JOURNALISTS MAKE GOOD TITLE WRITERS

"Journalistic Training Invaluable" Says Stromberg, Newspaper Man, Himself.

Hunt Stromberg, youthful producer of motion pictures states that a newspaper training is invaluable in the writing of screen titles.
A former newspaper man himself, and a producer who writes most of the titles for his own presentations, he further states that training in writing newspaper headlines is essential, due to the need of expressing the concise meaning in a few choice and colorful words.

"If the story is to hold interest, it must be well told," says Stromberg. The subtitles not only link the story together but they actually tell it."
This famous producer is also vitally interested in titleless pictures, and while he states that he does not believe the days of such screen productions are yet at hand, and it is still problematical if such productions will ever attain any degree of stability, it nevertheless represents a distinct advance.

Titles for all Stromberg productions are given the same minute care and thought that each foot of pictorial film receives.
As an example of this he points out that in making "The Prairie Pirate" the newest Harry Carey release at the Veterans' Star Theatre on Friday and Saturday, April 15 and 16, one-fifth of the time allotted to making the picture was spent on titles alone.

Other screen celebrities appearing in this latest Producers Distributing Corporation release are Trilby Clark, Robert Edeson and Lloyd Whitlock.
Mrs. Smith (after fifteen minutes conversation)—Well, Mrs. Brown, I must be getting along to the plumber. My husband's home with his thumb on a burst pipe, waiting till help comes.

BRIDGE
A new series of lessons by
Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1926, by Hoyle, Jr. ARTICLE No. 23

The informatory double of a suit generally calls for a suit bid from partner unless he has a double stopper in the suit doubled. This convention is arbitrary and should be strictly followed. Unless you have a double stopper in the suit doubled—and by a double stopper is meant the ability to take two tricks in that suit—you should bid your long suit, regardless of length or strength. The following is a good example:

Hearts—K, 9, 3
Clubs—Q, 9, 6, 2
Diamonds—Q, 9, 8, 7
Spades—5, 3

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one club. If A doubled and Y passed, B should bid one diamond. To bid one no-trump with this hand shows bad judgment. Four clubs to the queen is not a double stopper by any means. Don't bid the no-trump unless you have two sure tricks in the suit doubled.

Here is a hand that involves a principle that has been referred to many times in these articles:

Hearts—9, 3
Clubs—A, Q, J
Diamonds—Q, J, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 3
Spades—none

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed. If A passed, what should Y bid? This is a perfect type of hand to justify a preemptive or shut-out bid. Five diamonds is the proper bid. It will probably shut out a game bid by the opponents and if left in should not lose the contract by more than one or two tricks. Such a possible loss is more than offset by the possible gain of shutting out a game bid by the opponents. In this particular hand, a bid of five diamonds shut out a grand slam in spades or a little slam in hearts, one of which suits would have been bid by B if Y had not made his shut-out bid. Y failed to make his contract by two tricks but this small loss was more than offset by his shut-out of B's big hand. Be on the lookout for such opportunities.

Here is another hand that should be carefully noted:

Hearts—7, 2
Clubs—K, 8, 7
Diamonds—K, J, 8, 7, 5
Spades—A, Q, 3

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one heart, A bid two diamonds, Y bid two hearts and B and Z passed. Should A bid three diamonds or pass? There is no question about this hand. A should pass. To bid three diamonds is very risky for, if doubled, it may cause a loss of three or four hundred. There is no chance for game in diamonds if B cannot help the bid, so why take a chance of a big loss to make only three odd in diamonds? The odds are all against such bids so don't make them.

If you decide to take a chance in your bidding take one that is justifiable, one which, if you win, will give you game but if you lose, will not cause too big a loss. In other words, take chances where the odds are fairly even, not where they are all against you.
Here is a problem that has just arrived from California. Like all things from that State, it is well worth while.

SCHOOL GRANT ON NEW BASIS

The statement that an entirely new schedule of government school grants was in the offing was made recently by Premier Ferguson, following the discussion in the Legislature of the township school board bill. In that discussion, the prime minister suggested that school attendance, which is now practically disregarded for grant purposes should become one of the bases of the government's assistance. When questioned upon the matter later by the press, he stated that it was the intention of the government to adopt this plan and to alter the present method of disbursing government aid. Mr. Ferguson stated that the change would not be made until the present litigation with the separate schools, which concerns the basis of apportioning grants between public and separate schools, shall be settled.

Only for this litigation, he said, the government would have issued its new schedule before now, but there was the danger that any plan which might be adopted might be overturned by the court's decision in the separate school controversy. As soon as the case was settled, however, the change in the basis of the grants would become one of the basic factors which are now disregarded. The placing of the school grants upon an attendance basis will have the effect of limiting the amount received by those rural schools which are maintained for the instruction of less than ten pupils. The situation afforded by these sparsely attended schools is the one which the may now set these products on the market or from house to house without the necessity of having them labelled with the producer's name, the name of the article, the net weight, or volume of contents. Syrup, however, must be at least 13 lbs. 3 ounces net to the gallon. These exceptions do not apply to these goods when passing through the ordinary channels of trade, such as groceries and other stores. So, if the producer expects to sell these goods to the stores or other dealers, he should have the containers properly labelled beforehand, as the dealer cannot expose them for sale until they conform to the conditions of the act. Neglect or improper labelling calls for a fine of from $50 to $200 and costs.—Hawover Post.
