

CONSERVATIVES CHOOSE R. T. EDWARDS TO OPPOSE MISS MACPHAIL IN COMING DOMINION ELECTIONS

persons running in this riding have endeavored to permeate the country with the feeling that they should have anything to do with the town. This habit of trying to put the country against the town, and vice versa, was a sad mistake, said the speaker, when "four interests are one."

Mr. Edwards said that he had been born and raised on the farm, had lived on the farm all his life, was still living there and actively engaged in agriculture, and that there were spots on his farm in Glenora as sacred to him as the altar of his church. Speaking for himself, he had never had any reason to find fault with the "town" people for their treatment of him. If he was in trouble, he could always find a town resident who was just as anxious to lend a helping hand as any of his country neighbors, and he objected strenuously to the practice of trying to turn the town against the country for political purposes.

Would Heip Candidate Selected Dr. L. G. Campbell, Muskdale, who unsuccessfully contested the riding last year, was the next speaker. Though successful in reducing Miss Macphail's majority of over 2,500 in 1921 to 1,407 in 1925, and possibly the logical choice of the party for another "try," Dr. Campbell retired in favor of Mr. Edwards, and while he had put up a good fight in 1925, he was, to use his own words, "not quite good enough."

A Happy Outlook In his address, James Russell said that one thing that had been the matter with past political campaigns in the Dominion House was that the Conservative candidate had never forgotten that there was a lady in the field. He thought this was wrong and that when Miss Macphail undertook things political, she should be placed on an equal footing with any other candidate and not on a pedestal. He was absolutely opposed to her general nonsensical ideas, notably prison reform, and asked the audience how they would like to have the Red Lyons and other criminals now incarcerated in our jails, released and met at the prison gates and presented with a donation from the "Agnes Macphail Endowment Fund."

Best Convention Yet Mon. Dr. D. Jamieson was the next speaker. He considered his nomination on this occasion as a "practical joke," and said that he already was the candidate for the Provincial House and had his hands full.

He was greatly enthused by the attendance and pronounced it "the best convention in forty years." This was as far back as the Dr. could remember things politically in South Grey, but he made the statement without fear of contradiction that Monday's gathering was the best, biggest and most enthusiastic Conservative gathering in that number of years.

Mr. J. D. McDowell thought it was not impossible to defeat Miss Macphail. She was not impregnable by any means, and a well-directed campaign, in his opinion, could not see anything but success if the candidate selected received the support he should from the Conservatives in the riding.

He referred to the recent customs investigation and said among other things: "We are going to pursue to the last ditch. We have proven that $30,000,000 a year has been pilched from the treasury of Canada by scoundrels of all types. I read four sentences of the unpublished part of that report, and although I have been one of the boys in my day and have been in a lot of funny places, this was so vile that I said to the man who handed it to me to take it away. I didn't want to see any more of it. I did not think that humanity could sink to such depths of depravity. These people had at their head Bisaulon, protected by Mackenzie King and his administration. When men in high places lose their morals, they lose their regard for the duties of office and forget they are representing people back home who are trying to do an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. When the heads of departments debauch a service which collects about $150,000,000 a year, why should it be necessary for the member for South-East Grey to say to Parliament, 'It is with agony I find myself compelled to vote against the administration.'"

Protection Needed The time has come for the purging of the administration, continued Mr. Harris, and he advised his hearers, hot weather or cold, "Go to it until the 14th of September and then see that this Conservative party carries out its platform and does not stop at the customs department, but goes through all departments."

Referring to Miss Macphail, he said that he could not see that she had ever done anything for the country except rake the good old riding of South Grey from stem to stern. The Mackenzie King doctrine is diametrically opposed to what is required in this country. The late Premier was considered the "greatest political faker I have ever seen, and if he were trying to sell us out to the United States, he could not have accomplished it better."

The Address of the Day Joseph Harris, ex-M.P., Toronto, was the speaker for the afternoon. He dealt mostly with the Australian treaty and the tariff as it affects things agriculturally. He considered it was a man-sized job to redeem South-East Grey, but said that if the people here could ever get hold of the facts of the custom scandal, that Miss Macphail would lose her seat on her record here, if nowhere else. In this scandal, it was shown that there were 150 millions of dollars coming into the exchequer and being handled by a man, who, to use Miss Macphail's own words, was "the chief of the underworld of Montreal."

Potatoes imported into Canada in 1924 amounted to approximately 24 millions of pounds; in 1925 there had been 62 millions of pounds imported. This was not good business when Canadian farmers had this same foodstuff rotting in their pits for want of a market.

The big need of Canada today was a thorough study of new conditions for marketing the produce of the farmer rather than the taking off of the duty and allowing the United States growers to dump their surplus into this country. There was a dumping law in force, but it had not been enforced until very recently—since the Merigan Government had taken over the reins of power at Ottawa.

The wheat pool was another movement for which certain parties took full credit. This was in reality the product of Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Conservative party. Farmers pools had not been satisfactory.

In the same manner, our industrial workman to hold his job, he told the farmers present. They in turn will remain in Canada, eat your foodstuffs, and make prosperous times for all of us.

Amongst those on the platform were M. Duncan, ex-M.P., and Colin S. Cameron, ex-M.P.P., Owen Sound, the former representing North Grey at the last session.

Towards the close of the meeting, Mr. H. McLaughry of Artemesia moved a vote of thanks to Dr. L. G. Campbell for his services to the party. This was given most heartily, as well as three rousing cheers for the candidate in the present campaign.

Wrong Meaning Mr. Newwedd had come home in very good spirits after a prosperous day in the city.

"My love is like a red, red rose," he said, as he kissed his wife. "Bertie," said Mrs. Newwedd, tearfully, "don't be unkind! You'd be like a red, red rose if you'd been bending over the frying-pan for twenty-minutes."
