Contradicting The Golden Rule

(Helena H. Thomas)

It is generally conceded that, in the part of California where the writer lives, the "Japs" excel all other nationalities in the culture of small fruits and vegetables. Hence, it is a common thing to hear a housewife say, "I prefer to buy from the Jap peddler. His vegetables are always fresh from the truck gardens."

Indeed, I, too, have come to feel that way, and count myself very fortunate in a choice I made six months ago. This particular son of the Orient, who appears at our door every week with the most tempting fruit and vegetables the season affords, is surely an honor to his race. He is a man of about twenty-five years of age, I should judge. He has a keen, intelligent face, bright laughing eyes, and he could not be more cordially in manners if his patrons belonged to royalty.

As from time to time, I have noted that he is seemingly a stranger to the tricks of the trade in his line, and that he strives not only to please but to deal honorably. I have become greatly interested in him and have asked questions which elicited the information that he is associated with an older brother in running a ranch, and raising berries and vegetables.

He gave me to understand, too, that it was his choice to cultivate, rather than peddle, but that his brother, who has been "much years" in this country, said he would never learn to talk like an American if he stuck to garden work, so he was obliged to do what was not so much to his liking.

I had not found it easy, however, betwixt and between selecting fruit and vegetables, to lead up to what I wanted to know—whether the man who so faithfully served us had become interested in the flourishing "Japanese Mission" in our city, but one morning it all came out in a most unexpected and surprising way.

I had priced some luscious looking grapefruit, and received the reply "Six for two bits (twenty-five cents), lady. I pick out all the big ones for you!" as he reached for the largest.

"Oh, no," rejoined I, "take them just as they come. I wouldn't be fair to your other customers for me to have the best."

The Jap gave me a surprised look, and then, with a shrug of his shoulders, said, with a rising inflection, "I think you try for to keep it, lady. I like it so."

I had evidently said that I was puzzled and tried to make his meaning clear by adding: "Clistian, Golden Rule, I mean, lady, you forget it not."

Wishing to draw him out still further, but not on the street, I made no reply but concluded my purchases and followed the peddler to the rear of the house, and when he had emptied his basket, I ventured to say: "I judge from your remarks that you are on the lookout to see if your customers live up to the Golden Rule in this so-called Christian country."

"Yes, yes," was the hesitating reply, "but I not find many. Week days, when they want the best I got for half worth, mos' times, they forget Golden Rule, see?"

Yes, I did see, but was speechless. The Jap halted, however, and then with a catch in his voice pointing to another block, queried: "You know the lady in that big, big house?"

I knew her only by reputation as a woman of large means, and "near" as well, so I answered in the negative, at which my interrogator said: "She no Golden Rule Clistian! No!"

It seemed difficult for him to proceed, and so I ventured: "One cannot always judge rightly, you know."

"But I make no mistake, lady!" The Jap who was all eagerness now, as if to right himself, continued rapidly: "It was like this—My brother say go to Mission Bible school on Sunday. 'You learn English better,' I go. The lady in that big house my teacher. My, she talk good! So much Jesus talk I think some days I want to be Clistian like her. She teach us the Golden Rule, too, and every day after I learn that I put just as big berries on bottom of boxes all times. You understand, lady, I try to live it, like she say."

"Yes, I understand," was my reply, deeply touched to see how much more ready this foreigner was to put the Golden Rule into practice than many of our own people who have heard it all their lives, "and I am greatly interested, too. Please continue."

"I likes not to tell you," was the way he proceeded with a sorry shake of the head. "But I goes not to Bible school any more! My—my teacher she talk good, but she live bad—worse'n Pagan."

Hints for the Household

For April

By BETTY WEBSTER

Readers, Note: If you have any questions concerning Recipes, and other Household Hints you would like to ask Betty Webster—address her in care of The Durham Chronicle.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Hint for Baby's Creepers Instead of running in elastic at knees of baby's creeper, run oxford length shoe strings. These will not stretch and have to be replaced. The garment can be ironed flat, and the baby's leg will always appear neat. The ends of the shoe string can always be tucked inside.

