OTHER PAPERS' OPINIONS

A Vicar Who Talks Too Much Ever since he came to Toronto a few years ago Worshipful Brother Rev. F. Ward-White, priest-vicar of St. Alban's Cathedral, has been periodically indulging in pulpits outbursts on public questions, more calculated to supply newspaper headlines than promote the cause of Christian fellowship.

Small wonder then that members of the Anglican Synod have been giving open expression to disapproval of the Vicar's most recent contribution to public discussion. His subject was the piffing movement for a Canadian-born Governor-General. Anyone can make himself ridiculous by taking this movement seriously, but the reverend gentleman went beyond bounds in that direction when he said that the Pope was back of it. It was quite a plot that he outlined. First of all the French Canadians were plotting for a Canadian born Governor-General, and would demand one of their own race because of their seniority in the settlement of Canada.

It is painful to Anglicans to hear of nonsense being talked from one of their pulpits, especially when that nonsense seems to be dictated by unreasoning religious intolerance. It is to be hoped that someone will induce the Priest Vicar of St. Alban's to speak with more sanity and Christian fellowship in future utterances.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Sir Arthur's Vindication

Sir Arthur Currie's libel action against the writer and publisher of an article reflecting upon his leadership of the Canadian Corps at Mons has passed into history as far as the general public is concerned. But there is no doubt that to-day the Corps Commander stands higher in the estimation of the Canadian people than ever before.

It seemed deplorable that the leader of the composite group of Canada's citizen soldiers which brought glory and renown to the Dominion and did more than the statesmen of a century toward the acceptance by the world of Canada as a nation, should be called upon to defend his actions almost ten years after the conclusion of the war. Sir Arthur's judgment in precipitating the action has been vindicated, and posterity will know that there is no tarnish on the most inspiring pages of our history.—The Legionary, official publication of The Canadian Legion.

Unscrupulous Agents

Bond Houses desirous of maintaining their flouted reputation for honesty and reliability should be careful in the selection of their representatives to dispose of their issues of bonds and stocks. An unscrupulous representative or agent can easily ruin or impair the reputation of the soundest Bond House in existence. It would seem that such an agent has been working this district for some weeks past. As to safety of the investment he has been offering, we are in no position to judge, other than it is of a highly speculative character, but his means of inducing men to invest in his stock by using the names of certain shrewd business men as having invested heavily in this particular issue when they had not purchased a share, or perchance have invested only a few hundred dollars in his offer, is not the kind of selling tactics that any reliable Bond House would condone.

GIRLS PLAY ROUGH GAME OF FOOTBALL IN "BACKSTAGE"

A football game played by two "nines" composed of beautiful young ladies is one of the stirring scenes in the Tiffany production "Backstage" which will be the feature picture attraction coming to the Veterans' Star Theatre Friday and Saturday, June 15 and 16. The football game takes place in a scene in a musical comedy in which the principal characters are members of the chorus. During the rehearsals of this scene Eileen Percy, who plays one of the sophisticated chorus girls was tackled by a rather husky show girl and it took several minutes and several whiffs of smelling salt to bring the dazed young lady back to her senses. Thereafter the director gave instructions that in the rushes and tackles care be taken that some of the principals would not be injured. In the cast are such well known players as William Collier, Jr., Barbara Bedford, Alberta Vaughn, Shirley O'Hara, Guinn (Big Boy) Williams, Gayne Whitman, Brooks Benedict, Jimmy Harrison and Lincoln Plumer.

ABOUT BUTTONHOLES

When making buttonholes in very soft or thin material, spread a little cold starch or library paste on the wrong side of the goods and let it dry before cutting the buttonholes. This will make the material firmer to work on, and it will not show and will not injure the goods.

Another method to use with soft, thin material or any cloth that frays easily, is to work the buttonhole before cutting it out. First mark with pencil or white thread where it is to be cut afterward, then work the buttonhole around this in the usual way, right up to the line to be cut. With a safety-razor blade or a pair of small, sharp scissors cut between the two rows. This must be done carefully.

An excellent way to do with silk or other material that frays but is not transparent, is to lay a piece of "mending tissue" or even adhesive plaster behind the goods where the buttonholes are to be cut, and press it with a hot iron to make it adhere. This provides firmness, and the buttonholes may then be cut through both goods and added piece.

NO DRINKING IN AUTOMOBILES

Sir Henry Drayton is preparing for a drive against drinking in motor cars on the highways of Ontario.

Assuming that if the tourists entering Ontario know the regulations that govern the use of liquor here, the majority of them will try to obey the law, the chairman of the liquor control board has hit on the idea of telling them tersely in red ink on the face of their permits what they must not do.

He has had rubber stamps made and on the face of every permit will be stamped in large letters the following warning: "Liquor cannot be drunk during carriage. Take purchase unopened direct to your home or room in your hotel. Drinking in motors strictly prohibited — punishment, fine or imprisonment."

The chief difference between an authority and an expert is that the authority knows something about it.

"How's old Smith doing in the hospital?" "Fairly well, but I don't think he will be out as soon as expected." "How did you find out—did you see the doctor?" "No, I saw his nurse."
