CARD OF THANKS To the Electors of Bentinck Township Ladies and Gentlemen: Allow me to express to the many friends who so loyally supported and worked for me during the recent campaign, my sincere thanks.

We put up a clean fight and though defeated, I have no regrets for anything I have done either during the campaign or throughout my term of office.

Sincerely yours, D. J. MacDONALD.

At you. PERSONAL Service

The men and women of this company are trying to turn out something more than just a good general telephone service.

No two users have exactly the same needs. When you ask us to install or move a telephone we want to handle your order in such a way that your personal requirements are exactly met.

When you ask for information about a contract, or a bill, or report trouble with your instrument, or make even the most casual telephone call, we want to give each matter the sort of attention that spells personal service, not just average service.

This is not easy. But it's what we are aiming at—a personal service.

HE NEVER KNEW

He'd lived for fifty years or more On this terrestrial sphere, In time, sequestered bachelorhood Without regretful fear. But that's because he did not know The good things he had missed— The fun of being bossed around, And being good-bye kissed.

He never knew how nice 'twas to Get down upon all fours And under wife's directions start To wax the hardwood floors: Or hang the clothes out on the line Upon a winter's day; Or wash the dirty dishes when His life-mate was away.

He never knew the feeling that Comes o'er one in the morn, To find his cash has, in the night, Been from his pockets borne. Nor does he realize the joy To see soon after that, His wife appear resplendent in New stockings, dress and hat.

He never knew the great delight (As married men oft find) When he has planned some things to do To have "her" change his mind; Or how he can, when driving cars, Exigencies all meet. If there's a keen directing mind Ensconced in the back seat.

No one to hand advice to him When he the baby rocks; No one to say he needs a bath Or order change of socks! Poor chap! He only thinks he's lived! But with this partial list, 'Tis plain to see he never knew The fun that he has missed!

PROOFREADERS, PLEASE NOTE

We'll begin with box; the plural is boxes, But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes. One fowl is a goose, but two are called geese.

Yet the plural of mouse should never be meese. You may find a lone mouse, or a whole nest of mice. But the plural of house is houses, not hices.

If the plural of man is always called men. Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen? The cow in the plural may be called cows, or kine; But a bow, if repeated, is never called bine; And the plural of vow is vows, never vine.

If I speak of a foot and you show me two feet And I give you a boot, would a pair be called beet? If one is a tooth and a whole set are teeth, Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth? If the singular's this, and the plural is these Should the plural of kiss ever be written keese?

Then one may be that, and the two would be those, Yet hat in the plural would never be hose And the plural of cat is cats, and not cose. We speak of a brother, and also of of brethren, But though we say mother, we never say methren.

Then the masculine pronouns are he, his, and him, But imagine the feminine, she, shis and shim! So the English, I think you all will agree Is the funniest language you ever did see. —Typosium

Two Kinds of Employees —Which are YOU or Which Will YOU BE?

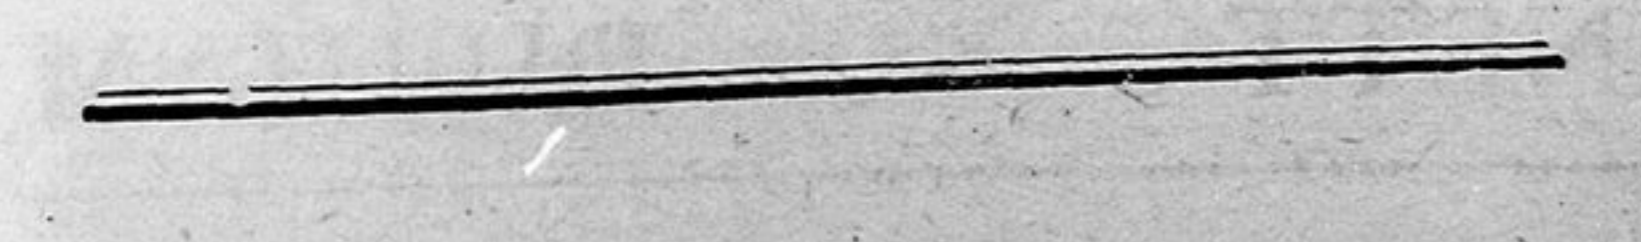

ONE is the kind composed of clerks, shipping hands, etc.—whose duties call for no specialized knowledge, no particular pre-training. The market is full of this class of help, and since it is, there is no premium on their services.

The other is the trained class, composed of people who are especially fitted to do an important job in business. These are the people who get the opportunities in business because they get started in the right places.

