OTHER PAPERS' OPINIONS

North and South At Bentinck Court of Revision there were no fewer than 22 appellants this year. Nearly all appellants were from the south of the Township and Ex-Reeve Hunt, who has become a hardy annual, was one of them. His assessment was confirmed as was also that of his neighbor, a Mr. Brizham. They gave notice of their intention to appeal to the county judge and the members of council are delighted that they intend to take this course. The judge will not consider what the appellants' neighbors' farms are assessed for but will take for his guidance the latest sales of farm property along the Durham Provincial Highway and will place the assessment of these farms at their actual selling value. If farms along the Durham Road in Bentinck are assessed at their full value it is something out of the ordinary for in most other townships of Grey farms are assessed at from 50% to 75% of their value. The appellants stand to lose. If assessors would only get selling prices in different parts of the township there would be fewer appeals and the old bluff of carrying the appeal to the judge would fall down. There seems to be a sharp division between north and south interests in Bentinck. For years a majority of members of Bentinck council was from the south and it is openly charged by farmers of the northern part of the township that the better land in the south was not assessed proportionately high as compared with the north and at the Court of Revision the assessor's work was confirmed. In Bentinck council there are now two members from the north and an eastern councillor who sides with them. This constitutes a majority and the Court of Revision stands firm on nearly all appeals by southerners. At last nomination the whole discussion hinged around the assessment question and it looked as though there would be a repetition of oratory the last Monday in November (there's early nominations in Bentinck along the same lines. For two decades at least in Elderslie after the by-law was carried for a bonus to the Lake Erie and Georgian Bay Railway through Chesley and Dobbinville there was a division between the east and west parts of the township. For one year the whole council was elected in the west of the township and for several years there was only one representative from the east, but this sectional feeling has, happily, passed away and, while locality still counts for a candidate, he is elected, largely, on his merits. Unfortunately in Bentinck the line of cleavage is quite apparent to an outsider who attends on nomination day as we did for the first time last year. The clash between north and south interests could be avoided by the assessor taking selling values as his guide instead of making minor changes on the roll of the preceding year.—Chesley Enterprise.

Some Stunt, Eh. Owen Sound merchants made a unique demonstration recently, namely, demonstrating the purchasing power of a one dollar bill. The demonstration was inaugurated under the auspices of the Retail Bureau of the Board of Trade. On Monday morning one member of the Board took a dollar and went to the store of another member and purchased a dollar's worth of goods. This bill, which was marked, was taken by this merchant and used to buy goods from another of the Bureau, and so on until it had been in and out of the business place of every member. Later, all the purchases, together with the original dollar, were on exhibition in one of the show windows in the town, and beside them was shown the purchase made by a dollar sent out of town, and the receipt for the money order sent. It ought to be a telling demonstration that the money kept in town serves a larger number of people than that sent to some distant mail-order house.

The Ontario Agricultural College The adjourned annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural College Alumni Association will reconvene during the annual reunion at Guelph next week for the purpose of discussing the proposal of a Board of Governors for the College. What- ever may be the academic point of view there can be little doubt that Ontario farmers, as a class would welcome a workable proposal for placing the administration of the College beyond any suspicion of political influence. To this end, the Sun feels that the suggestion of a Board of Governors has much to commend it.

As the situation is at present the administration of the College rests almost entirely in the hands of the Provincial Department of Agriculture. Bureaucratic control of such an important seat of learning as the O.A.C. cannot be commended as in the best interests either of the College itself or the industry it purports to serve. A Board of Governors would give opportunity for at least one practical farmer to bring to the administration of the College the point of view of agriculture, and at least one woman to voice the viewpoint of her sex on matters particularly pertaining to the interests of the large number of women students who pass through the College.

In any case, by no stretch of the imagination can the system be called a good one, and it is to be hoped that from next week's meeting will evolve some practical proposal which will stand a chance of being put into effect without too sadly disturbing the serenity of those who are satisfied with things as they are.—Farmers' Sun.

Curfew Shall Ring! Although we can't see very much in this curfew business, the Chief of Police asked the Council that the bell be tolled each night at nine o'clock to warn the kids that it was time they were in the house and in bed. That system might have been o.k. some 50 years ago when folks were accustomed to retiring early, but in this day of many young people's organizations and concerts, shows, etc. the proposition doesn't look so good. You can't put a kid into the house at night who has permission of his parents to be out, and you can't expect your young people's organizations to cut their programs short just on account of a curfew bell.

UNDER THE HOOFS OF THE STAMPEDE

Even Marceline was Nervous

Putting their lives in peril to give an added thrill to "The White Outlaw," Jack Hoxie and Marceline Day, lay prostrate while the hoofs of a herd of wild horses thundered over them. The picture, a Universal Blue Streak Western, is coming to the Veterans' Star Theatre, Thursday and Saturday, June 30, July 2.

In a scene which is possibly the most spectacular and daring ever made in the history of filmdom, Marceline Day took her life in her hands as she dashed down a narrow valley ahead of the charging herd of a thousand maddened horses. Her horse tripped, throwing her, while Jack Hoxie dashed forward to rescue her.

But the foaming animals were coming too rapidly and the couple could dash to safety just in the nick of time as they were supposed to do. The first of the chargers brushed them just as they reached a narrow washout. Falling down, they hugged the ground as closely as vines while the very centre of the herd veered and leaped over their heads.

Cliff Smith, director, and other members of the company, stood watching transfixed by what they believed to be the terrible fate of the plucky actor and actress. The cameraman automatically cranked away and every bit of the action ringing. However, the council has ordered the caretaker to ring the bell at nine, which news will be joyfully received by the caretaker.—Kincaid Review-Reporter.

By some miracle, neither was injured badly. Hoxie was kicked twice by the flying hoofs while Miss Day was completely done up with the nervous excitement for more than an hour.
