Town Grave Diggers In nearly every community may be found quite a number of persons who consider themselves leading citizens, but who, in truth, are helping to dig a grave for their town. They do it through their failure to support the institutions which make the town what it is. They do it by sending away for merchandise which might be bought with equal advantage at home. They do it frequently through thoughtlessness, but oftener through sheer

Her success was instantaneous and since that time, her forte has been roles of women with a past. She is undeniably a dramatic actress of excellent ability.

In "The Man From Red Gulch." she deserts her husband, Falloner, for a gambler named Lasham, whom she accompanies to California in the gold rush days. Here she assists Lasham in maintaining a gambling and dance resort. The two children she deserted are brought back to her by Sandy, but by a strange twist of fortune she is not permitted to reveal her identity to them. Their meeting constitutes one of the most dramatic incidents in this fine melodramatic photoplay. Mr. Carey is seen as a miner who