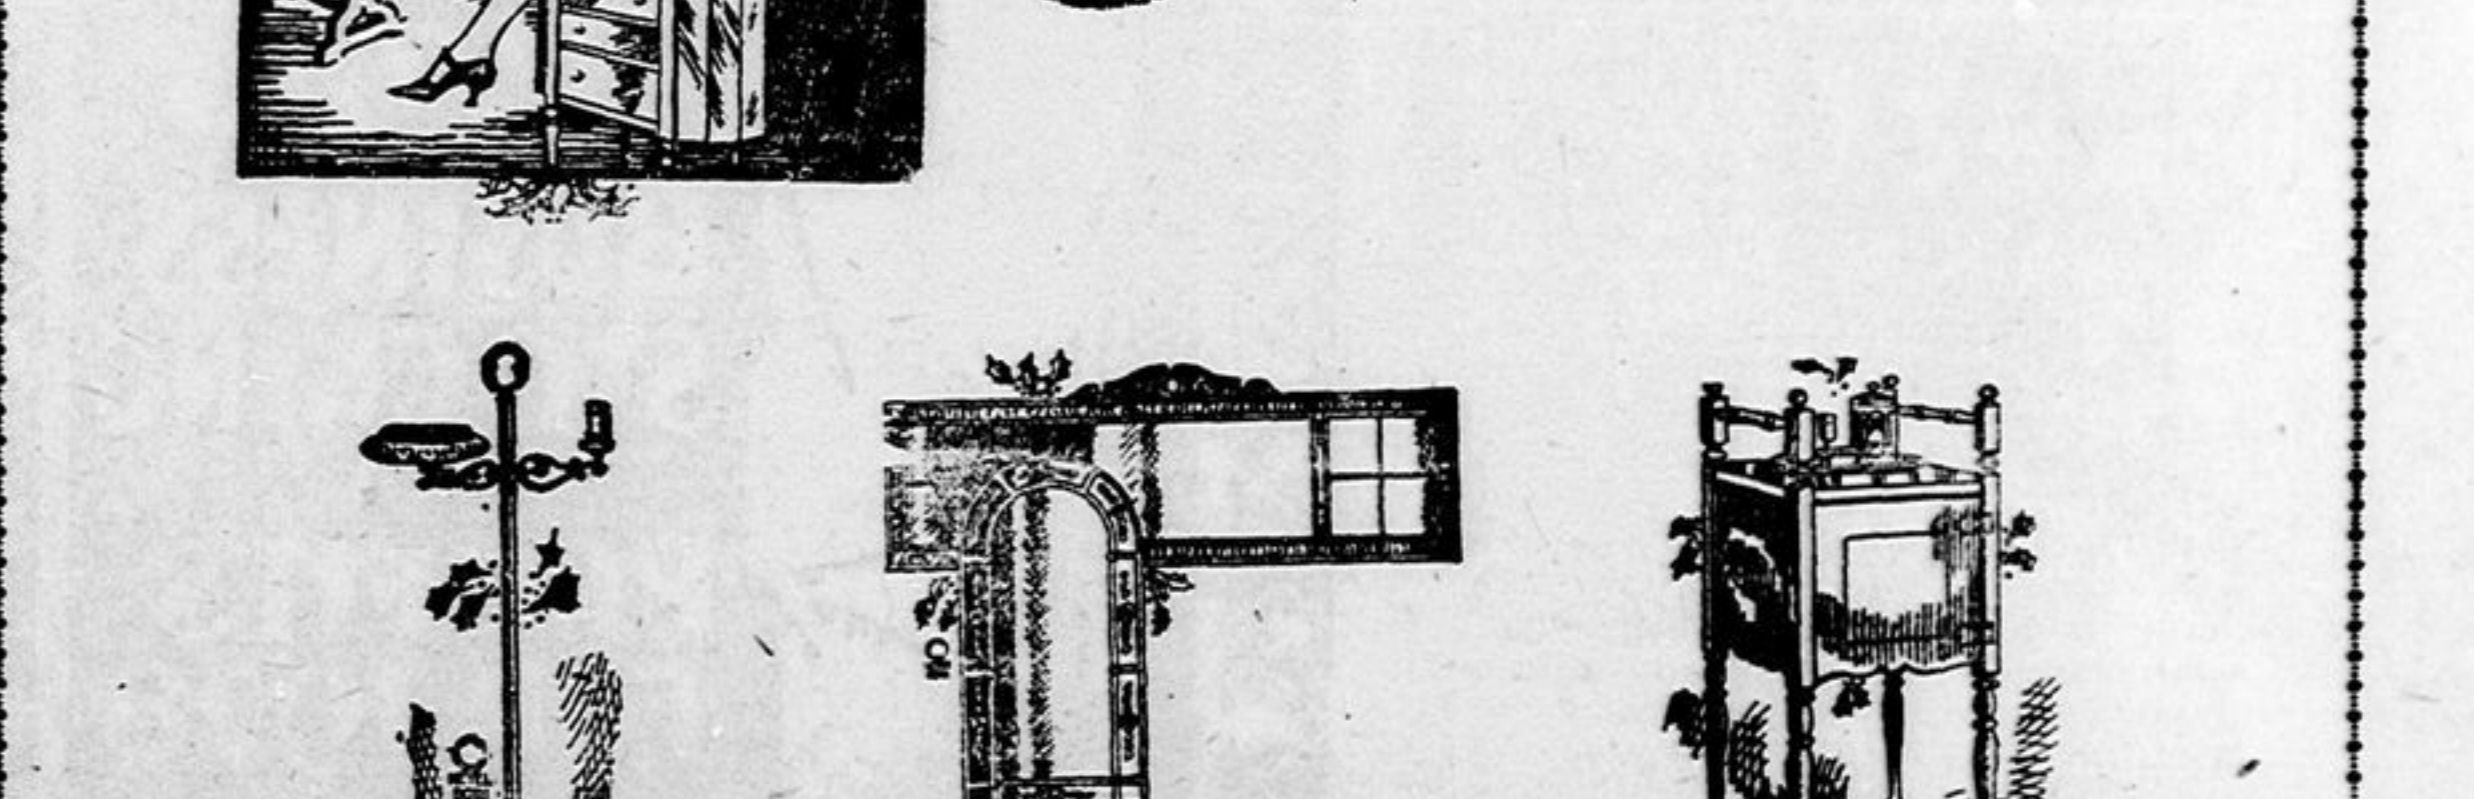

Don't be one of the untrained horde when you can be one of business' specialists. Get a training in stenography, bookkeeping or secretarial work—learn modern business practice and procedure—and you will get the position with a future. We give you the training that makes you the person in demand at the—
