HOUSE PETERS HAD TO ACT OVERTIME IN CAPITOL FEATURE

No Rest for Movie He-Man in Lumberjack Melodrama. In "Combat," the Universal Jewel showing at the Veterans' Star theatre, House Peters, the star, has set a new record for screen stars to shoot at.

In this picture, which is a rugged tale of the North Woods, he appears in every sequence and in practically every scene of the more than 400 in the script. The few times he didn't work were when Lynn Reynolds, director, was shooting close-ups of other members of the cast in the scenes in which Peters appeared in the long shots.

Usually a screen star has several days to himself during the making of a picture, while the company is filming a sequence in which he does not appear. But in the seven weeks over which this picture was filmed, not a single time was Peters absent from the set.

His attendance was as perfect as the director's and the cameraman's. It was necessary for him to fix his make-up and make other changes in his wardrobe during the day so as to eliminate delay as much as possible. A dressing room was built for Peters on every set.

In the excellent supporting cast of "Combat" are Wanda Hawley, Walter McGrail, C. E. Anderson, Charles Matles, See Clementa, and Howard Truesdell.

Parades are great things, and there is no doubt that Walkerton, which wants a booze store so badly will celebrate the opening of the government control system. We suggest they have a big parade—marching hundreds who will pass a given point in a line as follows: 1—People who can take the lard stuff or leave it alone, six abreast. 2—People who have had a bottle in their house for five years without pulling the cork, four abreast. 3—One large bus filled with those who voted for the O.T.A. 4—Man who likes a beer riding a bicycle. 5—Home brewers, with band to keep them marching in step, throwing out recipes. 6—People who never take a drop except in case of sickness, ten abreast. 7—Men who keep a bottle in the house because their wife's aged mother takes an occasional nip, seven abreast. 8—Man who never entered into an argument over the O.T.A., riding a camel. 9—Men who used to declare it was not the liquor but the principle of the thing, carried in sedan chairs by provincial police and license inspectors.

The Acid Test

"Mr. Garvin," a man asked his tailor, "how is it you have not called on me for my account?" "Oh, I never ask a gentleman for money."

"Indeed! How, then, do you get on if he doesn't pay?" "Why," replied the tailor, hesitating, "after a certain time I conclude he is not a gentleman and then I ask him."—College Humor.

Drawing Upon the Sensitive Customer

THE collection of money by draft has occasionally been regarded as a reflection on his ability to pay. There is no foundation for such an idea, and full knowledge of the use of this system demonstrates to the most conscientious of men that the service is a convenience to him as well as to his creditor.

Standard Bank collections by draft are universally used by business houses to which courtesy and goodwill are as essential in transactions as is efficient business management.
