

THE CHRONICLE PICTORIAL PAGE

Type Your Laundry Tickets on This

This, ladies and gentlemen, is a picture of the only Japanese typewriter in captivity. It is known as the "Hobon" typewriter. It inhabits the offices of Shanghai, Tokio and other Oriental cities; is quite harmless but somewhat difficult to control. It is more complicated than the Theory of Relativity, runs as smoothly as a tank crossing the Rockies and makes more noise than a dust by a boiler factory and a Salvation Army band.

Its function is that of typewriting the Japanese language. It was invented by an Irish mechanic named Kiota Sugimoto and was on the market in 1915. As a piece of machinery it is infinitely superior to the "typewriter Americana". The latter very seldom has more than 40 keys, the Hobon has three thousand; the Americana prints a total of 84 characters, and the Hobon nearly four thousand. Then again, anyone can operate the American variety but how many of our stenographers could run a Hobon, with its thousands of keys and hundreds of levers.

It has (as we suspected) a unique key-board arrangement. In fact, it has no key-board at all. The type is arranged face upward and serves the dual purpose of key-board and printing-type. To one side of the platen is a lever which, when depressed over the desired character, affectionately picks the character up, rubs it gently on an ink-roller and finally conveys it up to the platen on which the paper is rolled and thus, triumphantly prints the character.

We have stated that the machine is complicated but really it is simplicity itself — you merely learn the Japanese language and a few thousand of ideographic Chinese characters; familiarize yourself with the Hobon's three thousand keys, acquire mastery over its multiplicity of levers and then — go ahead and type.

The specimen shown above was captured by Canadian Pacific officials in China and now occupies much of the floor space of their office in Shanghai. The expert Chinese stenographer seated in front of it, has been known, when a rush is on, to produce as much as one whole page of neatly typed Chinese ideographs a day on his Hobon. This record has not yet been beaten.

Change For Carfare? No? Slot Provides It!

PATRONS of the New York subways are finding change-making machines—like the one pictured above—quite handy. They save time and cut down delay to the traveling public. The machine is automatic in its operation. Merely dropping a quarter or half-dollar into it brings the desired smaller change instantly. And the best part of it is, it can't be "beaten." It detects bad coins!

What the First Phonograph Looked Like

PERHAPS you folks who have a phonograph at home and who have enjoyed its entertainment for many years—have often wondered how far back the first "talking machine" was originated. Well, note the above contrivance. It's a gramophone first exhibited May 16, 1888. The record on it held a speech and was made of etched zinc. And your modern phonograph was designed from this very type of machine.

Stoney Indians Prepare for Celebration

1. Stoney Mountain Indians gathering in the hotel yard at Banff for the distribution of the Pow-wow prizes.
2. An Indian encampment scene. Insert: The Duke of Connaught as a Tschantoga chief.

These are Tschantoga or Stoney Mountain Indians—"people of the woods". Time was when they were a blood-thirsty lot, with a partiality for white men's scalps and an unpleasant habit of slaying anybody they did not happen to approve of. But look at them now. Their war-like glory has departed and they realize that the white-man is not such a bad sort of chap after all. Big Chief Powderface is as friendly as a Rotary president, and he and his six hundred braves come over every year to Banff, all decked out in their gala attire, and celebrate the burying of the hatchet by a two-day carnival and Pow-wow.

The occasion is called an "Indian Day and Pow-wow" and consists of a series of parades, sports and encampment scenes and events. It always takes place on the third Monday and Tuesday in July, falling this year on the 23rd and 24th.

The individual in the insert is not, and never was, blood-thirsty nor fond of scalps. It is the Duke of Connaught in his regalia as an Honorary Chief of the Stoney Mountain Tribe. The picture was taken on the occasion of His Excellency's visit to the Rockies when he was Governor-General of Canada during the war.

Day will be the thirty-third since its inauguration. After the field events, the members of the Tribe meet in the yard of the Banff Springs Hotel for the distribution of prizes. The big picture above depicts the scene which usually follows the prize distribution.

Cool and Charmingly Attractive--For Summer

IF OUR feminine readers are eager to learn what is fashionable and smartly correct for summer wear—they have but to study the charming costume shown here on Miss Claire Windsor, the movie star. It's an afternoon costume. The gown is of red and cream georgette crepe with a shawl collar of white organdie. The large picture hat of black straw is faced with cream chiffon and a chiffon scarf fading from a pale pink to a deep red encircles the gown and hangs over the right side. "Charming! Exquisite! Beautiful!" say those who have seen it!
