R. H. FORTUNE, AYTON LIBERAL CANDIDATE FOR PROV. HOUSE

said, a few friends in Sullivan, but he knew absolutely nothing about Euphrasia. He had been told that there wasn't a Grit vote in the whole Township, and said that if this were the case, it would be a rather uphill job to redeem the riding. The candidate criticized the present system of the Ontario Government in collecting the auto license money and keeping the whole of it instead of having a certain portion of it revert to the municipality in which it was collected, and criticized the Agricultural Enquiry Committee rather for their sins of omission than commission. He said that while they had done some apparent good for the farming industry, there were many things they had not done.

Dr. Fortune closed his address with stating the conditions on which he would accept the nomination. One of these was the matter of the O. T. A. If Premier Ferguson went to the country on a government control ticket, he (Dr. Fortune) was going to line up on the side of the O. T. A. His second condition was that he would have to be accepted as an Independent Liberal or not at all. The question having been put up to the meeting, his candidature was unanimously accepted, and he will contest the riding in the interests of the party at the next election.

Mr. Sinclair's Address

Mr. W. E. N. Sinclair was the first speaker and, following the general business meeting, addressed the gathering for upwards of an hour. He dealt with the financial aspect of the situation and declared that despite the announcement of Premier Ferguson, he was not in favour of the present government. He said that the provincial Treasurer Price, who was in charge of the present government, was most extravagant in his expenditure. In 1923 there had been a deficit of fifteen millions, in 1924 one of eight and a half millions, and in 1925 another five millions, making a total deficit since the government came into power of twenty-eight and a half millions. The interest on the debt of the province today was over a million and a quarter dollars. The public debt at the close of the last fiscal year was approximately 325 millions of dollars. At the present time, it took fifty-one and a half millions of dollars to run the province for twelve months, as compared with six millions in 1905, the last time the Liberals were in power.

Mr. Sinclair dealt with the claim of the Conservatives that there had in all that time been not one breath of scandal or misappropriation of funds in the Conservative party. This might be true enough, but there certainly was a charge of gross mismanagement and extravagance, and this alone was enough to defeat them at the next election. The increase in revenue boasted of by the present administration was something that did not interest the ratepayers; it was the increase in expenditure with which they were concerned. Any government could easily have an increase in revenue by the imposition of more taxes.

A Solution Needed

What this province wanted today was a government that could work out a solution of expenditure and get a reduction in the budget, a reduction in taxation, a thorough business government that would administer the affairs of the province economically. The speaker thought little of Treasurer Price's plan to wipe out the debt of the province in 40 years. There was only one way in which this could be done—pay it—and then call a halt on all unnecessary expenditure.

The Redistribution Bill also received considerable attention. Mr. Sinclair called to the attention of the meeting how the representation in the cities had been increased and that of the rural ridings decreased. Ten ridings had been cut off from the rural sections, and eleven additional seats given the city centres. Seven ridings had been disfranchised, and this despite the fact that the statutes called for the filling of these seats within ninety days after they were declared vacant. He took a fling at Premier Ferguson for wanting to be the whole show in the Government and referred to his speech in which he said that the bye-elections had not been held on account of the season of the year and the consequent bad roads. The Conservatives wanted good roads for elections, and they might transport easily some of the well-known article with which they generally won elections. By his arbitrary methods, the present Premier had forfeited all claim for a return of his party to power.

The People's Interests
In commencing his address, Hon. Nelson said that it was his own interests, and this was what they were doing in voting for the Liberal party. He took exception to the off-made statement that all politicians were grafters, and said he thought that generally speaking they were as honorable as any class of men. He had been out in politics himself and had found out that it cost him more than he made out of it.

He referred to Premier Ferguson's statement at London at which he was reported to have said that he would hold an election at the time it would, in his opinion, suit the interests of the Conservative party. This, said Mr. Parliament, was the stand always taken by the Conservative party. The party always stood first, the people and the country next. He said that it was up to the people to clean up politics, and in referring to the Government, said he would not say that they were stealing or grafting—they were merely extravagant.

Put the Liberal party in power, and an extravagance would cease, and a guarantee for this, he pointed to Ottawa. The Conservative party governed for the masses. The Conservatives thought that if you protected industry, the masses would also prosper; the Liberal party said that if you made the masses contented and prosperous, that industry would also prosper. "Let the party in power be the servants of the people, not the masters," said Mr. Parliament.

He dealt with the matter of the disposal of the timber limits in Northern Ontario and said that instead of selling them by competition, the present government was selling them by selection. In all tenders now, tenderers were compelled to put up a marked cheque for $50,000 which eliminated the man of limited means from securing any limits. The speaker criticized Mr. Ferguson for holding so many Cabinet jobs and wondered why he did it. Was there some reason for it? Was there something underhand at work that would not bear the light of day and something that would have to be concealed in case of an election?

Mr. Parliament called upon the young men to get into politics and not leave everything for the older citizens. The young blood was what was necessary, and there were numerous good openings in the Liberal party for the young man who would guard himself for the service. Service in the Provincial was just as the Liberal party been in power, the will of the people would rule.

The speaker criticized Mr. Ferguson for holding so many Cabinet jobs and wondered why he did it. Was there some reason for it? Was there something underhand at work that would not bear the light of day and something that would have to be concealed in case of an election?

Mr. Sinclair closed his address with an appeal to all opponents of the present Government to band together, and said that one of the hopes of the Liberal party was the choosing of lots of candidates throughout the Province. In the last election, he said that had all the Liberal candidates in the running been elected, the party would still have been unable to form a government. For its psychological effect, the Liberal party should have a candidate running in every riding. Then the people would have something to vote for. There was no use in voting for a candidate whose party could not function even if all the candidates were elected.

The speaker appealed to all to get together and vote Liberal. Progressive or F. F. O. There were in reality only two parties in politics the autocratic Conservatives and the non-Conservatives. If these latter could get together, they would win. At the last election, the Conservatives polled less than one-half the total vote, and look at the majority they received. Had the vote been fought out on the lines he advocated, the Conservatives would have had 56 members, and the non-Conservatives 55. He appealed for the united support of those opposed to the Conservative party.

Mr. Sinclair criticized Premier Ferguson for his refusal to stand by the O. T. A. and said that had important as in the Dominion Government, in fact, he thought the extravagance of a provincial government hit the pocket-books of the ratepayers harder than extravagance in the Dominion House. He advised the organization of committees in every riding if the party was to succeed, and said that organization was the biggest half of the battle.

The officers of the South Grey Liberal Association were all re-elected, with the exception of some minor changes made in the executive committee in the towns and townships. Charles Witthun, Hanover, is President, and S. B. Clarke, Hanover, Secretary. At this late hour Wednesday, we have been unable to secure a list of the other officials, but as they will likely be notified by letter, we will withhold the publication of the list until some future issue.

doubt be long remembered by those who heard them. Not only in the excellent sermons delivered, but in the amount of the offering also were the services among the most successful ever held by this church, the contributions taken in church work by the members in the kettle and added much to the day's success. Besides the usual anthems, there was a men's chorus and an excellently rendered solo by Mrs. C. G. Middlebro'. We heartily congratulate the congregation on the successful work of the past year and commend them for the enthusiasm displayed and determination to make the coming year even more successful than the last.
