

For The Quiet Hour

AN EVENING PRAYER

Forgive us for the smiles we failed to give,
Smiles on which saddened hearts may live,
And yet—and yet we failed to give!

Forgive us the words we've left unsaid,
Words that feed hungry hearts like bread,
And yet—and yet were left unsaid.

And for the little deeds we've left undone,
That might have cheered some lonely one,
And yet—and yet were left undone.

Forgive us, Thou who knowest us so well,
That we have failed our love to tell
By smiles and words and deeds as well.

CIVILIZED SOCIETY REJOICES IN THE PROTECTION afforded to it by strong armed law. Those in whom faith in God is strong feel the name sense of security in the deepest wilds. An invisible good influence surrounds them, to whom they may appeal in distress, an influence which inspires noble thoughts, comfort in grief, and resolution when weakened by misfortune.

I imperfectly understand this myself, but I have faith and believe. I know that when I have called, I have been answered, strengthened and assisted. I am prone to forgetfulness, and to much pride; but I cannot forget that when an accusing thought entered my soul like a sword I became penitent and responded. Subduing my unbelief, I prayed, and obtained a soothing grace which restored to me a confidence and cheerfulness which was of benefit to myself and others.—Henry M. Stanley.

AN OLD ENGLISH VILLAGER WENT UP TO LONDON and visited one of our great picture-galleries. Presently he came upon a wonderful painting of the crucifixion. As he gazed upon it, his whole soul caught fire. Tears came to his eyes. "Bless Him!" he exclaimed aloud; "I love Him! I love Him!" Others in the gallery looked on at first with startled curiosity, and then with profound emotion. A stranger approached the countryman and, grasping his hand, exclaimed, "And so do I!" A third came up, "And so do I!" And then a fourth, until there stood, before the picture of the cross, a little knot of men, perfect strangers to each other, whose souls had kept tryst in the love of Christ.—F. W. BOREHAM, The Golden Milestone.

GEORGE FOX WAS A STRIKING, IMPRESSIVE MAN to look at. There was a certain majesty about his presence, his friend William Penn tells us. His eyes possessed an extraordinary power and seemed to look right through a person. "Take thy eyes off me; they pierce me!" one man cried out as Fox steadily gazed at him. Ministers were often afraid to face him. When Francis Howgill saw Fox look on him through the door of Firbank Chapel as Howgill was trying to preach, he was so embarrassed that, he says, anyone could have killed him with a crab apple! Again and again fierce opponents wilted down in debate when they saw this calm, serene man in front of them. The Cambridge students endeavored to pull him off his horse when Fox came to their university town with his message, but they could not unhorse him. "I kept on my horse's back," he says, "and rid through them in the Lord's power. Oh! said they, he shines; he glitters." After he had spoken in Beverly Minister, a great lady of Beverly told Justice Hotham of that town that "an Angel or Spirit came into the church at Beverly and spoke the wonderful things of God, to the astonishment of all that were there; and when it had done, it passed away, and they did not know whence it came nor whither it went; but it astonished all, priests, professors and magistrates."—The Story of George Fox.—RUFUS M. JONES.

"OF THIS ONE THING I AM SURE," SAID DEAN Charles R. Brown of Yale Divinity School in an address, "when I ride through the streets of our cities and towns, or when I scan the amusement columns of the daily papers, this amusement-loving age of ours does not seem to be in such sore need of more moving picture shows that the Christian church should go into the moving picture business in order to meet any such alleged need. Six days the movies labor and do their work,—the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it let them rest if they will, that their man servants and their maid servants also may rest; and because the people get enough of the movies during the other six days, let us undertake to give them something better on Sundays."

EVERY CHURCH FACES THE PROBLEM OF APPEALING to the passerby,—of reminding him continually of the church, its ideals and doctrines, and their application to his daily life. Strangely enough, the silent but effective appeal of the illuminated stained-glass window has been overlooked. Twenty million dollars have been invested in these beautiful works of art, yet unlighted they are effective for only a few hours each week.

