

DIAMOND WEDDING ANNIVERSARY IS FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Wilson, Pioneer Residents of Eggleston Township, Were Married and Though Both Have Four-Score Mark, Are Still and Hearty.

Saturday last was an extraordinary day in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Wilson of Eggleston Township. It was on this day that the esteemed couple celebrated their twentieth anniversary of their wedding, and to make it more usually happy, all the members of their family were gathered under the same roof to assist in the celebration.

Willowdale (Our Own Correspondent) Mrs. George Alexander and Mrs. Clark Torry spent a few days the first of the week in Durham helping to attend their mother, Mrs. Thomas Bailey, who is seriously ill.

Darkies' Corners (Our Own Correspondent) It feels as though summer had come. A gloom was cast over the community on Thursday last when the sad news spread of the sudden passing away of an esteemed resident of this locality in the person of Mr. William Hargrave, who had been ill only a short time with pneumonia.

Edge Hill (Our Own Correspondent) The Little of Owen Sound visited the Genetross and McNally families last week. Miss Carrie Mitchell of town visited over the week-end with Miss Rita Genetross.

Glenmont (Our Own Correspondent) A number from this neighborhood attended the funeral of the late W. Hargrave at Durham on Saturday. Mr. Hargrave spent the greater part of his life in this neighborhood, and the sympathy of the whole community is extended to his widow and family, aged mother and other friends.

Rocky Saugeen (Our Own Correspondent) Mr. and Mrs. James Miller and family spent a day recently with Mr. P. Hepburn in town. Mrs. James Ledingham and daughter, Elsie, spent the 24th with her sister, Mrs. L. McLean.

Glenelg and Pricerville (Our Own Correspondent) Fine seeding weather during the past week, and many were trying to finish, but there is a lot to do yet. Early sown is showing that there is a growth by being up and green looking.

Editors are not responsible for correspondents views and items. Some correspondents are so selfish that they will not notice anything that may be contrary to their own minds. We learn from the Pricerville writer to The Chronicle that the Presbyterian Hall was crowded on Communion Sunday. He may be a Unionist for all we know, but not a selfish one.

On a certain church in the highlands of Scotland, there was an engraving of a clock in the end of the Kirk. The minister met one of the elders and gave him a rebuke for having anything false about the Lord's house. "Verra well, verra well," said the old elder, "but excuse me Mr. Minister. Whether it is fair false to have the engraving of a clock on the head of the Kirk than for the minister to have a false head of hair on him (a wig)?"

When we were a boy going to school, one of the lessons we read in the old second book was "Let dogs delight to bark and bite, for God has made them so." Let bears and lions growl and fight, for 'tis their nature to do so.

When we were a boy going to school, one of the lessons we read in the old second book was "Let dogs delight to bark and bite, for God has made them so." Let bears and lions growl and fight, for 'tis their nature to do so. But remember, if one family should not disagree, be but there many men of different minds, hence the division made by the Unionists being in the majority. In North Guelph, there were a clan of religionists who called themselves United Brothers. They put up a neat, brick church on the Holland side, but only lasted for a couple of years. The assessor put them down as U. B. They were mostly Presbyterians and Methodists, but when they could carry on no longer, they all returned to their old churches, a good Unionist Presbyterian and a good Unionist said that Union was the cause of bitterness in a mild form between ministers in some instances of one family. Pricerville is a strong Presbyterian congregation, although put down into McKinnon Hall, but is comfortably seated with chairs. The St. Columbia church is well patronized by Methodists and a minority of Presbyterians, and if we don't go to Pricerville very often, we have ears to hear (although defective) of the good done in a sister denomination in the old St. Columbia church, the latter having an Irish pastor and the other a highland Scotchman, the Rev. Mr. Sutherland, and the Rev. Mr. McCormick of Irish descent.

Now Mr. Editor, perhaps we are intending on your space too much, but it is either a feast or a famine with our correspondents. The many funerals during the last week will be noticed by the different correspondents in each place. We congratulate Mr. Johnnie Dunbar, who was ordained to the priesthood last Saturday. There was never such a gathering in St. John's church as there was on Sunday when the new priest said his first mass. John is a young man now to be called "Father," and we vouch for the sentiment of all his youthful companions and older ones in wishing him long life in performing the duties entrusted to him as a faithful pastor.

We attended Sunday school last Sunday at Edge Hill, and the superintendent and teachers are to be congratulated on the fine attendance for a country school. How beautiful the words of the Master, who said, suffer little children come unto Me, etc, for there are little ones attending and older ones, fine music and suitable hymns and enthusiasm. There was a good church attendance Sunday to hear the venerable missionary, Rev. Mr. McKay, once of Formosa. The reverend gentleman is getting up in years, but his power of speech is very good yet. This Monday morning, May 31, is warm, and everything has a fine appearance. The sick ones are getting better. Mr. Hugh McKinnon has been in Durham Hospital for nearly two months, but he will probably be going home this week, and all his good-will wishers will be glad to see him back again.