Door Mat Aid

In the wet, spring weather, keep your door mat on your first step covered by roof or eaves instead of at the door entrance. In this way your steps will keep clean longer.

To Keep Cheese

Wrap cheese to be kept in paraffin paper. Then in an outer paper. Put elastic around this to keep wrapping close to cut surfaces.

BAKING HINTS

Whole Wheat Bread 2 cups of flour (sifted). 1 cup of whole wheat flour. 3/4 cups of sugar. 6 teaspoons of baking powder. Little salt. 3/2 cup of chopped nuts. 1/2 cup of chopped raisins. 1 cup of milk. 1 egg (well beaten).

Method: Mix in order given. Turn in well greased loaf pan. Bake from three-fourths of an hour to one hour.

Butterscotch Pie

(By Request) Make pie crust. Line pie tin with pit crust and bake.

Butterscotch Filling

1 cup of brown sugar. 1 cup of water. 2 eggs (separated). 2 heaping tablespoons of butter. 3 tablespoons of flour. 1 tablespoon of vanilla.

Method: Melt butter—mix the dry ingredients, add beaten yolks—stir well. Gradually add water and cook until it thickens. Fill pie shell. Make meringue using the two egg whites—two tablespoons powdered sugar—little baking powder. Brown in slow oven.

DESSERT AND BEVERAGE HINTS

California Orange Marmalade 12 navel oranges. 2 lemons. Sugar.

Method: Peel rind and take off white and throw away. Cut up pulp of oranges and lemons. Add equal quantity of water. Let stand over night. In the morning cook fast for 20 minutes. Measure and add equal amount of sugar. Cook half hour. Stir constantly with wooden spoon. Pack in jars. Cover when cool.

Nut Frappe

1/2 envelope of gelatine. 1/4 cup of cold water. 1/2 cup of sugar. 1 cup of cooked pineapple and strawberries.

1 cup cream or evaporated milk. 3/4 cup of milk. 1 cup of chopped nuts. 1 White of 1 egg.

Method: Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Add dissolved gelatine to whipped cream. Milk and sugar; stir in beaten egg white; add pineapple, strawberries and chopped nuts. Serve cold.

Delicious Spring Luncheon Dish

Place a piece of buttered toast on each plate. Put a slice of boiled ham on that and on top of the ham a generous helping of fresh asparagus. Serve Hollandaise Sauce on this. Top it all with fresh mushrooms well buttered and seasoned.

OLD DOBBIN HAS HIS FAULTS, TOO!

"Excuse me, lady, if I makes you sorry, but I tells you the truth. I sure thinks much of my teacher, other days—more'n anybody 'cept in Japan. Her Jesus talk soun' good till—till I peddle. When I sees her come to my wagon for to buy from me, I so glad I laugh out loud. But lady, I tell you true, she forget Golden Rule, 'cept Sunday. She lie fault! She want the best I got an' beat me down so's I not one cent make. Some days she say 'I got no money,' an' then she forget to pay an' gets mad when I ask her. So I quit her, an' I quit Bible school, too. Golden Rule no good for her, no good for me."

"Old Dobbin had his faults, but you didn't have to pour hot water on him to get him started."

"No! But! Sometimes 'Old Dobbin' required a monkey wrench on his ear to 'get him started!' Again, it often happened that more than a good driver was needed to get him stopped after he got started to 'run.' It wasn't a case of 'shutting off the gas,' or 'closing the throttle.' Dobbin's 'kick' was not at the front end, but at the rear, and often was damaging to both vehicle and driver after a 'back-fire.' Also when 'Old Dobbin' was well 'tired,' 'full of water,' and all 'gassed up,' his 'lamps' were then 'dimmed,' he had no 'spark' or 'pep,' and could not run a city block, but would 'lie down.' When he went 'dead,' no garage man could adjust his 'works,' and ever get him started again. Nor could his 'parts' be salvaged for further use in another Dobbin.—La Porte (Indiana) Argus.