Men prominent in religious affairs have been awakened to this situation, and as a result, a plea has recently been made to light these windows every evening in the week, lighted from within, these windows become an every-evening inspiration to all who pass by. When brought out by means of transmitted light, the Biblical scenes and characters portrayed carry messages which are rich in sentiment and strong in their appeal.

A ZOOLOGIST SAYS: "IT IS, I FIND, THE SAME IN zoology as in botany; all nature is so full that that district produces the greatest variety which is the most carefully examined."

"THE OTHER DAY I WAS WORKING ON A REVISION of the Lord's Prayer in the Tai Ya, the dialect here, when we came to the clause regarding the forgiving of our debts. It had been translated "trespasses," which is a very difficult and clumsy expression in this language. When I explained to the man helping me that our version of this is debts, which is a single word here also, he spoke right up and said, 'Why, to be in debt is the greatest of trespasses!'

Donate Surplus to Agricultural Society

A meeting of the Arthur Old Boys' Reunion Association was held in the Council chamber on Monday evening. Some routine matters in connection with the winding up of the Reunion business were dealt with, after which the question of how to dispose of the surplus on hand, received consideration. A motion was adopted donating the entire amount to the Arthur Agricultural Society to be applied on the indebtedness of the agricultural hall and skating rink. $1,500 will be paid over at once, and the balance when all outstanding accounts are settled. The total surplus will be $2,000 or within a few dollars of it. At present, in addition to a mortgage for $4,000 on the rink, the Agricultural Society has an indebtedness of something over $2,000, a part of which was incurred to erect the new grandstand. With the grant from the Old Boys' Reunion Association, it is hoped this year to clear off everything but the mortgage, which should then easily be disposed of in the course of a very few years. The rink was put up at a cost of about $14,000, including the expense of drilling the well. With only a mortgage of $4,000 on its fine grounds, skating rink and grandstand, the Agricultural Society will be in a splendid financial condition.—Arthur Enterprise.

Beaten and Robbed

Mrs. Baker, an aged woman who lives alone on the third concession of Inisfil, was the victim of a cowardly and brutal assault and robbery at the hands of two thugs, one of whom wore a mask, early Tuesday morning of last week. They had apparently entered by the window with the object of robbing the defenceless woman. Mrs. Baker attempted to protect her property and was roughly assaulted by the men, who threw her down and choked her. She got away and ran to a neighbor's house and gave the alarm but when they came back, the thugs had gone, having driven off in a motor-car. They got about $10 in money and some jewelry and trinkets. Mrs. Baker had in the house a larger sum of money which she had drawn from the bank in Bradford a few days previously, but the robbers failed to locate it. It is thought that they had learned that she was in possession of a considerable sum of money and were trying to get it.—Greenmore Star.

Leg Gashed by Hayknife

Mr. John P. Haelze of the B concession was the victim of an accident last Saturday which nearly cost him his life. He and his hired man were in the hay mow cutting out a section of hay with a hayknife. After the hired man had finished his part of the job, Mr. Haelze, who was in a lower part of the mow, asked him to throw the knife down to him. The knife, on being thrown down, glanced unexpectedly toward Mr. Haelze, penetrating his leg at the calf, and bulging the skin at the other side. The weapon severed several arteries and blood vessels, and the blood spouted out at an alarming rate. Dr. Carpenter was hastily summoned, and he managed to check the flow sufficiently to have the patient removed to the Walkerton hospital where, assisted by Drs. McCue and Robertson of Walkerton, he was able to tie up the ruptured blood vessels and stop the flow of blood. Mr. Haelze is very weak from loss of blood, but expects to be able to return home in a few days.—Mildmay Gazette.

