Latona

(Our Own Correspondent) Mr. Jack Ray had the misfortune to lose his valuable horse last week.

Miss Norma Gagnon spent the week end with her friend, Myrtle Mortley.

Sorry to hear that Jack Ledingham is sick. Hope he soon recovers. A number from around here attended Mike Smith's sale on Monday.

About 150 neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mortley on Tuesday, March 1st, to bid them farewell before they left for their new home in Durham.

Mr. Wm. Smith called them to order and a short programme of music and speeches was given. At the proper time Mr. and Mrs. Mortley were called forward and Mr. Colin McIntyre read the address on behalf of the community and Mr. Wm. Robertson made the presentation. Mrs. George Tracey read the address for the Dornoch Women's Institute and Miss Margaret McIntosh and Mrs. Colin McIntyre made the presentation.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mortley thanked their many kind friends in a few chosen words and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and card playing.

The addresses are as follows: To Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mortley: Dear Friends:

We, your assembled friends and neighbors, on the eve of your departure from our midst, take this opportunity of showing our appreciation of the many excellent qualities of heart and hand that have characterized you as citizens during your long abode in our community and at the same time to express our sincere wishes for a continuance of happiness and prosperity in your new abode.

The occasion that calls us together tonight is one that has many parallels in life, for many times we are called upon to say farewell to friends and fellow-workers, to those with whom we have associated in true fellowship, to those whom we have learned to honor and trust and in consequence these farewells gathered with grief and regret for friends constant, true and tried are among earth's rarest and richest possessions.

But we should also remember that these changes and departures in life are often for our own benefit, for still the words of the great poet ring true, "Rejoice that man is hurled from change to change unceasing, his soul-wings never furled," for it is thus that man is stimulated and strengthened to broaden out into the fuller and richer life.

Your departure will leave a vacancy in the community life difficult to fill. We have appreciated the generous hospitality of your helpful interest in all church activities the contribution your family have made to the best in community life and your honesty of purpose and diligence in your chosen work.

Our feelings are modified by the knowledge that you will not be lost to Canada or the Empire and that your new abode is not so remote but that we may still have contact and pledge anew the friendship of the past.

To show in some way other than mere words that our feelings are genuine, we ask you to accept this memento of the occasion, a walnut china cabinet as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held by your large circle of friends.

We trust you will be long spared to enjoy life in the fullest measure amid your new environments and "when to the sessions of sweet silent thought you summon up remembrance of things past" may the evening of your lives be gladdened and refreshed by reflection on the many happy experiences of your life among friends and scenes from which you now depart.

Again assuring you of our conscientious interest in your future well-being.

Signed on behalf of the Community.

Colin McIntyre, Wm. Robertson, Wm. Smith.

To Mrs. Mortley: Dear Friend:

On learning of your intended departure from us, we, your co-workers in the Women's Institute, felt we could not let this opportunity pass without some recognition of your faithful service in our Institute. You have been a member for a number of years and have always done your share in all our undertakings for Home and Country.

Signed on behalf of Dornoch Women's Institute.

J. W. LUNNEY, FORMER BENTINCK BOY HONORED AT REGINA

I refer to the presentation to Jack Lunney by the president of a life membership and gold medal, signifying the greatest honor which any curlier can be paid by the great brotherhood of curling.

Mr. Lunney has been president of the association, and one of its most active supporters, for over nineteen years. The value of the services rendered to the game by Jack Lunney cannot be realized by those who are not actively engaged in the arduous task of running the big provincial spiel. This honor is very sparingly conferred. Outstanding services for a long period of time, and the admiration and respect of the fraternity must be obtained and held by the fortunate recipient of the scroll of life membership of the association. It is no disrespect to the other life members to say that the latest addition to their ranks in the person of Jack Lunney lends additional prestige to the privileged few who already enjoy that distinguished honor, the highest degree in the fraternity of the grand old game of Scotland. It will be a long while before the association has the pleasure of granting a life membership to a curlier with a record in any way approaching that of the latest recipient. My he live long to enjoy it!

Old friends of Mr. Lunney in Durham and Bentinck will join with us in extending the congratulations of Easterners, to mingle with those received in the West, and with the hope that he may long enjoy his favorite winter pastime. This former resident of Aberdeen is now a resident of Mildred, Sask., where, we understand he has prospered since going west. Mr. Lunney was east a few years ago renewing old friendships and will probably make a trip down this way shortly on a tour of his old haunts.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH BIGGER THAN SECT

of England or Anglican from January 1 to December 31 in this church, except you hear it from the preacher. So far as the official service is concerned, there is no use of the word. When you and I were baptized it was not into the Church of England, but the Christian church, the idea being that that holds good all over the world. I was not ordained into the Church of England, but the church all over the world.

"The creed refers to the Holy Catholic church. It is defined in the prayer book on page 32. 'All who profess and call themselves Christians,' and on page 66, in the bidding prayer, 'For the whole congregation of Christian people dispersed throughout the world.' Take the communion office and the same things occur twice: 'All they that do confess Thy holy name,' and 'the blessed company of all faithful people.' The appendix gives the definition, 'A congregation of faithful men in which the pure word of God is preached and the sacraments faithfully administered.'

World-Wide

"We want to get out of our minds the thing called the Anglican church. As far as our prayer book is concerned, that does not exist. We want to think in terms of the universal. I hope here is nothing narrow in trying to keep before us the church in its universal aspect. We get into trouble when we keep emphasizing the sectarian side. The public insist in calling me an Anglican. I am no such thing; I am a Christian, and that is all I can acknowledge officially. It was a matter of convenience to accept a label, but it is not mine, and was attached to me by the other fellow. I see no denominationalism in the New Testament, and I thank God in the English prayer book they did not get into that atmosphere, but stood away up on the level of the church universal—All who profess and call themselves Christians."

"Most people will say, 'You insist upon confirmation before we can come to communion.' We are classified by the general public, you know, among that particular coterie called in popular language 'close communion' denominations. But the real regulation regarding approach to holy communion is found on the page of the Prayer Book itself: 'Ye that do truly and earnestly repent you of your sins, and are in love and charity with your neighbor, and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God, draw near with faith and take this sacrament to you comfort.'

"Who am I? Did God appoint me a judge or divider between men? No, that is the official invitation of the prayer book. The rubric calling for confirmation before coming to communion is a matter of internal discipline and order and, as I told a woman who had been a member of the now defunct body known as Methodists, it was in the prayer book long before the Methodist church was dreamed of, and therefore could not have been aimed at her."

A man and his wife were at the theatre.

"Say, Pat, what does 'Asbestos' mean on the curtain?"

"Be still, Mag, don't show your ignorance; that's Latin for 'welcome'."

MIDLAND TO HAVE NEW RINK

A deal has just been completed by Gus Georgias on behalf of himself and brothers whereby the site and adjoining property on Midland Ave. occupied by the rink, recently burned, has been purchased from Hugh Wilson. We understand that it is the intention of the Georgias brothers to erect a mammoth rink building thereon, which will cover the old site and the lot alongside. The new building it is said, will be as large as the Toronto Arena and it is proposed to use it during the summer as a place for automobile storage. As the building will have to be of brick to comply with the fire bylaw the undertaking looks like a big one and we would not be surprised if it ran into an expenditure of $50,000 or $60,000. Georgias brothers are enterprising, however and they may be relied upon to put a good deal of energy and capital into the new project.—Midland Argus.
