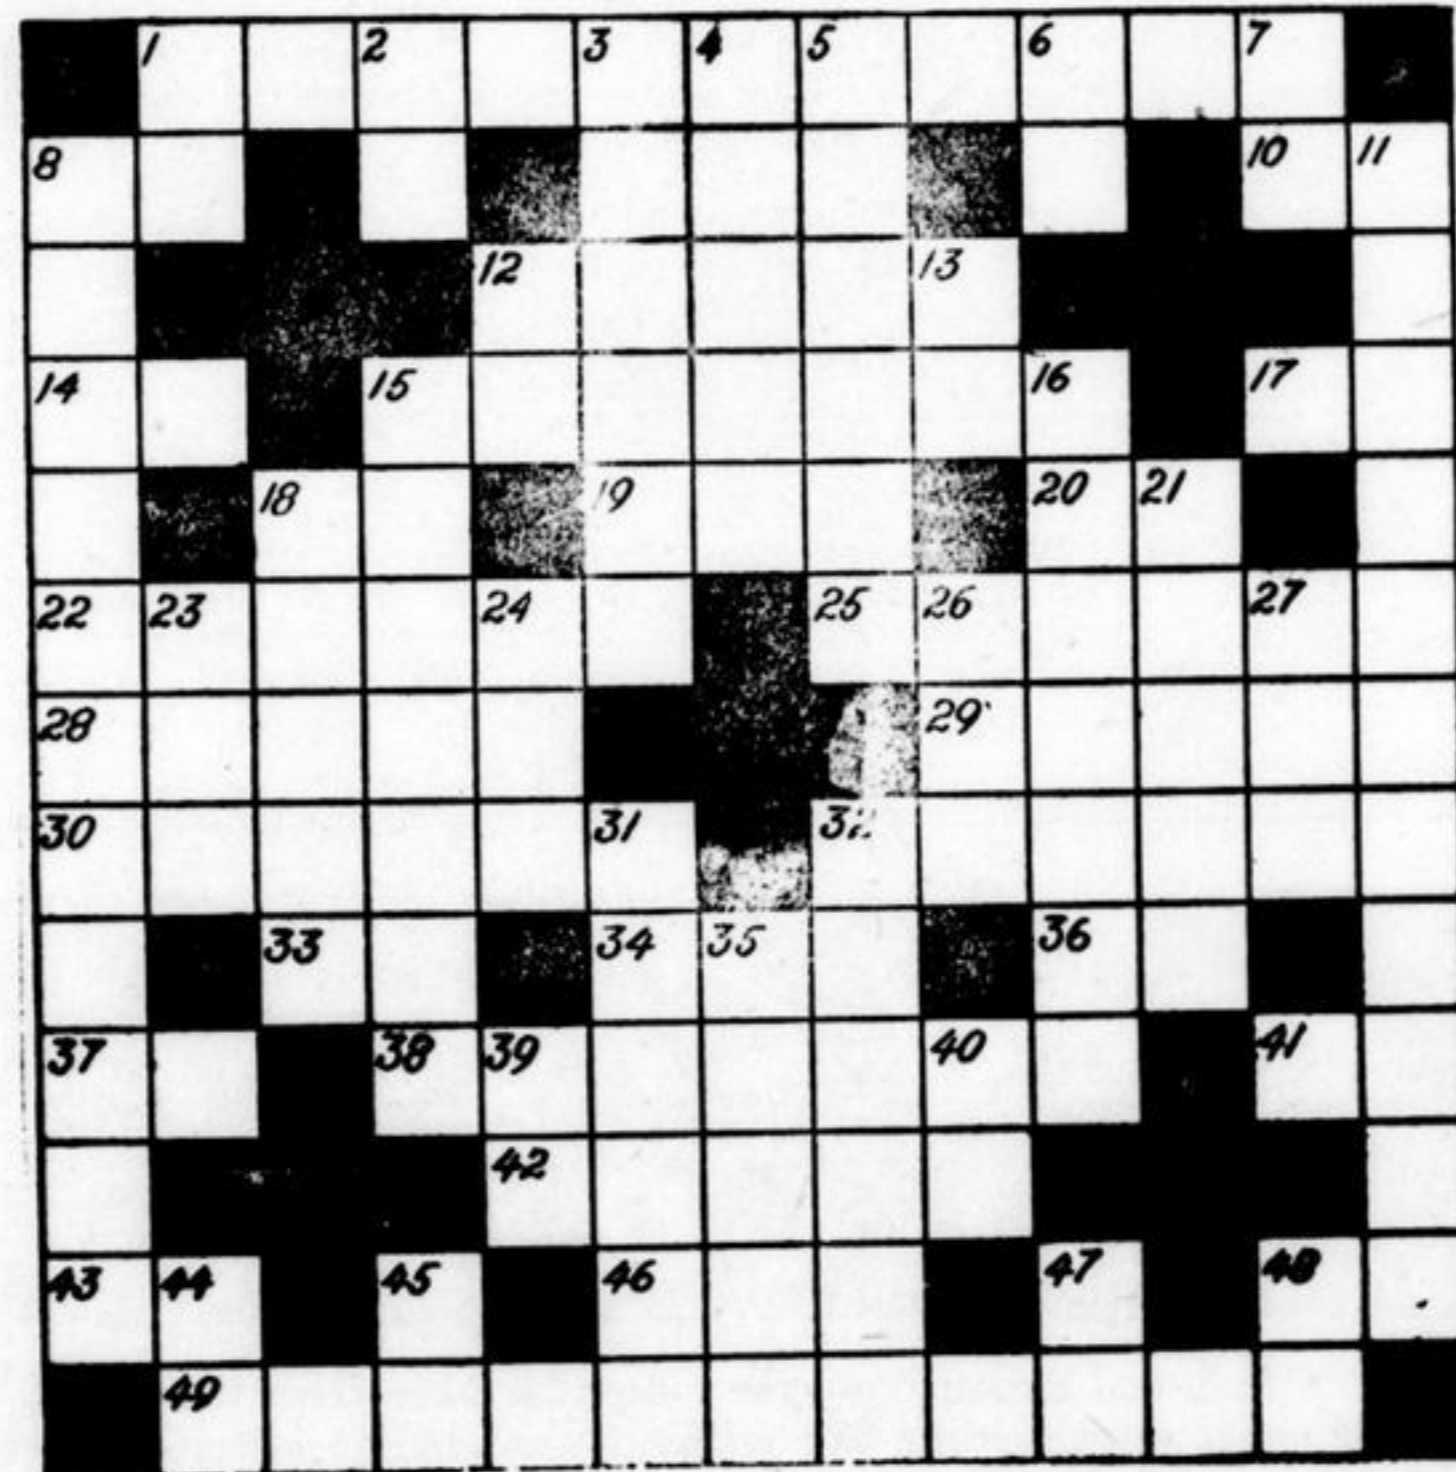

THERE'LL be no "easy pickings" for bandits who think the Forest Park, Ill. State Bank a good place to try their luck. Rather, they'll find it a big mistake—or, fatal we should say—to visit that money emporium and try to get rough with those in charge. That bank's officials have learned their lesson from the looting of other depositories. And, accordingly, they've taken precautions by mounting a business-like looking machine gun on a counter where it can spit lead to all corners of the floor. So bandits had better lay off that institution if they don't want to be wearing wooden kimonos. In the above photo, Cashier Albert Roos is explaining the machine gun's mechanism to Miss Elsie Rice, an employee.

Famous U. S. Army Scout Pays Capital a Visit

CONSIDERABLE interest and admiration was evinced by men high in public life at Washington, D.C., the other day when Chief I-See-O paid the capital an informal visit. The chief, a full-blooded Kiowa Indian, is the oldest Indian scout in the United States Army, and is extremely proud of his rank as sergeant. In the above photo, you see him garbed in the regulation army uniform and shaking hands with another famous man—former Speaker Gillette, of the House of Representatives. Chief I-See-O is 76 years old. He was first appointed as a scout to the U. S. Army by Gen. Hugh L. Scott (retired), former Chief of Staff. Gen. John J. Pershing reappointed him, and an act of Congress has established the veteran as a scout for life with his present rating. An interesting character, indeed.

Answer to Last Week's Puzzle No. 2

To Save Life at Sea. A New Type of Life Buoy

PRACTICAL tests—such as shown here—are being made over in Germany of this newly invented life buoy for use at sea. It cannot sink, and is capable of maintaining a person for several days until calls bring help. The body of it has a water-tight window, and its interior is equipped with a receptacle for food and a pistol for signalling. The photo shows the pistol being used for signalling through the window.