Lady Didn't Like County Exhibit

On Monday morning we were standing in the new Government Building watching Mr. Cloumen putting the finishing touches to the County Exhibit. On the wall was a large map showing where the turnips go to in the United States, and one large turnip fastened to it above the State of Indiana. A woman stopped in front of the booth and spoke to the proprietor. "What's the idea of the turnip covering the State of Indiana? Do you think we are all pigs over there?"

"Oh," asked Mr. Clemens, "do you come from that state?" "Yes I do," replied the indignant lady.

Model Compound Steam Engine

Charles Pope of Brussels had his model compound steam engine at the Toronto Exhibition this year. The whole machine, from the ending of the first boiler plate to the last stroke of the paint brush was completed by Mr. Pope, the work being done during leisure hours which extends over five years. The patterns, core-boxes and every single piece of it was made and machined by Mr. Pope. The engine is a complete model of a compound road locomotive, mounted on springs, back and front, and the engine is designed with a specially designed combined steam chest and cylinders, which were entirely evolved by Mr. Pope.—Wingham Advance-Times.

THE NEW SCHARNHORST

Just as Scharnhorst rebuilt the Prussian army after its disastrous defeats by Napoleon and laid the foundation for the military dominance of Germany in the nineteenth century, so General von Seeckt is reconstituting a German army and laying the foundation, as he hopes, for fresh military glory for that country. He is the commander of the Reichswehr and has at present only one hundred thousand men to work with, but it is said he is training those men so carefully that all of them will in the end be competent to command regiments or at least companies. Von Seeckt is said to be the most popular figure in Germany, and he has the confidence of the people as no politician and no other army officer has it. He has no political entanglements and belongs to no party, but devotes himself single-heartedly to building up a body of men who can, when the time comes that Germany is no longer bound by the restrictions of the Versailles treaty, undertake the training and command of a great national army.

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound

Mining, Ontario.—"I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed, I would be so weak. Then he read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, so he went and got it for me. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel any bearing-down pains I always take it; sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have told many a one about it. Any one wanting to know more about Lydia E. Finkham's Vegetable Compound, I will gladly write to her. I do all I can to recommend it for I feel I owe my life and strength to it."—Mrs. NEAL BOWSER, R. R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

Years back, children had a rough gastronomy—no soup, no pie. And the soup, however distant.

The Problem of Feeding
Making children eat what is for them always has been, it is always will be one of the problems connecting with the bringing up. Acting on the part that there are tricks in every, we submit some methods that have been found effective in making children eat.

First of all, however, the child should learn the reason behind child's capricious appetite. It may be a physical cause at the bottom, and this should be corrected. But generally it is all a matter of training, as the normal child eat whenever his stomach is full.

Sometimes the fault lies with parent, who does not use proper discipline with the result that the child is willful, irritable or stubborn. Instead of being spoiled, stubborn and tractable.

Some Ways to Solve the Problem

Assuming that a child is healthy and mentally normal, but lacks interest in his food, the following measures will be found helpful:

Milk—Let the child take it in a straw. Allow him to pour it himself into his glass. Sometimes appetite is stimulated by filling his glass, often the milk be disguised by incorporating cocoa, soups, eggs, custards, cereal, Chowder, puddings, and eggs is exhibited, they may be put in custards, etc.

OUTDOOR WINTERING

Though outdoor wintering coming very popular and is considered highly successful, there come in reports of losses; however, are usually the result of inadequate preparations being made for the winter, says A. H. W. Apiarist, Central Experimental Station, Ottawa, Ont.

Wintering outdoors means than merely placing one's chickens in their winter cases, and then there to pass the winter means preparing the bees. The best way possible that they come out strong in the spring the strong colonies at the end of the winter.

With this in view, proper should be started about the July by seeing that the colonies headed by young queens or vigorous ones, in order that force of young bees may be secured. Should there be no bees to stimulate brood rearing, it is necessary to feed.

Winter cases having been according to one's own design drawings which may be written to the Bee Division, Experimental Farm, Ottawa, at the end of September or after being weighed, are placed
